EXMINSTER is a parish and village on the western bank of the river Exe, opposite Topsham, and on the road from Exeter to Teignmouth, with a station on the Exeter and Plymouth section of the main line of the Great Western railway, and is 4 miles south-south-east from Exeter and 196 from London, in the North Eastern division of the county, Exminster hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Kenn, archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Martin is an ancient building of red stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch, and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast by Thomas Bilbie in 1768, except the 1st, which was re-cast by Mears, in 1855: there are memorial windows to S. T. Kekewich esq. formerly M.P. for the county, who died June 1st, 1873, erected by his tenants; to Augustus Stowey esq. and the Rev. G. W. B. Daniell, both of Kenbury, erected in 1876; to Lewis Kekewich esq. lieutenant, 20th Regiment, who after being wounded at Inkerman, Nov. 5, 1854, died of fever at Corfu, Feb. 16th, 1855; and one to the late Joseph Palmer Godfrey esq. of Plymouth, erected in 1898: some remains of oak screens still exist: the church was renovated in 1840, and in 1896 the roof was entirely restored, the west gallery removed and the whole of the nave reseated, at a cost of £850: there are now 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1562. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £302, with residence and 15 acres of glebe, in the gift of the governors of the Crediton Church Corporation Trust (who are also improprators of the great tithes, amounting to £600 yearly), and held since 1894 by the Rev. John Jessop Teague B.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. The Wesleyan chapel here, erected in 1893 at a cost of £500, is a building of stone, seating 140 persons: there is also a chapel for the Brethren. The governors of the Crediton Church Corporation Trust pay £26 yearly for two pensioners in this parish; Margaret Taverner left by will, dated Nov. 4th, 1629, 20s. yearly, which is given in bread on Good Friday: there are also almshouses for eight poor persons. A pleasure fair is held on May 27th. Peamore is the mansion of Trehawke Kekewich esq. M.A., D.L., J.P. Trood House, the property of E. H. Roach, of Glastonbury, is now (1901) occupied by Col. James Fellowes. The Earl of Devon and Lord Haldon, who are the lords of the manor, Trehawke Kekewich esq. A. W. B. Daniell esq. E. H. Roach esq. of Glastonbury, and James FitzGerald Bannatyne esq. J.P. of Haldon House, Kenn, are chief landowners. The soil is rich and very fertile; the subsoil is red sandstone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 5,796 acres of land, 51 of water, 55 of tidal water and 210 of foreshore; rateable value, £25,839; the population in 1901, including 103 officers and 1,160 inmates in the County Asylum and 75 in the Devon and Exeter Boys' Industrial School, was 2,548.

By a Local Government Board Order, 16,545, which came into operation on March 25th, 1884, a detached part of this parish, known as Knowle, was added to Ide and Kiddons was transferred to Ashton, for civil purposes. Sexton, Mark Manley.

EXMOUTH.

EXMOUTH is a market town, seaport and a fashionable watering place, with a station on a branch line of the London and South Western railway from Exeter, which is now (1901) in course of extension to Budleigh Salterton, 5 miles distant, and is 10 miles south-south-east from Exeter, 10 south-west from Sidmouth and 182 from London, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of East Budleigh, petty sessional division of Woodbury, union of St. Thomas, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; it is principally in the parish of Littleham, but partly in that of Withycombe Raleigh, and stands partly on high ground descending abruptly towards the mouth of the broad estuary of the river Exe, and commanding attractive river scenery and fine inland views, including the Haldon hills, 800 feet in height, and Powderham on the left bank of the river, alongside which runs the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, with a station at Starcross, nearly opposite the town. Exmouth is within the jurisdiction of the port of Exeter, and is the oldest sea bathing town in the county of Devon.

The Danes landed here A.D. 1000, and destroyed the town, which was originally called "Pratteshide" or "Pratteshute," and it is said that during the reign of King John it was a considerable port. A chart of the place, taken during the reign of Henry VIII. is preserved in the British Museum. In the reign of Edward III. Exmouth supplied 10 ships and 193 seamen for an expedition to Calais.

Until the early part of the last century, the town of Exmouth consisted principally of a few straggling houses built down the side of the hill to the east, from the spot where the ancient chapel of the Holy Trinity stood, towards the Cross, and a few more towards the west, called the Strand, and the sea at this time covered most of the ground on which the north-western part of the town is now built, and washed the base of the cliffs on the left-hand side of the road at the entrance of the town from Exeter. There are now many handsome villas and good lodging-houses; and the beach, admirably adapted for bathing purposes, is supplied with bathing machines. There are also clubs, reading, billiard and assembly rooms, and all the usual accessories of a fashionable bathing place. The climate here is singularly mild, the surrounding country well wooded, and the soil very dry. Gas works, the property of a company, were erected in 1842.

The Exmouth and District Water Works Company, established in 1864, provides an abundant supply of pure water, brought from Squab Moor, a distance of about 3½ miles, and from Bicton Common, a distance of about 5 miles (an additional supply, opened in 1895), and supplies the town of Exmouth and parts of Littleham and Withycombe Raleigh: a sum of £32,900 has been already spent on these works.

The sanitary regulations were formerly under the control of a Local Board of Health, established in 1850 under 13 and 14 Vict. c. 108, but, under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), the town is now governed by an Urban District Council, formed Jan. 1, 1895, whose authority extends over the whole of the parishes of Littleham (see below) and Withycombe Raleigh. The district is divided into three wards, viz.: Littleham Urban, Withycombe Urban and the Rural Ward, represented by nine, six and three members respectively. By a Local Government Board Order, dated 21st June, 1895, a portion of the parish of Littleham, containing 193 acres, was transferred for civil purposes to Budleigh Salterton Urban District.

The church of the Holy Trinity, erected by the late

Lord Rolle in 1824, at a cost of about £12,000, is a structure of brick, with stone facings, in the Gothic style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles and an embattled western tower containing a clock and one bell: the chancel was built by Lady Rolle, at a cost of about £2,500, and has a fine stained east window, inserted by Lady Rolle, and a smaller one, given by Mr. A. B. Webber: the stone font, designed by Mr. R. Medley Fulford F.R.I.B.A. and executed by Hems, of Exeter, is a memorial to Miss Moore: there are about 1,000 sittings. The registers, incorporated with those of Budleigh, date from 1603. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the vicarage of Littleham, joint net yearly value £350, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Edward Vere Freeman M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford.

St. Saviour's Mission church, erected in 1881-2, near the market, at a cost of £80, is a building of red brick, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle and a western turret, containing one bell: it was enlarged in 1888, when the north aisle was added, and has sittings for 250 persons.

St. Andrew's district church, in St. Andrew's road, erected in 1896, on a site given by the Hon. Mark G. K. Rolle, is an edifice of stone and red brick, in the Early English style, from designs by Messrs. Paul and Cogswell, architects, of London, and consists of chancel with aisles, nave, aisles, south chapel, vestries and central bell turret: there are sittings for 500 persons.

The licensed church of All Saints, in Exeter road, in the parish of Withycombe Raleigh, erected in 1897, at a cost of £9,000, mainly defrayed by an anonymous donor, is an edifice of limestone, with Bath stone dressings, chiefly in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel with south chapel, nave of four bays, baptistery, aisles, transepts, north and south porches, vestries and organ chamber: there are sittings for 700 persons.

There is a small Catholic church, with presbytery adjoining, in Albion road, opened in October, 1887.

The Congregational chapel, Chapel hill, erected in 1807 and rebuilt 1893, is an edifice of brick, with Bath stone dressings, and will seat 350 persons.

Glenorchy Congregational chapel, Exeter road, in the parish of Withycombe Raleigh, first erected by Wilhelm (Maxwell), widow of John, Lord Glenorchy, in 1777, and rebuilt in 1866, is a building of stone, and will seat 450 persons.

Christ Church (Reformed Episcopal church), Brunswick square, formerly a Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1871, is an edifice of red brick with a stone front, altered and enlarged in 1897 to suit its present purpose, and has sittings for 400 persons.

The Wesleyan Methodist chapel, Tower street, erected in 1897, is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style, and will seat 612 persons.

The Baptist chapel, Victoria road, erected in 1901, at a cost of about £1,150, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, with sittings for 300 persons.

The Primitive Methodist chapel, in the Parade, has sittings for 300 persons.

The chapel of the Brethren in Exeter road. This sect has also a cemetery at Withycombe Raleigh, about three-quarters of an acre in extent.

The Public Hall, in the Strand, opened August 10th, 1887, is the property of a private company, with a capital of £4,000: it was built at a cost of £3,500, and is a structure of Exmouth brick, with dressings of Beer stone, from the designs of J. Johnson esq. A.R.I.B.A. of London: it contains a splendid hall for theatrical and other entertainments, capable of seating 550 people, and a smaller hall holding 200 persons: a large room for magistrates' and district council meetings on the first floor; a school of art room and several sets of offices.

The Exmouth Club, established in 1890, adjoins the grounds of the Imperial hotel and commands a magnificent view of the sea and coast; it is provided with all the appointments of a first-class modern club, and has about 150 members. Visitors are admitted as temporary members, from one day to three months.

The Exe Yacht Club, established in 1889, was recognised by the Yacht Racing Association in 1895, and has over 100 members; the club house is on the pier.

The Church Institute, in Rolle street, erected in 1886-7 at a cost of £1,300, comprises reading, recreation, class and caretaker's rooms on the ground floor, and a large lecture room above seating 300 persons: there is a small library attached. At present there are 50 hon. members and 150 ordinary members, who pay a subscription of 6d. monthly or 1s. a quarter.

The Young Men's Christian Association, a branch of which was formed here in 1889, occupies a house in Johnson's place, and has a reading-room, reference library, recreation and lecture rooms and a good gymnasium; the number of members and associates is just over 100.

The Imperial Hotel, a large and commodious building, built in 1869, is situated at the foot of the Beacon, and stands in its own grounds, which extend to the sea beach; a fine ball-room was added in 1882. The Royal Beacon Hotel, occupied by Miss Prouse, is a well-conducted hotel most pleasantly situated on the Beacon, with a very attractive view.

Independent of this place being the resort of numerous persons during the season, the occupations of the townsfolk consist in brick making, in which three firms and about 70 men and boys are engaged, fishing and the manufacture of Honiton lace, but the latter has greatly declined in recent years. At Woodbury, an adjacent place, is the large blood manure factory of Messrs. Odams.

Exmouth Docks, constructed in 1869, comprise 200,000 superficial feet of water, with a depth of 17 feet at high water spring tide at the lock entrance. The trade chiefly consists of importations of corn, coal, stone and timber, manure and soap, for the storage of which there are large depots at the docks, and about 40,000 tons are imported annually. Vessels leave the port chiefly in ballast, bricks, clay and timber. There is a branch line of half a mile in length connecting the docks with the Exeter and Exmouth branch of the South Western railway, so that the traffic goes direct from the Docks via Exeter, as well as by a new line now (1901) in course of construction, via Budleigh Salterton, over the South Western system.

The pier, adjoining the Docks, affords a landing and embarking stage for passengers by the pleasure steamers at all tides; it has a handsome pavilion, with stage, and is variously used as a skating rink, for musical and theatrical entertainments, and for dancing, and will hold 500 persons.

There are three branch banks: the Wilts and Dorset Banking Company Limited, on the Strand, the Devon and Cornwall Banking Company Limited and the Exeter Bank (Sanders, Snow and Co.), both in Rolle street.

The old Market House, formerly in the Strand, was taken down in 1869 and a more commodious market erected in Rolle street. The site of the old market is now laid out in ornamental walks. The market is held every Saturday, and is well supplied; butchers' meat and vegetables are also to be obtained every week day. A cattle market is held on the second and last Tuesdays in every month. Fairs were formerly held on the 26th of April and the 28th of October, but have been allowed to lapse.

The early closing day is on Wednesday, at 2 p.m.

A regatta, held annually in the months of August and September, is well attended. Athletic sports are also held in connection with the cricket club.

A Lawn Tennis Tournament, established in 1882, is held annually in August, and lasts six days.

The Exmouth Archery and Lawn Tennis Club, formed in 1879, now numbers about 250 members, and has excellent grounds at the foot of the Beacon, with other space for bowls and croquet. The grounds of the South Devon Archery Club, formerly at Powderham, are now at Cranford, but the club is at present (1901) in abeyance.

The Golf Club has links on the Maer, near the beach; the course consists of nine holes, with a ladies' course of six holes.

Two weekly newspapers are published: the "Exmouth Journal," on Saturday, by Mr. Freeman, of Baring place; and the "Exmouth Chronicle," by Merrs. Setten and Son, of Rolle street, on Saturday.

Exmouth is the head quarters of No. 7 Company 1st Devonshire Volunteer Artillery, Western Division Royal Artillery; the battery has two 64-pounder guns, one 7-inch R.M.L. mounted for practice and one 64-pounder R.M.L. in the drill hall; there is also stationed here the F Company 1st (Exeter and South Devon) Volunteer Battalion, Devonshire Regiment.

There is a lifeboat station, a coastguard station, and a battery for the use of the Royal Naval Reserve assembling here, consisting of one 6-inch quick-firer, one 5-inch B.L.R. one 64-pounder, one 1-inch 4-barrel Nordenfeldt, one 3-pounder quick-firer and one Maxim; also one 64-pounder at the firing battery; 750 R.N.R. drill annually.

The Sun Lodge, No. 106 and the Rolle Lodge, No. 2759 of Freemasons hold their meetings at the Masonic hall, in St. Andrew's road, erected in 1895 at a cost of £1,800; the first-named lodge meets on the second Monday in each month, and the other on the last Monday; the lodge-room is well fitted and there are convenient ante and cloak rooms, &c.; the lower portion of the building, used by a social club, contains spacious reading, smoking and billiard rooms and steward's apartments.

The Maud Hospital, established in 1885, occupies premises in Bicton street, and is entirely supported by voluntary contributions: there are 8 beds and 2 cots: out-patients also attend for treatment, and private patients are received into the hospital.

The Dispensary, in Church street, was established in 1868, but the present building was erected in 1901; this institution is supported by voluntary contributions; 1,225 patients were under treatment during the year 1900.

The charities distributed in the parish of Littleham, with Exmouth, amount to £150 yearly.

In the centre of the town is a public pleasure ground, known as "The Strand Enclosure," given by the Hon. Mark Rolle. Another recreation ground and public garden, called the "Manor House Grounds," from being the site of the old manor house, was opened in 1897; the land, granted by the Hon. Mark Rolle, has been laid out, planted, and furnished with lavatories, &c. by the town, at a cost of £1,200.

The sea-wall, begun in 1841 and completed in 1842, at the cost of the late Lord Rolle, is constructed of limestone, and is 22 feet in height and 1,800 feet in extreme length, and forms a favourite promenade.

From the Beacon a very fine view is obtained of the coast, including the country from Berry Head (the western boundary of Torbay) to the city of Exeter and its adjacent heights, the prospect being beautifully diversified by the river Exe and the noble parks of Powderham and Mamhead, with other interesting adjuncts. The cliff leading from the Beacon to the Beach is planted with trees and shrubs, the walks through which are very pleasant. Trafusis and Louisa terraces are a continuation of the Beacon, and enjoy an equally delightful situation. The neighbourhood furnishes specimens of many rare and remarkable plants and birds.

The favourite excursions are to Lymington, about 2 miles; Withycombe Raleigh, 1½ miles; Littleham, 2 miles; Budleigh Salterton, 5 miles; Woodbury Castle, Black Hill, Hayes Farm, the birthplace of Sir Walter Raleigh; and Starcross and the Warren, on the opposite side of the river. The vicinity of this town to the city of Exeter, and to Sidmouth and Dawlish, adds considerably to its popularity. Two excursion steamers belonging to the Devon Dock, Pier and Steam Ship Company make trips to various places along the coast every day throughout the summer.

The Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle D.L., J.P. of Bickton, is lord of the manor and the chief landowner.

The area of the urban district is 426 acres; rateable value, £55,875, viz. £36,566 for Littleham parish and £19,309 for Withycombe Raleigh parish. The population exclusive of men and boys at sea, in 1871 was 5,614; in 1881, 6,245; in 1891, 8,097; and in 1901 was 10,487.

EXWICK, a hamlet on the river Exe, lately incorporated within the boundaries of the City of Exeter, was formed into an ecclesiastical district June 28, 1872, and is about a quarter of a mile north-west from St. David's station on the Bristol and Exeter section of the Great Western railway, in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred of Exminster, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, and in the county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Christianity and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew, erected in 1841 by the Rev. John Medley, then vicar of St. Thomas and afterwards Bishop of Fredericton (1845-92), is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: in 1873 it was enlarged and decorated, a north aisle added and the chancel lengthened, from designs by Mr. John Hayward, architect, of Exeter, at the expense of William Gibbs esq. of Tyntesfield, and endowed by him with £200 yearly: several of the windows are stained, and there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1872. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £240, with residence, in the gift of Antony Gibbs esq. and held since 1897 by the Rev. Lionel Peere

FARRINGTON is a parish and village, about a quarter of a mile from the road from Sidmouth to Exeter, 3½ miles south-east from Broadclyst station on the main line of the London and South Western railway and 6 south-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, East Budleigh hundred, Woodbury petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Barnabas the Apostle, an entirely new building of stone, in the Early English style, was consecrated January 14, 1871, and consists of chancel, nave, transept, north aisle, south porch and a western tower with small spire containing one bell, cast in 1815: the church was re-seated with open cedar benches and heating apparatus added in 1887. A lych gate was erected in 1888 as a memorial to the Rev. William Francis Gray M.A. rector 1862-86, by his widow: there are several old monuments to the families of Cholwich, Ellicombe, Sleech and others: and the church affords 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1678. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £350, including 28 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Alfred Gill B.A. of S. FARWAY is a parish, 4 miles south from Honiton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway and 17 east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, Colyton hundred, Honiton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch, aisles and an embattled western tower, with a turret at the south-east angle, and containing 3 bells: the north aisle belongs to and has been the burial-place of the Prideaux family, and under a circular arch in this aisle is an altar-tomb with effigy in forensic costume of Sir Edmond Prideaux bart. barrister-at-law and reader at the Inner Temple, ob. 28 March, 1628; on a ledge below is another effigy in armour, lying sideways and bearing a shield with the arms of Prideaux, the other hand grasping a sword; this figure may possibly represent Sir Peter Prideaux M.P. son and heir of Sir Edmond, ob. 1681: the title became extinct on the death of Sir Edmond Saunderson Prideaux bart. in 1875; in the church is a stone incised with a cross flory: the church was restored in 1877 at a cost of £2,000. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1567; marriages, 1574; burials, 1573. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £195, with residence and 24 acres of glebe, in the gift of Richard Marker esq. and held since 1900 by the Rev. William Edwin Remfry, of St. Aidan's. There is a charity of £20, left by Elizabeth Cox in 1784, the interest of which is distributed in FENITON is a village and parish on a tributary of the river Otter, with a station called Sidmouth junction on the main line of the South Western railway, and is 4 miles west from Honiton and 13 north-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, Hayridge hundred, Honiton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with aisle, nave of four bays, south aisle and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: there are three memorial windows and a brass to the Right Hon. Sir John Patteson knt. Justice of the Queen's Bench, who died at Feniton Court, June 28, 1861: the church retains a fine rood screen and parlour screens of the 15th century, restored by Hems and Sons, of Exeter, and on the south side of the chancel is an altar-tomb with quatrefoiled sides and on the upper slab a cadaver wrapt in a shroud tied over the head: on the capitals of the piers of the Malherbe aisle are shields of arms of the Malherbe and Fenners families, some of whom were buried here: on the floor of the chancel is a stone inscribed to Margaret (Dennis), wife of George Kyrcham esq. ob. 1572: the fabric was completely restored and re-seated in 1878, under the direction of Mr. R. Medley Fulford F.R.I.B.A. at an expense of £1,300, about one-half of which was given by the Rev. W. F. Gore and members of his family. In 1900 the flooring of the nave and south aisle was re-laid, new heating apparatus fixed, and other repairs done at a cost of £106: the church affords 226 sittings. The register dates from the year 1549. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £275, with residence and 74

the property of Mrs. Edward Johnson, of Old Ferry House, Chelsea embankment, London S.W. is a handsome mansion of brick, rebuilt in 1889, and commanding an extensive prospect, now occupied by Major Reginald Hayes Sadler. Lieut.-Col. John Arthur Thomas Garratt, of Bishop's court, Sowton, who is lord of the manor, and Mrs. Edward Johnson are the principal landowners. The soil is clay and sandy; the subsoil is red and rocky. The chief crops are the usual cereals. The acreage is 1,466; rateable value, £2,213; the population in 1901 was 172. Under the provisions of the Divided Parishes Act, by Local Government Board Order, 16,545, which came into operation March 24, 1884, a portion of this parish containing 567 acres, and including Bishop's Court, was added to that of Sowton for civil purposes.

FILLEIGH is a parish and village on the west bank of the small river Bray, and adjoining the road from South Molton to Barnstaple, 1 mile south-west from Filleigh station (which is in the parish) on the Somerset and Devon section of the Great Western railway, and is 3½ miles north-west from South Molton, 8 south-east from Barnstaple, and 202 from London, in the Northern division of the county, Braunton hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Paul is a plain building of stone in the Norman style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, south aisle and an embattled western tower, with spire, containing 6 bells: the church was remodelled in 1876-8 by Earl Fortescue at a cost of £2,800: there are several handsome monuments and stained windows to the Fortescue family, and two small brasses, about 1 foot by 4½ inches, both to Richard Fortescue of Filleigh esq. ob. 30 June, 1570, who is represented in each as in full armour, bare-headed, and kneeling before a prie-dieu, placed on a chequered floor; the background in one instance represents a wall pierced by a two-light window, on either side of which are quartered shields of the Fortescues; the other brass appears to have been placed by his brother-in-law, Sir Barnard Drake kt. of Ashe; both have inscriptions: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1685. The living is a rectory, with East Buckland annexed, joint net yearly value £240, including 88½ acres of glebe here and 28 in East Buckland, with residence, in the gift of Earl Fortescue, and held since 1894 by the Rev. FREMINGTON is a large parish and village on the navigable river Taw and on the direct road from Bideford to Exeter, with a station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, and is 3 miles west from Barnstaple, 42 north from Exeter and 214 from London, in the North Western division of the county, hundred of Fremington, petty sessional division of Braunton, union and county court district of Barnstaple, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. This place was formerly a borough, and in the reign of Edward III. sent members to Parliament. The church of St. Peter is a building of stone of mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and an embattled tower on the north side, containing a clock and 6 bells, of which the 5th, a good bell, has a legend in Old English characters; the 6th, the words, "AVE MARIA," in Lombardic letters; the 3rd and 4th are dated respectively 1702 and 1664, and the 1st and 2nd were cast in commemoration of the Jubilee of Queen Victoria: there are many monuments and four memorial windows: various alterations were effected in 1845, in the course of which the fine screen was removed, and is now lost: the church was thoroughly restored under the superintendence of the late Sir Gilbert Scott B.A. and reopened June 11th, 1867: there are 300 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1602; marriages, 1708. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £400, including 96 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Rev. Thomas Poltimore Dimond-Hogg M.A. vicar of Saltney Chester, and held since 1855 by the Rev. John Tayleur Pigot M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, and prebendary of Exeter. There is a lectureship here, founded and endowed by Sir John Doderidge kt. Justice of the King's Bench from 1612 to 1628, with £50 yearly, payable out of the great tithes, and held since 1879 by the Rev. William Seaton, rector of Ashford. There is a Congregational chapel at Dickinson and a Wesleyan chapel at Fremington. The charities amount to £75 yearly. Here is a pottery for the manufacture of coarse ware and drain pipes, and potters' clay, which is dug here, is a considerable article of export. Fremington House is the ington, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of SS. Mary and Gregory is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles 72 feet in height, containing 5 large fine-tuned bells, of which the first, placed in the tower by subscription in 1887, is inscribed "in honore regni Victoriae I.;" the second bears the names "Micael" and

"Gabriel;" the third has the legend, "Sancte Michael, ora pro nobis;" the third is dated 1684, and the tenor, inscribed "IU: Abbott: ne: pigres: 1656," weighs 17 cwt.; on the south porch is a sun-dial: the bench ends are carved with the double rose crowned of Henry VII. a single feather with label for Henry, Prince of Wales; a stag's head impaled with a crosier for the Abbey of Hartland, and various figures and emblems: the interior has been partially restored at a cost of £500, including the organ, erected in 1876: there are 203 sittings. The register dates from the year 1556. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £127, with residence, and including 65 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lord Clinton, and held since 1893 by the Rev. Edward John Jeffery M.A. of Ayerst Hall, Cambridge. The tithes, valued at £360, are held by Col. Martyn. Here is a chapel for Bible Christians, built in 1852, and a Baptist chapel, built in 1829. The Poor's Land charity produces £10 yearly. A priory of Austin Canons was founded here by Sir Robert Beauchamp, in the year 1220, and colonised from Hartland, and dedicated to SS. Mary, Edmond and Gregory; at the Dissolution there were six canons and the revenues were estimated at £127; some portions of the building, which adjoin the church, still remain, including a gable with three lofty lancets; the last prior was probably John Sturgin, buried at Monkleigh, 3 Nov. 1560; the estate is now the property of Lord Clinton. Horwood Barton is owned by Mr. John Norman and Ash Farm by Messrs. John and Samuel Fisher. Lord Clinton, who is lord of the manor, Mrs. Pukman, the Rev. Hubert G.

GEORGEHAM is a parish and village, pleasantly seated on the Bristol Channel, 3 miles north-west from Braunton station on the Ilfracombe branch of the London and South Western railway, 8 west-north-west from Barnstaple and $7\frac{1}{2}$ south-west from Ilfracombe, in the North Western division of the county, Braunton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. George is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, all cast by Abel Rudhall, of Gloucester, in 1748, except the second, which dates from 1765: immediately in front of the chancel is an altar tomb with the recumbent cross-legged effigy of a knight in hauberk and mail armour, covered with a cyclas, or long-skirted garment, and carrying a shield; the figure is supposed to represent Sir Mauger St. Aubyn (de St. Albino), ob. 22 Edward I. (1294): there are other memorials to the family of Harriss: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. Francis Hole, formerly rector here, and there is a sculptured reredos by Hems, of Exeter: the organ was erected in 1881 as a memorial to Frances, wife of the Rev. F. Hole: in 1876-7 the church was almost entirely rebuilt under the direction of the late Mr. Fowler, architect, of Louth, at a cost of £3,500, chiefly defrayed by T. Hole esq. and his relatives: in the churchyard is a tomb to Simon Gould and Julian, his wife, who died in 1817, in the 101st year of their respective ages, and the 75th year of their married life: there are 300 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1540; marriages and burials, 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £398, with residence and 28 acres of glebe, in the gift of trustees and held since 1886 by the Rev. William Henry George Francis Hole. The Baptist chapel, erected in 1884, has sittings for 120 persons. The charities include one of £400, left by Mr. William Vellacotts, half of the interest of which is applied to the education of poor children, the other half being distributed yearly amongst the poor: the interest of Chugg's charity of £400, amounting to £13 10s. is distributed by the rector and churchwardens on New Year's day to the poor of the parish. Earl Fortescue is lord of the manor. Major Richard Horwood Dunning, of Winkleigh, Mrs. Dennis and Mrs. Incedon-Webber, of St. Brannock's, Braunton, are the chief landowners. The soil is light; subsoil, sandy. The crops are barley de C. Stevens-Guille M.A. of Little Torrington, Mrs. Cummings, and the Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle are the chief landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, stone. The crops are the usual cereals. The area is 3,661 acres of land and 8 of water; rateable value, £2,407; the population in 1901 was 388 in the civil and 488 in the ecclesiastical parish in 1891.

STONE is a hamlet, 1 mile south-west from the church.

By Local Government Board Order, 14,830, which came into operation March 25, 1885, Eastcott, Bower and Muddy Pill were transferred to Bulkworthy, and by Order 14,831, at the same date Great Cleave, Little Cleave and Dovies were added to Newton St. Petrock, in Bideford union, and by the Divided Parishes Act, 1882, Milford has been transferred to Buckland Brewer, for civil purposes.

GIDLEIGH is a parish and village, on the river Teign, on the borders of Dartmoor, $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-west from Moreton Hampstead terminal station of a branch of the Great Western railway, about 8 south from North Tawton and 10 south-west from Yeoford Junction station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 8 south-east from Okehampton and 18 west from Exeter, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Crockerwell petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of the Holy Trinity is a building of stone in the Later Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel and nave, separated by a fine old screen, north porch and an embattled western tower containing 4 bells of the pre-Reformation period: some remains of oak screens still exist: the east and west windows are stained, and there are 80 sittings. The register dates from about the year 1658. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £83, with residence built in 1896-7, including 29 acres of glebe, in the gift of Alfred Guy Whipham esq. J.P. and held since 1900 by the Rev. Douglas McLaren M.A. of Oriel College, Oxford. There are two houses and 25 acres of land, the rent of which is applied for the repair and services of the church. Near the church are the ruins of an ancient castle of the 14th century, formerly the residence of the Proux or Prouz family, who were later of Lustleigh; a barrel-vaulted chamber or dungeon is still perfect, but the rest of the building is in ruins. Scorhill circle, which stands near the top of that name on Gidleigh common, is 88 feet in diameter and retains about 30 standing monoliths and a few prostrate stones out of its estimated original number of 55; a short distance below this circle and in North Teign is another supposed Druidical remain called the "Tolmen" or holed stone. Gidleigh Park, the seat of Alfred Guy Whipham esq. J.P. the lord of the manor, is magnificently wooded, and comprises within its limits some most romantic scenery. The principal landowners are Alfred G. Whipham esq. J.P., W. J. Brock esq. and the Rev. E. B. Layard M.A.; there are also several smaller landowners. The soil is sandy, in some places rich, and the subsoil is stone and gravel. The crops are wheat, barley, oats, turnips and potatoes. The area is 3,496 acres of land, more than 2,000 of which are unenclosed common, and 11 of water; rateable value, £977; the population in 1901 was 121.

GITTISHAM is a parish and village, on the river Otter, and near the road from London to Exeter, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Honiton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, $3\frac{1}{2}$ north-east from Ottery St. Mary and 14 north-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, East Budleigh hundred, Honiton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church is a building of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel with aisle, nave of three bays, south aisle, north porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock, fixed in 1899 in place of a former one at a cost of £75, and 3 bells, re-hung in 1898 at a cost of £66: the roof left stairs remain, but the screen, existing till after 1840, has now disappeared: in the aisle is a fine monument of various marbles with kneeling effigies and a long rhyming inscription to Henry Beaumont esq. ob. April 1, 1591, and Elizabeth (Bluet) his wife; above the monument is a shield of arms; this aisle appears to have been built by Humphry Beaumont, father of the preceding, and the capitals of the piers of its arcade display the arms of Beaumont, Merton, Stowell and other families, and the initials "E.H." "H.B.": on the floor is a slab inscribed to Humfrey Beaumont esq. ob. Aug. 12, 1572, and there is also a memorial to the Putt family, 1686: the chancel was restored in 1869: there are four stained windows, one in the chancel being a memorial erected by Mrs. F. A. Marker, to her husband, the Rev. Thomas John Marker. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1571; marriages and burials, 1559. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £225, including 47 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Richard Marker esq. and held since 1872 by the Rev. Frederick Thomas Salmon, of St. Bees. The Rectory House is a fine residence and a prominent object for many miles round. There are charities of £180 yearly value, principally derived from a legacy of £800, bequeathed by Henry Beaumont esq. in 1590. Combe, a fine old mansion, was the residence, for nearly 200 years, of the Putts: the family is now extinct, and the property having descended to the Marker family through the female line, is now the residence of Richard Marker esq. D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor and chief landowner. Pomeroy is the residence of Mrs. Hayhurst-France. The soil is clayey; the subsoil varies, being mostly marl and stony clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, roots and pasturage. The area is 2,232 acres; rateable value £3,609; the population in 1901, including a hamlet of Buckerell added for civil purposes March 24, 1884, by Local Government Board Order 16,349, was 336.

GOODLEIGH is a parish and village, on the river Yeo, which bounds the parish on the northern side and flows into the Taw; 3 miles east-by-north from Barnstaple station on the Torrington branch of the London and South Western railway and $1\frac{1}{2}$ south from Chelfham station on the Lynton and Barnstaple railway, in the North Western division of the county, Braunton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwill, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Gregory is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, dating from 1743 to 1828: there are two monuments to the Acland family, d. 1633-55: the east window is stained: the church was rebuilt in 1881-2, at a cost of about £2,500, and will seat 181 persons. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £160, and 35 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Edward Bouchier Savile esq. of Okehampton, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Frederick Jarratt, of King's College, London. Here are Congregational and Bible Christian chapels. Acland's charity amounts to 26s. Gage Hodge esq. of Pounds, near Plymouth, is the principal landowner. The soil is loamy; the subsoil, gravelly. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,162 acres; rateable value, £1,595; the population in 1901 was 253.

HACCOMBE is an ecclesiastical parish, 3 miles east-south-east from Newton Abbot station on the Great Western railway, 4 south-west from Teignmouth, 2 south from the banks of the river Teign, in a detached part of Wonford hundred, in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union and highway district, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Under the provisions of the "Divided Parishes Act," by Local Government Board Order 16,371, Combe-in-Teignhead was annexed to this parish 25th March, 1885, which for all civil purposes is known as Hacombe-with-Combe. The church of St. Blaise, standing in the grounds of Hacombe House, and dedicated July 19, 1328, is a small edifice of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle and a western turret containing one bell: there are six memorial windows to members of the Hacombe and Carew families, some curious screen work and a pulpit and communion table of carved oak: in the chancel is a fine effigy of a knight, cross-legged, in a suit of mail, richly damasked and covered by a cyclas, or long-skirted tunic: on the left arm is a shield bearing three bends; the figure has been assumed to represent Sir Stephen de Hacombe (1250-1310); there are also two effigies of ladies in hoods and whimples and flowing dresses, of the same period; one of these, carrying in the left hand a book, is conjectured to represent Margaret, wife of the knight just mentioned; the other, bearing in the right hand a shield of arms, "arg. 3 bends, sa." may be Cicely, their daughter, wife of John Leredekene; in the north aisle is an altar tomb with effigies of a knight in plate armour, basinet and camail, and a lady in richly-ornamented head-dress, cote-hardie and mantle, supposed to represent Sir Hugh de Courtenay of Boconnoc and Hacombe, ob. Mar. 5, 1425, and his 2nd wife Philippa (Leredekene); there is also a smaller alabaster effigy of a youth, 2 feet 3 inches in length, in tight-fitting hose, tunic and belt, the workmanship of which is exceedingly fine, and there are a number of extremely interesting brasses; the earliest of these, in the chancel, to Sir Nicholas Carew, ob. Sept. 13, 1469, has effigy in plate armour, four shields of arms and inscription; the next is a similarly designed but later brass to Thomas Carew esq. ob. Mar. 28, 1586; the third is a fine effigy of Maria (Huddy) his wife, ob. Nov. 19, 1589, a shield of Carew impaling Huddy and inscription; there is also a brass in the north aisle, with effigy

HALBERTON is a parish and village, near the Grand Western canal, and on the road from Tiverton to Wellington (Somerset), 2 miles north-west from Tiverton Junction station on the Great Western railway, and 3 east from Tiverton, in the North Eastern division of the county, Halberton hundred, Cullompton petty sessional division, union and county court district of Tiverton, rural deanery of Tiverton East and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew is a fine building of stone, in the Late Decorated style of the early part of the 13th century, and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells: the church retains a fine carved oak screen, highly enriched, c. 1420, and a pulpit of the same date. In 1881 some minor restorations were made, and in 1887 the chancel was restored, the floor being rein stiff-bodied dress, ruff and veil, to Elizabeth (Hill), wife of John Carew esq. ob. 1611; over the figure is an impaled shield of Carew and Hill, and below, an inscription; the fifth brass commemorates Thomas Carew esq. ob. 6th, and Anne his wife, ob. 8th Dec. 1656, and is elaborately engraved with kneeling effigies of both and of their six children, figures of angels and emblems of mortality; above, within an oval, is an impaled shield with supporters, crest and motto, flanked by two other shields, and below is an inscription partly in rhyme; there are besides various other memorials to the Carews, including Sir Thomas Carew bart. d. April, 1805, and Jane (Smallwood) his wife, d. 1838; Walter Palk Carew, capt. R.H.G. d. June 14, 1873, Sir Walter Palk Carew bart. d. Jan. 27, 1874, and Anne Frances (Taylor) his wife, d. June 8, 1861: on the porch door are nailed two horseshoes, the legend attached to which is that a Carew of Hacombe having wagered one of the Champenownes of Dartington a manor of land that he would swim his horse the greater distance into Torbay, not only won the bet, but saved the life of his antagonist, whereupon, in commemoration of the event, he affixed his horse's shoes to the church door: there are 120 sittings. No register can be found prior to 1813. The living is a rectory, the rector being styled the archpriest, gross yearly value £362, with 5 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Misses Carew, and held since 1896 by the Rev. William Richard Villiers LL.B. of Christ's College, Cambridge, who is also sinecure rector of Wisterton, Herefs. and resides at Brookesby, Newton Abbot. Hacombe House, the seat of the Misses Carew (daughters of the late Sir Walter Palk Carew bart.), who are ladies of the manor and sole landowners, is a handsome residence, standing in an extensive and well-wooded park, and is approached from Newton by a long and beautiful drive. The soil is a red loam; the subsoil is red gravel. The area of the civil parish of Hacombe-with-Combe is 2,546 acres of land, 1 of water, 35 of tidal water and 161 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,226; the population in 1901 was 358.

paved, the walls ashlarred with Corse Hill stone and red Devonshire marble, and a reareds of carved oak erected and surmounted by a triptych containing paintings on panels, of the "Annunciation," the "Crucifixion," and the "Nativity," and the folding portions figures of saints, the whole costing about £500: in 1892 an eagle lectern, finely carved in oak, was provided, and in 1894 a stained window placed in the north chapel. In 1898-9 the church was re-seated throughout in oak, and re-floored in wood, at a cost of nearly £900: there are sittings for 500 persons. In 1886 an addition of a third of an acre was made to the churchyard and consecrated. The register dates from the year 1606. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value about £400, including 40 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Bristol, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Edmund Ironside Gregory

M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, rural dean of Tiverton East and prebendary of Exeter. The Mission church at Ash Thomas, with Sunday school attached, was erected in 1877, at a cost of £600, and has 100 sittings. There is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1816, a Bible Christian chapel, erected in 1860, and a Baptist chapel at Ash Thomas, built in 1890. The charities include N. Spicer's of £70 a year, and a number of smaller charities, amounting together to about £48 a year, and administered by a body of trustees. Bridwell, the seat of Richard Hall Clarke esq. D.L., J.P. whose ancestors have resided there since the 15th century, is the principal house in the parish. R. H. Clarke esq. who is lord of the manor of Halberton Boys, George Coombe esq. William Wyndham esq. of Dinton House, Reginald Francis Hill esq. and Mrs. Partridge are the principal landowners. The soil is rich, and the subsoil, clayey. The chief crops are wheat, barley, cereals and grass, with some fruit. The acreage is 7,355, exclusive of coppice land—total, 7,521 of land and 32 of water; rateable value, £14,306; the population in 1901 was 1,221.

By a Local Government Board Order, 16,306, which came into operation March 24, 1884, a detached part of this parish, known as the tithing of Chief Loman, was united to Uplowman for civil purposes.

HALWILL, near Holsworthy, is a village and parish, with a junction station $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east from the village, on the main line of the London and South Western railway from Exeter to Launceston and Tresmeer, with a branch from this place to Holsworthy; the new section of the main line, $1\frac{3}{4}$ miles long, was opened from this place to Launceston in 1886 and the extension to Tresmeer was opened May 1, 1893; there are stations at Ashwater and Tower Hill; Halwill is 7 miles south-east from Holsworthy, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Holsworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district and in the rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of SS. Peter and James is an edifice in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles at the angles containing 5 bells, all cast in 1763, by licence from the bishop, except the 4th, which dates from 1823: the church was partly restored in 1876-9 by W. J. Harris esq. at a cost of £1,300, and affords 150 sittings: at the south entrance to the churchyard is a lych gate. The register dates from the year 1695. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £185, including 125 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Kenneth Alexander Lake B.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford. There is a Baptist chapel with Sunday school. The manor was granted by King Edward IV. to John Fortescue, ancestor of James Tynte Agg Gardner, late M.P. for Cheltenham: at a later period it was in the possession of the Arscotte and is now the property and the house is the residence, of William James Harris esq. J.P. who purchased it of their descendant, Sir Arscott O. Molesworth bart. Messrs. Durrant and Elias Spry, P. H. Gowan esq. and Mrs. Ham, of Foxcombe, are the principal landowners. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and roots. The acreage is 3,472; rateable value, £1,519; the population in 1901 was 434.

HARBERTON is a parish and village, seated in a pleasant valley, through which the river Harbourne flows, about $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Totnes station on the Great Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Coleridge, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, Totnes union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew is a fine edifice of stone in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch with parvise and a lofty western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock with two dials and chimes, the gift of Sir R. Harvey, Kt. placed in 1898, and bells, all cast by Thomas Bilbie in 1762, and re-hung, 1896, by Mr. Harry Stokes, of Woodbury, the 4th bell being at the same time re-cast by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, London: the chancel retains three canopied stone stalls and a piscina, and there are two mural brasses on black marble, erected by the late Major Trist, of Tristford, in memory of his two sons, who died in India and the West Indies: the stone pulpit is octagonal, richly carved with foliage, and has figures of apostles in niches: the fine wood screen, 41 feet in length, and containing eleven bays exclusive of doors, was thoroughly restored at the cost of the late Mrs. Pen-darves, of Tristford, about 1870, and there are two light parlores: in 1896 new windows were erected on the south side to the memory of Major Trist; and a mural tablet erected to the Rev. H. Bartholomew, late vicar, who died April 18, 1896, after a residence of 37 years: the font is Anglo-Norman. In the churchyard is a large marble mausoleum belonging to the Harvey family, and surmounted by a tall cross; within are three marble sarcophagi, one of which contains the remains of the son and heir of Sir Robert Harvey Kt. who died at school in 1895, and also bears a life-size recumbent effigy, executed by Hems, of Exeter: in the churchyard also stands a cross, restored by Hems, at the cost of Sir R. Harvey: in 1898 a reredos, of alabaster and mosaic, was presented by the Hon. Mrs. and Miss Dorothy Jervoise Smith. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1623; marriages 1625; burials, 1621. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, including 79 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1896 by the Rev. William George Mallett, who is also a surrogate. The vicarial tithes were commuted in 1842 for £535, of which sum £80 a year is paid to the vicar of Harbertonford, and the rectorial for £400 yearly; the latter belong to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, but are leased to W. H. Helyar esq. There is a Mission chapel at East Leigh, erected in 1894. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. In the valley of the Harbourne is Hill Mill, the edge tool manufactory of Messrs. Knapman and Son. The parish lands, which have been vested in trust from an early period, comprise several houses and gardens in the village and 18 acres of land, called "Cockwells," together producing about £68 a year, part of which is applied in aid of the church rates, and the remainder distributed among the poor of the parish at Christmas and Easter. A blacksmith's shop, house, orchard and garden, let for £8, were left about 1630, by William Huxham, for the benefit of the poor. Here is an almshouse of ten small rooms for as many poor people, built about 1580, in pursuance of the will of Henry Wise; other charities amount to £20 yearly. In this parish are rocks of excessively hard trapstone, and a remarkable metamorphic rock, named the "Berry-stone," consisting of organic remains, coral &c.: here are also quarries producing blue slate. Harberton gives the title of Viscount (1791) in the Irish peerage to the family of Pomeroy. Tristford is the seat of Francis Warren Trist esq. who will attain his majority and come into occupation in 1903. The manor was anciently held by the Valletorts, but the land is now all freehold. The principal landowners are the Trist trustees, Rev. T. C. Lewis, Rev. W. D. Rundle, Rev. William Edward Paige M.A. of Paignton, Miss Louisa Paige, Sir Robert Harvey, of Dundridge, Charles William Tayleur esq. of 97 Cadogan gardens, London S.W. the trustees of the late Duchess of Cleveland (d. 1900), Richard Huxham Watson esq. of Brook, Totnes, and the Misses Carew, of Hacombe. The soil is generally light and fertile; sub-Mrs. White. The soil is generally light and fertile; sub-soil, dunstone and slate. The crops are wheat, barley and roots, but the land is chiefly in pasture. The parish includes the following hamlets, viz.:—Belsford, 1 north-west; East Leigh, 1 south-west; West Leigh, 1½ south-west; Luscombe, 2 south-east and Englebourne or Inglebourne, 1 south. The acreage is 5,605; assessable value, £8,394; the population in 1891 was 1,278 in the civil parish, which includes Harbertonford, and 678 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order, 16,308, which came into operation March 24, 1884, Lower Washbourne Farm was transferred from Harberton to Ashprington for civil purposes.

Parish Clerk, Frederick Blight.

HARFORD is a parish and village, on the river Erme and on the edge of Dartmoor, 2½ miles north from Ivy-bridge station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 13 north-east from Plymouth and 14 south-east from Tavistock, in the Southern division of the county, Ermington hundred, Ermington and Plympton petty sessional division, Plympton St. Mary union, county court district of East Stonehouse, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Petrock is a small but ancient building of granite in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, separated from the nave by an arcade of four arches, north transept, south porch, and a low embattled western tower containing 3 bells: the chancel retains a fine trefoil-headed piscina, and a priest's doorway, and at the end of the aisle is a hagioscope; the font is a plain work of granite, with an octagonal basin: in the church is a brass, with effigy in plate armour, inscriptions and shield of arms, to Thomas Williams esq. Speaker of the House of Commons, ob. 1 July, 1566; also a monument, with effigies in brass, to John Prideaux, of Stowford in this parish, and his wife Agnes, with seven sons and three daughters, erected in 1639 by their 4th son, John Prideaux D.D. a native of Stowford, Regius Professor of Divinity at Oxford, rector of Exeter College, and bishop of Worcester, 1641-50: the nave has a ribbed waggon roof, resting on carved and decorated wall plates; that on the north side bears the legend, "I.H.S. helpe us. Amen. Walter Hele, p'son, 1539. I.H.S. salus"; from the wall plates spring carved branches continued in twining stems along the ribs and expanding on either side into gracefully designed leafage: the church has been restored since 1877 at a cost of £865, and affords 200 sittings. The churchyard is divided into two parts by a wall, one of which belongs to the owners of Stowford House. The register dates from the year 1724; there are churchwardens' books dating from 1695, and in the church is a complete list of rectors from 1262. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £150, including 50 acres of glebe, with residence, built by the Rev. W. Sanders, rector in 1843, in the gift of J. J. MacAndrew esq. and held since 1897 by the Rev. John Arthur Uran B.A. of Oxford University. The rectory house retains a fine old carved porch dating from the reign of Charles I. and once forming the entrance to the ancient residence. The romantic scenery at Tor Rocks, in the valley of the Erme and Harford Bridge, attracts numerous pleasure parties during the season. Here was born 17 Sept. 1578, John Prideaux, bishop of Worcester, who died at Bredon, Worcs. 20 July, 1650. Harford Hall, now a farmhouse, was once the residence of Elizabeth (Chudleigh), wife of Evelyn (Pierrepoint), 2nd Duke of Kingston, who became notorious through her trial before the peers in 1776 for bigamy. Lukesland, about a mile south of the village, is the seat of James Johnston MacAndrew esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is light; the chief crops are corn and roots. The parish contains 2,104 acres of inclosed land and 1,300 acres moor-land, and 14 of water; rateable value, £2,188; the population in 1891 was 172.

HARPFORD is a small village and parish, on the east bank of the river Otter, and adjoins the road from Lyme Regis, Dorset, to Plymouth, close to Newton Poppleford station on the branch line from Tipton St. John to Budleigh Salterton; Tipton St. John station is on the Sidmouth branch of the London and South Western railway, 3½ miles north-west from Sidmouth, 11 east-south-east from Exeter and 9 south-west from Honiton, in the Eastern division of the county, East Budleigh hundred, Ottery petty sessional division, Honiton union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Nicholas is a small building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the church was entirely restored in 1884, at a cost of £1,500, and a new peal of 5 bells was hung in 1886:

there are 129 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1569, marriages and burials from 1638. The living is a vicarage, with that of Fen Ottery annexed, joint net yearly value £173, including 23 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Hon. Mark Rolle, and held since 1891 by the Rev. George Edward Francis Molineux M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. Harpford Wood, a short distance east of the village, consists of about 180 acres of fine oak and beech trees and is a favourite resort for picnic parties. Harpford House is the seat of Mrs. Peppin. Southerton House is the residence of William Powell Branson esq. The manor was anciently held by the Dinham family; the old house, called "Court Place," is now a farmhouse, and is said to have been the county gaol previous to the establishment of the gaol at Bicton. The Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle, who is lord of the manor, and the trustees of the late Henry Hoskyn Peppin esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is sand and clay; subsoil, sand, gravel and clay. The crops are chiefly barley and roots. The area is 1,533 acres; rateable value, £1,880; the population in 1901 was 213.

BOWD, one mile east-by-south, BURROW and SOUTHERTON, one mile north-west, are hamlets of this parish.

HARTLAND (or Harton), by repute a prescriptive borough, is a small town and extensive parish, on the coast of Bude bay, 13 miles west-by-south from the Bideford station on the Torrington branch of the London and South Western railway, in the North Western division of the county, Hartland hundred, Bideford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Hartland, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Nectan is a cruciform building of stone, in the Late Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel with north chapel, nave, aisles, transepts, north and south porches, and an embattled western tower, 128 feet in height, with pinnacles and a sun-dial, and containing 6 bells, all re-cast in 1826; in 1886 one bell was again re-cast, and the whole re-hung: the tower serves as a landmark to mariners: the church retains a richly-carved rood-screen of the Early Perpendicular period, extending completely across the church, and in excellent condition; there are also good parclose screens, a stone altar table, a piscina and sedilia and on the north side a credence niche: the Norman font is enriched with grotesquely-carved masks, and there is a Norman doorway on the north side of the church: in the church is an altar-tomb, with brass inscription, 'to Alice, wife of Thomas Docton esq. a benefactress to this parish, ob. 1619; the tomb also bears an impaled shield, with crest and mantling and texts of Scripture: there are other memorials to Nicholas Luttrell, ob. 1637: Paul Orchard, ob. 1740, and Rebecca Orchard, ob. 1765: in a room over the vestry are preserved portions of the old panelled pulpit, with the inscription "God Save King James"; and in the parvise of the north porch the old parish stocks are kept: the church was restored about 1850, when several stained windows were inserted at the expense of the late Lewis William Buck esq. the late Sir George S. Stucley bart. and the late Lady Elizabeth, his wife: there are 580 sittings. In the churchyard stands a cross, erected in May 1897, at the cost of the late Maj.-Gen. John Julius Johnstone, from the designs of Messrs. Farmer and Brindley, of London, who also carried out the work: it consists of an octagonal shaft of Portland stone, raised on three steps, and surmounted by a square gabled head: the cross, including the base, is 15 feet in height, and is adorned with carvings and inscriptions. During the excavations for the foundation of the cross, a florin of Queen Elizabeth, a very early font, and an altar slab, bearing five crosses, were discovered. The register dates from the year 1558 and contains a reference in the Commonwealth period to William Morrice, afterwards knighted, and Secretary of State to Charles II. There are also churchwardens' account books from the close of the 16th to the early part of the 18th century, containing curious details and a list of defensive weapons belonging to the church. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £150, with residence and 4 acres of glebe, in the gift of and held since 1859 by the Rev. Thomas How Chops B.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. The impropriate tithes, amounting to about £400 yearly, are held by the Misses Yonge, of Rockbourne, Salisbury. St. John's, a chapel of ease, built in 1839, on the site of the old town hall, consists of chancel, nave and a porch on the east side, over which there is a bell turret containing a clock and one bell: it was thoroughly restored in 1882, at a cost of £200, and has two stained windows: there are sittings for 300 persons. There are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels in the town; Wesleyan chapels at Meddon and Elmscott, and Bible Christian chapels at Hartland, Eddistone, and Harbour respectively. The church lands, given by Hugh Prust and John Dennis 27th of Oct. 1621 (18th James I.), produce about £60 annually, and are applied by trustees or feoffees towards the aiding, helping, supporting, amending, sustaining and maintaining the parish church of Stoke St. Nectan. There are also 4 almshouses for 8 aged widows, attached to which are lands, producing about £6 yearly for repairs. Paul Orchard esq. left by will £21 for coal and £10 a year for bread for the poor of Hartland. His nephew, the Rev. Thomas Hooper Morrison, also left £3 a year for coals for the poor. The town lands, through negligence, have greatly decreased in income; they once produced £60 yearly, but now only about £30; this sum, however, keeps the town pumps in repair, and also the clock. The lighting is done by voluntary subscription. Through the fault of former portreeves and officers, the charter and several documents have been lost, and many conventional rents, through not having been collected, have lapsed and have been claimed as private property. The portreeve, burgesses and jury have been abolished, and in lieu of these, seven trustees (elected by ballot of the inhabitants) have been appointed under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners. An annual market for sheep and cattle is held here on the second Saturday in March; and fairs for cattle are held on Easter Wednesday and September 25th, and at the West Country Inn, also in this parish, on the first Wednesday in August and on the third Thursday in October. The Hartland and Clovelly Cottage Garden Society, established in 1857, has an exhibition here on the last Wednesday in July, annually.

Hartland Point, 4 miles from the town, is a fine, bold headland, rising about 350 feet above the level of the sea and forming the north-western extremity of the county; a portion of the headland, about 250 feet in length and generally 30 feet wide, forms a tolerably level plateau, the cliffs surrounding which descend abruptly for quite 300 feet. The view from the point, both seawards and inland, is magnificent: a lighthouse, standing at the foot of the point, was built in 1874, and the four-wick dioptric light, which may be seen for nearly 20 miles, gives two white flashes and one red flash every 30 seconds; two caloric engines blow a fog horn, which gives high and low blasts in quick succession for 2½ seconds every two minutes: here also is a signal station, with a 45 feet semaphore and a hut for the chief boatman in charge and three men; this and the lighthouse are connected by telephone to Hartland town. Arrangements are made with the Post Office Telegraph Department, by means of which casualties at sea can be reported by telegraph to owners of vessels and others from the lighthouse at Hartland. Near South Hole is the headland called "Henberry Beacon," where are remains of a cliff castle, once consisting of well-fortified earthworks. The cliff walk passes under the semi-conical cap of St. Katherine's Tor to Milford Beach, where a cascade descends in three successive waterfalls: the cliff at the Tor is gradually wasting away: upon the extreme summit were discovered remains of a Roman villa, which once stood at some distance from the edge; it is now separated from the mainland by a broad belt of turf, on which is built a massive and very ancient wall. John Moreman S.T.P. a very distinguished clergyman, was born at South Hole, in this parish, and educated at Exeter College, Oxford; he was admitted rector of the church of Holy Trinity, Exeter, 26 Sept. 1528, and on 19 June, 1544, was collated to a canonry in Exeter cathedral.

The abbey of Hartland or Hertland was founded in the reign of Hen. II. by Geoffrey de Dinham as a house of Austin Canons in place of a college of secular canons established here in connection with the church of St. Nectan by Githa, sister of Sweyn, and mother of Harold II. The foundation was confirmed between 1157 and 1184 by Bartholomew, Bishop of Exeter, and the Dinham and their representatives continued to be patrons of the abbey up to the time of its surrender by Thomas Pope, 16th abbot, 21 Feb. 1539; there were then six canons, and revenues estimated at £306. The site was granted 30 Jan. 1546-7, to William Abbott esq. sergeant of the king's cellar, in whose family it remained till 1609, when it passed to the Luttrells: from this family it passed by marriage to Paul Orchard esq. on whose death, intestate, in 1740, it descended to his only son, Paul Orchard esq. and at his death, March 1st, 1812, it passed by his will to his nephew, the Rev. Thomas Hooper Morrison, of Yeo Vale, on whose death, without issue, December 10th, 1824, it became the property of the last-named Mr. Orchard's great-nephew, Lewis William Buck esq. of Moreton, Bideford, M.P. for North Devon, whose only son, George Stucley Buck esq. afterwards the late Sir George Stucley Bart. succeeded, and at his death it passed to his eldest son, Lieut.-Col. Sir W. L. S. Stucley Bart. the present owner. There are two common seals, both circular, bearing the head of the patron saint, Nectan, and the letters "Sigillum Nectani." Hartland Abbey, the seat of Lt.-Col. Sir William Lewis Stucley Bart. D.L., J.P. occupies the site of the abbey of Hartland, and is seated in a beautifully-wooded valley and surrounded by a park, which is well stocked with deer and traversed by a trout stream. The mansion, erected about 1779, incorporates in the right wing a portion of the abbey buildings; the hall, 72 feet in length, and the cloisters, at that time perfect and unaltered, were partially destroyed, but a portion of the cloisters was retained and included in the basement, and over one of the arches is an inscription in Lombardic characters, recording the rebuilding of the cloisters by Abbot John, of Exeter, 1308-29. During the alterations, the monument of a Knight Hospitaller, tombstones, tiles, and fragments of carved stone were met with. The drawing and dining rooms of the modern house are spacious panelled chambers adorned with frescoes, representing scenes in early Irish history and incidents in connection with the various families holding manorial rights here during the Middle Ages: the chimney pieces and doors are of magnificently-carved oak, and exhibit the family arms and crest with the motto "Bellement et Hardiment" on raised panels: the ceilings are richly painted. Galsham and Greenlake are now the property of Maj. J. M. Kirkwood, of Yeo Vale, Alwington, and Docton, once the seat of a family of that name, is now owned by the Rev. H. G. Morse M.A. and Captain A. H. Morse J.P. of Copdock, Suffolk. Lieut.-Col. Sir W. L. Stucley Bart. is lord of the chief manor and of that of South Hole, and — Martyn is lord of the manor of Stoke. The principal landowners are Sir W. L. S. Stucley Bart. the Rev. T. H. Chope B.A. vicar, and Messrs. Joseph Hooper, James Lawrence Haynes, John Thompson Haynes, James Seymour Haynes, Henry Haynes, Peter Heard, of Plymouth, John Dennis,

J. Berriman, R. P. Chope esq. the trustees of the late John Ching, Mr. James Colwill and F. J. Hext esq. of Tredethy, Cornwall, Mr. R. R. Heard, of Exeter, William Carter Pedler esq. of Higher Burstone, Zeal Monachorum, the Rev. Erisey John Porter B.A. of Morwenstowe, Cornwall, Michael Vine, Mrs. Hamlyn, of Clovelly Court, Miss Carter and Mrs. Prust. The soil and subsoil are extremely various; in the northern division of the parish the latter is chiefly of shelving rock, whilst in the southern division it is yellow clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and roots. Sheep and cattle are extensively bred in this parish. The area is 17,304 acres of land, 3 of water and 594 of foreshore; rateable value, £7,870; the population in 1901 was 1,621.

The following are hamlets in the parish, with their distances from the town:—STOKE, 1½ miles west; EDDISTONE, 2 south; PHILHAM, 1½ south; BROWNSHAM, 2½ north-east; GAWLISH, 2½ north; MEDDON, 6; ELMSCOTT, 3 south-west; MILFORD, 3 south-west; HARDISWORTHY, 4 south-west; SOUTHHOLE, 4½ south-west; GALSHAM, 2 south-west; and HARTLAND QUAY, 2½ west.

HATHERLEIGH is a market town and parish, on the river Lew, near its confluence with the Torridge, 7 miles north-east from Ashbury station on the Okehampton and Holsworthy branch of the London and South Western railway, 9 west from North Tawton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 8 north-west from Okehampton, 12 south-east from Torrington, 18 south-east from Bideford, 28 north-west from Exeter and 200 from London; it is the head of a petty sessional division, and in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Okehampton union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. About a mile from the town is a bridge of 3 arches over the river Torridge, built in the year 1812, of freestone quarried in the parish, at the expense of the county. The town is governed by a portreeve and other officers, elected annually at the court-leet held within the borough. In the years 1840 and 1846 it suffered from fire, but most of the houses were afterwards rebuilt and the streets much improved; it is lighted with gas by a company, formed in 1868: there is a public pump, but the town is now supplied with water pumped from a spring in Hall meadow into an elevated service reservoir, and from there conveyed by gravitation to the town. The town has been perfectly drained by the Rural District Council at a cost of £3,000. Powers have been obtained to construct a railway from Okehampton to Torrington, passing through Hatherleigh, at which place there will be a station. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient edifice of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles and a spire 50 feet high and containing 8 bells, of which 6 were cast by Mr. Thomas Bibbie, of Cullompton, in the year 1812, and 2 by Taylor, of Loughboro', in 1883: a clock, which chimes every three hours, was added in 1864, at a cost of about £130: in the south aisle is a monument to John Lethbridge esq. of Deckport, who died in the year 1706, and was a benefactor to this parish, and a memorial window to James Harris Veale esq. of Passaford, d. 1876; in the same aisle is another window to Emily, wife of the above, d. 1879: in the north aisle are memorial windows to Frances Elizabeth, wife of the late Joseph Oldham esq. of Strawbridge, and Evelyn Camilla Hooper; and there is another in the tower to Louisa Elizabeth Oldham: the brass lectern was presented by Joseph Oldham esq.: the roof is finely carved and there is a carved pulpit: since 1881 the church has been much improved both internally and externally: there are 550 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, including 51 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Arthur Clayfield Ireland esq. J.P. and Miss Mary Louisa Ireland, alternately, and held since 1878 by the Rev. John Waters Banks M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. There is a Baptist chapel in High street, with 250 sittings, and a Bible Christian chapel and school room, in Bridge street, erected in 1880, at a cost of £600, with 280 sittings. The Police Court, in South street, is a stone building, with large Court room, where the petty sessions for the division are held. The old Market houses were burnt in the year 1840, and a new building erected in the same year. The market is held on Tuesday, by charter of 5th of William and Mary. Four cattle fairs are held in this town—on the 21st of May, the 22nd of June, the 4th of September and the 8th of November; should any of those dates happen to fall on a Saturday, Sunday or Monday, then the fair is held on the Tuesday following; one of these fairs is held under the same charter as the market. The Public Subscription Rooms were built in the year 1821, and will hold 200 persons. The Hatherleigh and District Working Men's Constitutional Club, in Market street, formed in 1895, has a library containing 100 volumes and a reading room. The Manor Hall, built by Ernest Joseph Oldham esq. the present lord of the manor, is in Bridge street. There are two benefit societies—the Union Society for males, established in 1763, and the Union Society for females, established in 1793; there is also a lodge of Odd Fellows, belonging to the Manchester Unity. Besides Lethbridge's benefaction of £100, Walter Bennett gave £100 and Richard Lucas £50, the interest of all these sums being distributed yearly in bread and clothing to such poor persons as receive no parochial relief: Roger Walter gave £30, which has been expended in purchasing an annuity of £2, and Joseph Gliddon gave 10s. yearly out of his lands in Bulkworthy; these two last sums are added to the former interest and disposed of as above: Charles Luxmore esq. gave £100, and the Rev. Cradock Glascott £50 towards the education of poor children; the interest is applied to the support of the Church Sunday school. Jasper Mayne D.D. chaplain to King Charles II. and archdeacon of Chichester, noted as a preacher and dramatic writer, was born in this town in the year 1604, and died in 1672. Reed House, the property of Samuel Petrick esq. is the residence of Miss Leishman. Hatherleigh Moor, a waste land of about 430 acres, a short distance from the town, was part of the old Saxon borough; it belongs to the lord of the borough, who is also lord of the manor; on this moor the inhabitants of the borough have a right of grazing their cattle and cutting furze for fuel: here also is St. John's Well, the water from which was formerly used at baptisms: in 1860 a monument was erected on a piece of land adjoining the moor, by public subscription, at a cost of £400, to Lieut.-Colonel Morris C.B. late of Fishleigh, in this parish, who distinguished himself at Balaklava, October 25th, 1854. The manor formerly belonged to Tavistock Abbey, and after the dissolution of the monasteries was granted to the Arscott family; in 1788 it passed by will to Sir William Molesworth, by whom it was sold to the late Mr. Joseph Oldham, of Caynham Court, Salop, and by him bequeathed to his cousin Joseph, eldest son of the late George Edward Laing esq. of St. Albans, Herts, who assumed by royal licence the name and arms of Oldham in lieu of his patronymic. Ernest Joseph Oldham esq. B.A., D.L., J.P. of Strawbridge, is the present lord of the manor and borough of Hatherleigh. Courts leet and courts baron are still held. Fishleigh belongs to Thos. Gascoigne esq.; Langabere belonged to the ancestors of the Hon. P. B. Brett, late M.P. for Falmouth, and is now the property of Mrs. Andrews, of Pressland House. Passaford, purchased by the Rev. W. Veale, rector of Idlesleigh in 1620, is the property and residence of his descendant, H. M. Veale esq. Ernest Joseph Oldham esq. Mrs. Andrews, of Pressland House, Thomas Gascoigne esq. Henry Mallet Veale esq. of Passaford, and Viscount Portman are the principal landowners. The parish contains 7,041 acres of land and 57 of water; rateable value, £5,741; the population in 1901 was 1,293.

HAWKCHURCH is a parish, transferred from Dorsetshire to Devonshire by a Local Government Board Provisional Order Confirmation (No. 3), 1896; it is on the borders of Dorsetshire, and bounded on the north by the river Axe, 5 miles south from Chard Junction station on the London and South Western railway, 5 east-north-east from Axminster, and 8 south from Chard, in the petty sessional division of Axminster, partly in the hundred of Uggescombe, and partly in the hundred of Cerno, union and county court district of Axminster, rural deanery of Bridport (Lyme portion), archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. John the Baptist, rebuilt (except the tower) in 1862, at a cost of about £2,000, is a building of stone in the Norman and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and 5 bells: the east window is stained, and there is a memorial window to Joseph and Caroline Dawson, and some memorial tablets: the church will seat 300 persons. The register dates from the year 1663, and is in a good state of preservation. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £512, with 50 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Keble College, Oxford, and held since 1893 by the Rev. Walter Farrar B.D. of Keble College, Oxford. A Congregational chapel was erected in 1878. There are charities of about £12 yearly for the poor. Lambert's Castle is a lofty hill (on which are traces of ancient intrenchments), partly in this parish and partly in Whitchurch, from which extensive views can be obtained, including parts of the counties of Dorset, Devon, and Somerset and the south coast. William Charlesworth J.P. who is lord of the manor of Phillyholme, John Churchill Stuckey Langdon esq. of Parrocks lodge, Chard, Thomas Barns esq. of Tillworth House, and Maj. Gerard Thomas Noel, of Wyde Court, are the principal landowners. The soil is a light clay; subsoil, gravelly, with some greensand. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and apples, with some land in pasturage. The area is 3,987 acres; rateable value, £4,374; the population in 1891 of this parish, which consists of two tithings, was 571.

Wyde Court, the residence of Maj. Gerard Thomas Noel, was formerly held by the Moore and Wyndham families; it is a mansion of the Elizabethan period, and has over the main entrance and elsewhere various heraldic insignia, and above a window adjoining the porch is a Latin inscription on lead, with the initials T.M. and the date 1593; local tradition has it that King Charles II. once stopped here for a few hours' rest and refreshment, and a chamber is pointed out as having been occupied by his Majesty: the dining and drawing rooms and one bedroom are panelled in black oak, the wainscot reaching from the floor to the ceiling; the mantels are richly carved, and display the arms of the Wyndham and Moore families: in a chamber next the royal bedroom is a stain upon the floor which cannot be obliterated, and this room has the reputation of being haunted. In a skirmish between the Parliamentary forces and the army of the king, under Prince Maurice, then encamped at Lambert's Castle, a Col. Hellyer, the king's commander, was taken prisoner and hanged in a field, which is still known as Hellyer's Close, and, according to Dr. Budge, bones and weapons have since been dug up there.

HEANTON PUNCHARDON is a parish and village, standing on an eminence north of the Taw estuary, with a station at Wrafton in this parish on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, and is 4½ miles west-north-west from Barnstaple, in the North Western division of the county, Braunton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, and in the rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Augustine is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, cast by Taylor, of Oxford, but undated: in the church are several monuments to the ancient family of Bassett, including Sir Robert Bassett kt. ob. 11 Nov. 1641, and Elizabeth (Peryam), his wife, ob. 1635; Col. Arthur Bassett, their eldest son, ob. 7 Jan. 1672, and William, their second son, ob. 7 May, 1674; there are others to John Bassett esq. ob. 1 August, 1660; Susanna (Bluett), his wife, ob. 22 April, 1662; John Bassett esq. ob. 13 May, 1686, and Elizabeth (Acland), his wife, ob. 6 Nov. 1683: in the chancel is a canopied altar-tomb, with a feathered arch; in the spandrels are the intertwined letters R. C. and above the cornice are the arms of the Coffin family, supported by an angel; the inscription is lost, but the tomb is assumed to commemorate Richard Coffin esq. ob. 16th century, and his wife, a daughter of Sir Richard Chudleigh kt.: a tablet was erected in 1891, by the rector and fellows of Exeter College, Oxford, to the Rev. George Hakewill, archdeacon of Surrey and chaplain to Prince Charles, son of James I. ob. 1649, aged 72: the church was restored in 1889-90, at a cost of £916, the tower being restored and the bells rehung, at the expense of Sir William Williams bart.; the old pews have been replaced by modern seats, and a stained window inserted at the east end: the oaken pulpit and lectern are new: the church affords 230 sittings. The register dates from the year 1584. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £307, with residence and 38 acres of glebe, in the gift of Frank Sellwood and the trustees of Binwood Sellwood, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Charles Edward Lamb M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, and surrogate. The charities are of £20 yearly value. Heanton Court, now a farm-house, once the seat of the Punchardon family, forms a conspicuous object from Barnstaple bridge. Sir William Robert Williams bart. of Upcott, is lord of the manor and chief landowner, and the manor of West Ashford, a large demesne, is also his property. The soil is loamy; the subsoil, clayey. The chief crops are wheat, potatoes and pasturage. The area is 2,427 acres of land, 15 of water, 17 of tidal water and 602 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,246; the population in 1901 was 404.

The hamlets are—CHIVENOR, three-quarters of a mile south; WRAFTON, three-quarters of a mile west; and WEST ASHFORD, 1½ miles east.

Post Office, Wrafton (Railway Sub-Office. Letters should have R.S.O. North Devon added).—John Sanders, sub-postmaster. Letters arrive at 5.55 a.m.; dispatched at 7.25 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. Braunton is the nearest money order & telegraph office, 1 mile distant

LITTLE HEMPSTON, or Hempston Arundel, is a small village and parish, pleasantly seated in a valley opening to the river Dart, and adjoining the road from Newton Abbot to Totnes and Plymouth, 2 miles north-east from Totnes station on the main line of the Great Western railway, which passes through the village, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Haytor, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, Totnes union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The river Hems, which rises in the parish of Woodland, flows through the village, where it is joined by another stream, originating in Marldon, the united currents entering the Dart near Hempston. The church of St. John the Baptist, rebuilt in 1439, is an edifice of stone in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch with battlemented parvise and an embattled western tower with octagonal turret containing 5 bells, the first dated 1847, the second and fifth, 1700; the remaining two are early bells, with legends in Old English characters: the chancel retains a piscina with shelf and a priest's doorway: in the church are two ancient monuments, one of which bears the cross-legged effigy of a knight in plate armour, covered by a tunic, wearing bascinet with camail, and bearing a shield suspended by a strap; alongside is the effigy of a lady in flowing robe with mantle; these figures date from 1310 to 1350: the other tomb has a fine and more perfect effigy of a knight in plate armour, but without shield, dating from 1350 to 1420; two of these represent members of the Arundel family, and the other Sir Thomas Crispin: on the south wall is a tablet to Charles Cornish, of Gatcombe, d. 19 May, 1818, Charles James Cornish, his son, lieutenant 16th Lancers, d. 1833, and Frederick William Cornish, his second son, captain Bengal Artillery, d. 20 May, 1831: there is a fine carved rood-screen of Perpendicular date, the cornice of which is delicately carved with foliage, clusters of grapes and birds; the upper stage is filled with tracery, and the lower portion is panelled; both this and the parclose screens are in good condition: the stairs to the rood loft also remain: the font, of red sandstone, has an octagonal basin on a square base: the north window of the chancel, repaired in 1864, contains ancient stained glass, originally belonging to Marldon church, comprising various figures, fragments of canopies and heraldic shields and parts of an invocatory inscription to St. Peter, and there are other stained windows: the church was restored in 1863-4. In the churchyard is a large yew tree. The register of marriages dates from the year 1539; baptisms, 1645; burials, 1546. The living is a HEMYOCK is a parish and village on the south bank of the river Culm, and terminus of the Culm Vale branch of the Great Western railway from Tiverton junction, opened in 1875; it is 5 miles from Wellington (Somerset), 12 east from Tiverton, 10 north from Honiton, and 10 south-west from Taunton, in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred of Hemyock, petty sessional division of Cullompton, union and county court district of Wellington, rural deanery of Tiverton East and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The river Culm flows through the parish, and is noted for the quantity and excellence of its trout. The church of St. Mary, restored and enlarged in 1847 by the addition of a north aisle, is a large building of stone in the Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transept, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells: there is a screen between the chancel and north aisle: the font consists of a Norman basin on a shaft of Perpendicular date: there are 700 sittings. The register dates from the rectory, net yearly value £168, including 58 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1886 by the Rev. William Dunstan Rundle LL.M. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. The charities consist of £138, left to the poor by Christopher Blackhall and other donors, and laid out in 1727 in the purchase of Dreadon Close, a piece of land 10 acres in extent, now let for about £13 a year; the poor parishioners have also a yearly rent-charge of £9 5s. 6d. out of the great tithes of Berry Pomeroy, left by William Bogan in 1723, and likewise the dividends of £111 2s. 3d. Old South Sea Annuities, purchased in 1744 with the arrears of this rent-charge. Gatcombe House, rebuilt by the late C. Cornish esq. was the birth-place, in 1625, of Zachary Bogan M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Oxford, a learned divine, who published treatises on the idioms of Homer and Hesiod, and a Comparison of Homer with the Sacred Scriptures; he died in 1659. Buckyeat, or Bokeytt, in this parish, was the seat, early in the 14th century, of the Bokeyett family, whose heiress married one of the Huckmores, and at the end of the century this family was resident here. The Village Hall, erected in 1882, is used on Sundays for religious services and during the week for secular purposes. The old Parsonage, now a farm-house, is a small but curious mansion of the 14th century, occupying a secluded site, surrounded by ash trees and approached by an avenue of wych elms; the house is built round an open courtyard, the principal entrance being on the south-east: to the right of this is the hall, lighted by a large trefoil-headed window and retaining portions of a screen of panelled oak, bearing traces of colour; a newel stair leads to the upper floor, which contains a large withdrawing-room, 24 by 18 feet. The manor was held by the Arundels from the time of Henry I. and subsequently descended by intermarriages to the families of Crispin, Stretch, Cheney and Willoughby. The trustees of the late Duchess of Cleveland (d. 1900), who are owners of the manorial rights, John Hitchin Bain esq. J.P. of Gatcombe, — Bowden esq. and the Trist trustees are the chief landowners. The soil is limestone; subsoil, loam. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The parish contains 1,221 acres of land, 12 of water, 10 of tidal water and 3 of foreshore; rateable value, £2,513; the population in 1891 was 215.

year 1635. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Culm-Davey annexed, net yearly income £470, including 104 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of F. W. L. Popham esq. Littlecote, Wiltshire, and held since 1896 by the Rev. John De Burgh Forbes Th. Assoc. K.C.L. Here are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. Here is the butter factory of the Culm Valley Dairy Co. Limited, the oldest of its kind in England; a new building was erected in 1897 and elaborately fitted with modern apparatus. An important market for live stock is held here every 3rd Monday in the month, and is well attended. There are charities to the amount of about £29, the principal being Walrond's of £5, Land's of £12, and the Second Poor Fund of £13, annually. Here are the remains of a castle, formerly belonging to the Hidon family, who occupied it until the reign of Edward I. when it passed to the Dynhams, and was divided between the four sisters of Sir John Dynham kt. sixth Baron Dynham K.G. and treasurer of England; in 1642 it was captured by the Royalists under John, 1st Baron Poulett, and eventually dismantled; portions of four of the towers and the gatehouse, a structure of flint, with part of the moat still remain, but are fast falling to decay. Mr. George Barton, who is lord of the manor, Colonel Robert William Webb Follett, of Woodside, Old Windsor, Messrs. Charles Rowcliffe, Edwd. and Samuel Farrant, Mrs. Farrant and Edward Lutley are the principal landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and some land in pasture. The area is 5,894 acres; rateable value, £6,974; the population in 1901 of the civil parish was 835, about 83 of whom are within the ecclesiastical parish of Dunkeswell Abbey.

The hamlet and chapelry of CULM-DAVEY, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north, is in this parish. The chapel here, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the village of Hemyock, is an ancient building of flint stone, with sittings for 60 persons, and is served by the Rector of Hemyock. The old manor house, now occupied as a farmhouse by Mr. Edward Lutley, retains some ancient stone and plaster work.

HENNOCK is a parish and village, seated on an elevation commanding an extensive prospect, bounded on the east by the river Teign, and is $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Trusham station on the Teign Valley branch of the Great Western railway, 8 north-by-west from Newton Abbot and 7 south-east from Moreton Hampstead, in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge hundred and petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The large reservoirs which supply Torquay and Newton Abbot with water are situate in this parish. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, an ancient building of rough stone, mainly in the Perpendicular style, was completely restored in 1873 at a cost of £1,200, given principally by James Wills esq. in memory of two sons: it consists of chancel with aisles or chapels, nave, aisles divided from the nave by arcades of four arches, south porch and an embattled western tower, of Early English date, 40 feet in height, with pinnacles, and containing 4 bells, the first of which is an alphabet bell from A to K; the second and fourth date from 1637; the third bears a prayer to the Virgin in Old English characters: the chancel retains a priest's doorway, and on the south side also are the rood loft stairs, both doorways remaining: the rood screen is a finely carved work of Perpendicular date; the lower portion is panelled and painted with figures of saints, angels, and a representation of the "Annunciation"; the screen extends across the whole width of the church, but has lost its groined work: traces of a stoup remain in the porch: the communion table, of richly carved oak, of Elizabethan date, was made from the old parish chest; in the south aisle is a memorial window, erected by Mr. Wills, of Kelly, in 1856: the font is late Norman, c. 1170, and its basin is supported on a thick cylindrical pedestal, surrounded by four slender shafts of greenish stone. Much ancient stained glass and some tiles were taken away during the restoration: there are 500 sittings. The parish register dates from the year 1544 and contains the following record of the birth of Edward VI.: "The eleventh day of October, the yeare of our Lord God 1537, was born Prince Edwarde, which was the 29th yeare of our Sovereign Lord King Henry VIII. God send him good oldinge, and his Father a long and prosperous reign. Amen." The living is a vicarage, yearly value £180, with residence and 18 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Rev. F. G. Riley M.A. vicar of Chudleigh Knighton and the Rev. Edward S. Shuttleworth M.A. rector of St. Stephen, in Brannell, Cornwall, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Robert Medley Fulford. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities include the rent of $1\frac{1}{2}$ acres of land, left by James Stooke in 1699 and the interest of £5, left by Elizabeth Gribble in 1726, and are distributed in bread. An ancient cross, which stood in the centre of the village street, was removed about 1875. The land is held by numerous freeholders. The soil is light; subsoil, part sand and part clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 3,271 acres of land and 28 of water; rateable value, £3,860; the population in 1891 was 685 in the civil parish, which includes Chudleigh Knighton, and 327 in the ecclesiastical parish, and in 1901 was 711 in the civil parish.

By Local Government Board Order 16,367, which came into operation March 25, 1885, and by the Divided Parishes Act, 1882, a detached part of Hennock was added to Bovey Tracey for civil purposes.

HIGHBRAY is a parish and village on the eastern acclivity of the valley of the river Bray, which is here crossed by a bridge of one arch, and is 5 miles north from Filleigh station on the Somerset and Devon branch of the Great Western railway, 7 miles north-by-west from South Molton, and 10 east from Barnstaple in the North Western division of the county, Sherwill hundred, Branton petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwill, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints is an edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transept, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: a new treble bell was added in 1892, and another in 1895, subscribed for by the parishioners: the font is very ancient and there is an external sedile: the church has been restored in 1873 at a cost of £1,000, and affords 180 sittings. The register dates from the year 1605. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £300, with residence and 91 acres of glebe, in the gift of Sir Charles T. Dyke Acland bart. and held since 1900 by the Rev. Arthur Spurrier M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. There are charities of £7 19s. yearly value. Sir C. T. D. HIGHWEEK, see Newton Abbot.

HITTESLEIGH is a parish and village, 4 miles south from Bow, and about the same distance south-west from Yeoford Junction, both stations on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 7 south-west from Crediton and 11 east from Okehampton, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Crockernwell petty sessional division, Crediton union and county court district, rural deanery of Cadbury and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 3 bells, the first of which is dated 1824, the others being early bells, with inscriptions: the second bell is a particularly fine example, both in casting and tone: the font is enriched with the dog-tooth ornament: there are 200 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1676; marriages, 1678; burials, 1677. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £76, with 40 acres of glebe, let for £24 (there is no rectory-house attached), in the gift of the Rev. W. F. Lumley, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and W. Taylor esq. and held since 1892 by the Rev. Henry Pearce Knapton M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge, who is also vicar of and resides at Spreyton. Here is a Bible Christian chapel. There is no manor; the land is distributed amongst small freeholders. The soil is clay and the subsoil shale. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,904 acres; rateable value, £1,036; the population in 1891 was 148 in the civil and 123 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order 16,407, which came into operation March 24, 1884, part of Teignholt, in Drewsteignton parish, was added to Hittesleigh and Narraway and Thornbury in the latter parish to the former.

HOCKWORTHY is a parish and small village on the borders of Somerset, 3½ miles south from Venn Cross station on the Somerset and Devon branch, and 4 north-west from Burlescombe station on the Bristol and Exeter section of the Great Western railway, 6 south-east from Bampton, 8 north-east from Tiverton, and 7 west-south-west from Wellington, in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred of Bampton, Culmpton petty sessional division, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of East Tiverton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of SS. Simon and Jude, which stands on a hill, is a building of stone in the Early English style, and was rebuilt and restored, with the exception of the tower, in 1865; it consists of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells and a clock: the east window was presented by the late vicar in 1865 as a memorial to his father, the previous patron: there are memorial windows to Darnford Greenway esq. and to the Rev. William James Newman M.A. vicar (1860-80), and his wife: a new organ was erected in 1884 by the present vicar; the church will seat 220 persons. The register dates from the year 1577. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £189, including 67 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1880 by the Rev. Wm. Frederick Newman M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford. There is a charity of £2 (less 5s. land tax) yearly payable out of Thornland estate, also one of £8 yearly for the school, provided it is kept as a Church of England school, and £8 yearly for beef for the poor at Christmas, left by the late Dr. Troyte in 1848. There are quarries here producing a very superior kind of stone, suitable for building purposes and susceptible of a polish equal to that of marble. Hugh Leonard Acland Troyte esq. of Huntsham Court, is lord of the manor, and Messrs. William Dester, W. H. White, and the vicar are the principal landowners. The soil is limy; and the subsoil is limestone and rock. The chief crops are barley, oats and some wheat. The area is 2,677 acres; rateable value, £2,211 the population in 1901 was 253.

By Local Government Board Order 16,305, which came into operation March 24, 1884, Stallingthorne has been added to this parish from Huntsham for civil purposes.

STAPLE CROSS, half a mile north-west, and LEA, 1 mile north-east, are hamlets; the former has a Wesleyan chapel.

HOLBETON is a village and large parish, seated on an eminence and bounded on the east by the estuary of the river Erme; it is 5½ miles south from Ivybridge station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 4 south-west from Modbury and 10 south-east from Plymouth, in the Southern division of the county, Ermington and Plympton hundred and petty sessional division, Plympton St. Mary union and county court district of East Stonehouse, and in the rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The village has been much improved during the last few years and a fresh supply of water brought from the neighbouring hills. The church of All Saints, a fine old cruciform structure, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consists of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, south porch and a lofty western tower, with spire, containing 6 bells: there is a very curious font of Norman date, and several monuments to the Hele, Bulteel and Perring families: the screens are singularly handsome examples of 15th century wood carving, enriched with badges of the rose, portcullis and fleur-de-lis: the rood loft stairs remain, but the rood screen has disappeared: the church was restored at a cost of £20,000 in 1887 by the munificence of H. B. Mildmay esq. of Flete, and affords 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1620. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £211, with 3 acres of glebe and house, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Alfred Thomas Allin, of Glasgow University. The tithes were anciently appropriated to the priory of Polshoe. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. There is a coast-guard station at Mothecombe. Flete, the situation of which is most romantic, and commands fine views of the river Erme and its estuary, is now the seat of Henry Bingham Mildmay esq. D.L., J.P. by whom the present handsome mansion was erected in place of the former house, now removed: the grounds and gardens are beautifully laid out. The Flete estate was held by the Damerell family from the Conquest to the time of Edward III. and afterwards by the families of Hele and Bulsteel, descending from the latter to its present owner. Membland, formerly the seat of the Hillersdons, and now the property of Lord Revelstoke, has been wholly rebuilt and the grounds tastefully laid out: the property formerly belonged to the Perring family. The manor of Holbeton once belonged to the Peverells; it was granted by Henry VII. to his sister-in-law, Lady Margaret Beaufort, widow of Edmund Tudor, Earl of Richmond. H. B. Mildmay esq. who is lord of the manor, and William Cresswell Gray esq. of Seaton Carew, Durham, are the chief landowners. The soil is light; subsoil, mostly slate. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 4,631 acres of land and 8 of water, 17 of tidal water and 98 of foreshore; rateable value, £6,444; the population in 1891 was 949.

HOLCOMBE BURNELL is a parish and village on the main road from Exeter to Moreton Hampstead, 3½ miles west from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Wonford hundred and petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist is a building of stone in the Norman and Later styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 4 bells: the first, cast by Thomas Pennington in 1636, has a Tudor frieze all round above: the two next bear legends in old English characters; the tower was cast by John Pennington in 1654: the church was rebuilt (excepting the tower) in 1844, at a cost of about £600, and has 200 sittings: the churchyard is approached through an inclosure planted with trees. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1657; marriages, 1663. The living is a vicarage, with rectorial rights, net yearly income £70, including 115 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Sackville George Cresswell: the Vicarage House, placed in a very elevated position, commands a beautiful and extensive view. Culver House, the residence of Edward Byrom esq. D.L. is delightfully seated in a valley and approached by a carriage drive: the house, erected in 1836, is in the Elizabethan style, and is built with stone from the Pocombe quarries, with facings of Beer stone; it contains an oak-panelled room, some fine specimens of old oak and other furniture, and a good collection of old china. The Pitman trustees, who are lords of the manor, and E. Byrom esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is clayey; the subsoil, schistuous. The chief crops are oats and root crops. The area is 1,853 acres; rateable value, £1,135; the population in 1901 was 167.

HOLCOMBE ROGUS is a parish and village on the borders of Somerset, 2 miles north-west-by-north from Burescombe station on the Bristol and Exeter section of the Great Western railway, 8½ miles north-east-by-east from Tiverton and 6 west-south-west from Wellington (Somerset), in the North Eastern division of the county,

Bampton hundred, Cullompton petty sessional division, Wellington union and county court district, rural deanery of East Tiverton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. This place derives its suffix from Rogo, a Norman, who held it under Baldwin, the sheriff. The church of All Saints is a building of stone, in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and 6 bells: there is a handsome stone reredos by Hems, of Exeter, and good carved oak screen work in the cinquecento, or Italian style of the Early 16th century, the cornice of which is enriched with medallions, exhibiting scriptural subjects: here also are the remains of the rood screen originally in St. Peter's, Tiverton, but removed on the restoration of that church in 1854; it is groined, painted in blue and red, and gilt: the south porch is vaulted in stone, and stone windows have tracery of unusual character: there are numerous mural monuments and massive altar tombs, with recumbent male and female effigies, dating from 1613, to the Bluett family, who were seated here for many generations: the church affords 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1540. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, with residence and $\frac{1}{2}$ acres of glebe, in the gift of Mrs. Rayer, and held since 1802 by the Rev. Lynch Talbot Ward B.A. of Keble College, Oxford. Webber's charity, founded in 1823, consists of £1,000 Consols, the interest to be applied in the daily education of 30 poor girls and 20 poor boys in the doctrines of the Church of England. The Rev. W. Wills, a former vicar, by his will dated 1875, left £300 £3 per Cent. Annuities, the interest to be given to the poor on the 28th December annually. Holcombe Court, the ancient seat of the Bluetts, and now the property and residence of Mrs. Rayer, who is lady of the manor and chief landowner, is a fine old mansion, in the Tudor style, and includes a hall and a gatehouse tower, with picturesque oriels. The soil is clayey; the subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 3,021 acres of land and 7 of water; rateable value, £5,291; the population in 1891 was 629. HOLLACOMBE is a small parish, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles east from Holsworthy and $2\frac{1}{2}$ west from Dunsland Cross station on the Holsworthy branch of the London and South Western railway, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Holsworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Petrock is a small but ancient edifice of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower with saddle back roof, containing a clock and 3 bells, dated respectively 1662, 1667 and 1684: the tower was partly destroyed by boisterous storms in the early part of 1861, but was restored in 1870: in the south wall of the chancel is a memorial window to the Rev. D. L. Merrick, formerly rector of Holsworthy and curate of Hollacombe, and another stained window, the cost of which was defrayed by friends of the present rector: an organ was provided by public subscription in 1897 at a cost of £40: in 1887

the church was completely restored at a cost of £500: there are 75 sittings. The register dates from the year 1638. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £50, including 32 acres of glebe and some land in Bridgerule, value £28 yearly, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1804 by the Rev. Thomas Samuel Kendall M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, who is also rector of Holsworthy and surrogate, and resides at Holsworthy. The land is all freehold. The Rev. Thomas Cromwell Bush M.A. rector of Hornblotton, Somerset, and Henry Fairfax Harvey esq. of Highcroft, Heavitree, Exeter, are the principal landowners. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and roots. The area is 1,230 acres; rateable value, £498; the population in 1901 was 69.

HOLNE is a parish and village, on the river Dart, 3 miles north-west from Buckfastleigh station on the Ashburton branch of the Great Western railway, 10 west from Newton Abbot and 9 north-west from Totnes, in the Mid division of the county, hundred of Stanborough, petty sessional division of Teignbridge, union and county court district of Totnes, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of the Virgin Mary, probably built in 1310, is an ancient cruciform edifice of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, and consisting of chancel with chapel, nave, aisles, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells, rehung in 1885: the rood loft stairs still exist: there are memorial windows to the Rev. Sir Henry Bourchier Wrey bart. d. December 23rd, 1882, and the Rev. Samuel Lane, vicar from 1827, and in 1894 another was placed by public subscription to the Rev. Charles Kingsley M.A. who was born at Holne vicarage, 12 June, 1819, and died at Eversley, Hants, 23 Jan. 1875: a window at the west end of the south aisle contains remains of very ancient glass: in the chancel is a fine trefoiled piscina, and there is another in the chancel chapel: the fine chancel screen is adorned with painted figures of much interest on 40 of the lower panels: the church affords 215 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from April 10, 1603; burials, December, 1618; marriages, February 6, 1653. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £134, including 25 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Birdwood, and held since 1858 by the Rev. John Gill M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here are charities of £7 12s. yearly value, besides the rents of a house and a piece of land, let at £19 yearly, which from time immemorial have been devoted to the repairs of the church. The scenery here is beautiful, the principal feature being the river Dart, which dashes through a rocky dell, wooded with fine timber and underwood. The Hon. Richard Maitland Westcote Dawson D.L., J.P. of Holne Park, is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, chiefly shale. The chief crops are barley, oats and roots. The parish contains 4,197 acres of land, of which about 2,700 are woods and moorland, principally included in Holne Chase, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east of the village and extending a considerable distance on Dartmoor; there are 42 acres of water in the parish; assessable value, £2,583; the population in 1901 was 273.

Post Office.—Alfred Pearse, sub-postmaster. Letters are received from Ashburton R.S.O. at 8.20 a.m.; dispatched at 4.15 p.m. week days only. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Buckfastleigh, 3 miles distant HOLSWORTHY is an old market town, standing 430 feet above the level of the sea, near the river Deer, the head of a union and county court district and petty sessional division, and has a station on a branch of the South Western railway from Halwill junction, extended in 1897-8 to Bude, and opened in August of that year; this line enters Holsworthy by a viaduct of eight arches spanning a valley between two hills, and was opened for traffic to Holsworthy in January, 1879; the new extension on leaving the town crosses a viaduct of nine arches, spanning a valley between two hills: the town is 8 miles east from Stratton, 10 east from Bude, 14 north from Launceston, 14 west from Hatherleigh, 18 west-north-west from Okehampton, 18 south-west from Bideford, 42 west-north-west from Exeter and 220 from London, in the Western division of the county, the hundred of Back Torrington, rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter.

The ancient parish of Holsworthy was formed into two civil parishes named Holsworthy Urban and Holsworthy Hamlets; the former is governed by an Urban District Council of twelve members, formed April 1st, 1900.

The town is lighted with gas by a private company, and supplied with water from pumps in various parts of the town. The Bude and Holsworthy canal, constructed in 1824, from Bude in Cornwall to Blagdon wharf, is now (1901) closed and nearly dried up. During the Civil War the town was occupied at different times by the forces on both sides. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is an edifice of stone, in the Norman, Early English and Later styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch, organ chamber, vestry and a fine western tower, with pinnacles, erected about 1450, in the Early Perpendicular style, and containing a clock with chimes and 8 bells, all cast by Mears, of London, in 1826, and rehung by the same firm in 1894 in a new oak frame at a cost of £300: the first church was a little Norman oratory or chapel, built about A.D. 1130; it probably stood where the nave now is, and in plan was a plain oblong structure without aisles, its walls being pierced with narrow semicircular-headed windows; the jambs of the entrance door to this chapel, with their recessed single columns, remain, and serve as the inner door-case of the south porch: the Norman chapel was pulled down about A.D. 1250, and a church in the Early English style erected on its site, a south aisle being added to the nave and thrown into it by the present arcade of four pointed arches, which spring from massive low octagonal piers with moulded caps and bases: at the east end, divided from the nave by a plain stone arch, was the chancel or choir, and additions and alterations were made in 1366: at the western end of the nave there was probably an Early tower, but no vestige of it now exists: about the year 1450, the Trewen Chantry chapel, dedicated to St. Mary, which stood near the church, was removed into it (Bishop Lacy's Reg. vol. iii.), and probably its walling stones were used in the restoration of the church at that period: in 1808 the church was repaired, some of the windows being badly rebuilt, and square-paned wooden window frames placed in the window openings in lieu of the granite tracery of the 15th century: the chancel, rebuilt in 1880-2, at a cost of £1,250, has a roof of carved oak and stained windows, two of which are memorials; and there are two other memorial windows in the aisles, and one in the tower to the late Miss Jane Meyrick: in the church is a memorial to Mary, daughter of Sir Richard Prideaux, d. July 14th, 1725: the organ, built by Renatus Harris, is a fine old instrument, with a curious history; it was originally placed in the parish church of All Saints, Chelsea, before 1680; but in 1723, being regarded as worn out, was sold to the town of Bideford, and remained in the parish church there until 1865, when it was again disposed of to the parishioners of Holsworthy, and by them restored at considerable expense; it was further renovated in 1884, at a cost of £300: at the same time the church was restored and reseated under the direction of Mr. O. B. Peter, architect, of Launceston, at a cost of £2,600, when a new north aisle was added and seven stained windows inserted in the aisles and chancel: the stalls are of carved oak, and there are 532 sittings. The register dates from the year 1563. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £400, including 50 acres of land, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1894 by the Rev. Thomas Samuel Kendall M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and surrogate, who is also rector of Hollacombe. The Wesleyan chapel has sittings for 450 persons. There is a Bible Christian chapel here, seating 300 persons, and another at Simpson Moor, in this parish. The meetings of the commissioners of land, assessed and income taxes are held at the Court House. The Holsworthy and Stratton Agricultural Association, formed in 1884, holds its meetings here annually on the second Thursday in June, when prizes to the amount of £350 are awarded. A portreeve and other officers are elected at the court leet and baron. The town is the head quarters of the L division of the Devon county constabulary. A substantial Market-house was erected in 1858, at a cost of nearly £1,000, and is held by lease. The weekly market for corn and cattle, an institution of high antiquity, is held in the market place every Wednesday, and is well attended. The third Wednesday in every month is a great market day for cattle, horses, sheep &c. except in July, in which month St. Peter's fair is held. The fairs formerly held in April and October have been abolished in favour of monthly markets. A fair is still held on the 9th, 10th and 11th of July. The early closing day is on Thursday at 4 p.m. The "Stanhope" and "White Hart" are both good commercial and family hotels and posting houses; porters from each meet all trains. Speccott's charity and another in the hands of trustees consist of two farms, one situated in Black Torrington parish let at £25, the other in Holsworthy parish rented at £30 yearly, which amounts are distributed half-yearly to deserving poor not in receipt of parish relief: the other charities include the interest of £100, in the £3 per Cents. left by the late Rev. Thomas Meyrick, to two of the best conducted single women who have not received parochial relief, one of whom must be under 30 and the other above 60 years of age: Mrs. Hart also left £13 15s. yearly to the poor and £13 15s. to the National school: Miss Meyrick left a sum of £1,000, the interest to be devoted to the church and the poor, and also £500, the interest of which is applied to the purchase of clothing for girls going to service, and is under the control of the rector and rector's wardens.

Stanhope Park recreation ground, formerly rented from Earl Stanhope, lord of the manor, was presented by him to the town in 1901; it covers 8 acres of land and was opened in 1888 at a cost of £500; there is a covered band stand, an extensive pavilion, a cricket ground and a tennis lawn. Thorne was the ancient seat of the family of Thorne, which had been settled in Devonshire since the time of King John, and now belongs to F. King esq. and the Rev. J. Vowler Tanner B.A. rector of Chawleigh. The manor, given by Henry II. to Fulke de Paganel or Paynel, was afterwards held by the Chaworths, Tracys and other families, and subsequently reverting to the Crown, was granted to John de Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, and afterwards to John de Holland, Duke of Exeter, and Margaret (Tudor), Countess of Richmond, mother of Henry VII.: and after having been for some time held by the Speccott and Prideaux families, it was purchased by Thomas (Pitt), 1st Earl of Londonderry, from whom it has descended to its present owner. Earl Stanhope F.S.A. who is lord of the manor, and Lieut.-Col. Sir John Davie Ferguson-Davie bart. of Creedy Park, Paul Augustine Kingdon esq. of 25 Marlborough Hill, St. John's Wood, London N.W. James Higgs esq. the Rev. John Vowler Tanner B.A. rector of Chawleigh, and Francis King esq. of Truro, are the principal landowners. Sympson belongs to Earl Stanhope. Charles Roberts esq. of Peterborough, is lord of the manor of Ugworthy. Bathe manor passed from the Lord Chief Justice Henry de Bathonia or De Bathe (ob. 1261) to the Methsted and Holland family, who sold it in 1585 to the ancestors of Lieut.-Col. Sir J. D. Ferguson-Davie, who is the present lord. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil the same. The chief crops are wheat, oats and roots.

The area if Holsworthy Urban parish is 737 acres; rateable value, £4,558; the population in 1901 was 1,371.

The area of Holsworthy Hamlets parish is 8,228 acres; rateable value, £3,943; the population in 1901 was 705.

HONEYCHURCH is a parish, one mile north of the road from Exbourne to North Tawton, 2 miles north-west from North Tawton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 7 north from Okehampton and 7 east-by-south from Hatherleigh, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Hatherleigh petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. James is a small edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells: there are 60 sittings. The register dates from the year 1728. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £59, with residence, including 75 acres of glebe, in the gift of Sir Roper Lethbridge K.C.I.E. of the Manor House, Exbourne, and held since 1894 by the Rev. William Bentley, who is also vicar of Brushford. The Earl of Portsmouth is lord of the manor, it having been purchased in 1797 of the Glynn's. The principal landowners are Mrs. Arnold, of Nethercott, Idlesleigh, and Messrs. Simon Sloman, Thomas Sloman and Thomas Brook. The soil is dunland; the subsoil is clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 787 acres; rateable value, £5,955; the population in 1901 was 36.

By Local Government Board Order, 16,404, which came into operation March 24, 1884, Venn Farm was transferred from Bondleigh to this parish.

HONITON.

HONITON is a municipal borough, parish, head of a petty sessional division, union and county court district, on the old road from Exeter to London, having a station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, and is 11 miles south-east from Cullompton, 16 south-east from Tiverton, 22 east from Crediton, 160 from London by road, 156 by rail, 9 north-east from Sidmouth and 16 east-by-north from the city of Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Axminster, rural deanery of Duneswell and Honiton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The parish and borough are co-extensive; the town consists chiefly of one broad street, about three-quarters of a mile in length, and is well-paved and lighted, abundantly supplied with water and has many good inns and two hotels.

Honiton stands in the valley of the Otter, which river passes the town about half a mile to the north and is celebrated for its trout.

A stream conveyed in an iron trough, with dipping places at every few yards, runs through the town and adds much to the health and cleanliness of the place.

The town was incorporated in 1846. The corporation consists of a mayor, six aldermen and 18 councilmen. The mayor and ex-mayor are magistrates for the borough, which is divided into wards, St. Michael's and St. Paul's. There are two borough seals; the earlier bears a representation of the baptism of Our Lord, within a legend; the modern seal dates from 1846. The mayor wears a robe of scarlet cloth, edged with fur.

The borough formerly returned two members to Parliament, but was disfranchised as a borough by the Representation of the People Act (Scotland), 1868 (31 and 32 Vict. c. 48).

St. Paul's church, which is in the middle of the town, was made the parish church under an Act of Parliament passed in 1835, and is a spacious structure of flint and stone, 132 feet long by 58 wide, in the Romanesque style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave and a tower on the south side, 104 feet high, with pinnacles, and containing a clock and chimes, formerly in All-Hallows chapel: the church was finished and consecrated in 1838, at a cost, exclusive of £2,400 paid for old buildings and land, of about £7,600, and was reconstructed in 1849, at an expense of £1,000: the altar-piece, representing the Entombment, was painted and presented by William Salter B.A. the painter of the well-known "Waterloo Banquet," and a native of Honiton: a reredos of Devon and other marbles by Hems and Sons, of Exeter, was erected in 1893 as a memorial to Mr. Mules: there are 1,700 sittings. The register dates from the year 1598. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £701, including 87 acres of glebe, with an ancient residence, in a picturesque and secluded locality, and now used as a farmhouse; the present rectory house is at the west end of the High street. The living is in the gift of the Earl of Devon, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Hugh John Fortescue M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge.

The church of St. Michael, formerly the parish church, but now a chapel of ease to St. Paul's, and inconveniently situated on a hill, about half a mile south of the town, is a building in the Perpendicular style, largely rebuilt towards the close of the 15th century by Peter de Courtenay, successively Bishop of Exeter and Winchester, who died in 1491; it consists of chancel with aisles, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled tower on the north side, containing 5 bells: in a window in the south transept are the impaled arms of the prelate's father and mother; the Courtenay shield also appears on the capitals of the piers and on some of the arches: the superb rood and chancel screens, also the work of Bishop Courtenay, are elaborately wrought with strings of foliage, finely carved, and shields à bouche, and were restored in 1880, by Hems, of Exeter, under the direction of the late Mr. E. Ashworth, architect: the rood screen, 46 feet in length, consists of 11 large and 2 small bays, and has three double doors: the arcades dividing the chancel and aisles were erected in the reign of Henry VII. by John Takel, a lawyer, and on the capitals of the piers are scrolls bearing the legend "Pray for ye soull of John Takell & Jone his wyffe," and shields, with the monogram "J. T.": in the north chancel aisle is an ancient altar, and on the floor in front of it a large stone, with inscription in Latin to Joan Takel, widow, ob. 21 July, 1529: another slab is inscribed to John Bigge, a former rector, and treasurer of Crediton, ob. 1459: the bosses of the roof of the north aisle display the Bourchier knot; and amongst other ancient monuments is one of black marble to Thomas Marwood, ob. 18 Sept. 1617, Queen Elizabeth's physician, and builder of Marwood House, at the upper end of the town: the font, of alabaster and marble, was erected in memory of Mr. Archibald Stamp, the lectern is a memorial to the Rev. W. Jones: there are memorial windows to the Rev. James and Mr. and Mrs. Glanville Avery, and to Dr. Jerrard. The church was restored in 1896 at a cost of about £300, when the galleries were removed and the interior reseated: there are 200 sittings.

The Baptist chapel, in High street, founded in 1812, is an edifice of stone, seating 350 persons. The Congregational chapel, High street, with minister's residence attached, is endowed with £5 yearly, and has sittings for 500 persons.

The Wesleyan chapel, New street, is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style, with sittings for 250 persons.

The County Police Station, in High street, has apartments for resident officers and also a magistrates' meeting room and 3 cells.

The Market House, for the sale of corn, cheese, butter and poultry, in the centre of the town, was built about 1820, by the late Paving Trust Commissioners, at a cost of above £2,000. The great market is held on Saturdays and is well supplied with cattle and all sorts of provisions; and great quantities of butter are sent weekly to London; in the upper story is an assembly room, 40 feet long by 28 feet wide, available for public meetings, with entrances from the Market House and the Dolphin hotel, and holding 300 persons.

Two large markets are held annually, for cattle, on the second Saturday in April and on the Saturday before the 18th of October. The fair is held on the Wednesday and Thursday following the 19th of July, for cattle and horses. Early closing day is Thursday. A poultry show is also held. A bronze fountain, erected in New street, in memory of the late Samuel Devenish esq. of this town, by his fellow townsmen, has been removed to High street.

The depressed state of the Honiton lace manufacture has injuriously affected this town and the neighbouring districts of Ottery St. Mary and Otterton, Sidmouth and Sidbury, Beer and Branscombe, Colyton, Exmouth, Woodbury and Budleigh. It is estimated by Messrs. Treadwin, of Exeter, and Mrs. Fowler, of Honiton, two of the principal dealers in Honiton lace, that about 1870 over 2,000 women and children were employed in this industry, whereas now there are not 500 lace makers in all the above districts and they are all women over 25 years, no children having been taught the art for the last 12 years; of these 500, only about 250 are now actually employed—i.e. 70 in Honiton, 60 in Beer, 40 in Branscombe, 40 in Sidbury and Sidmouth and some 20 each in Exmouth, Woodbury and Colyton. The earnings of these lace makers vary from 5s. to 12s. weekly. In addition to the actual makers of the lace, there are in Honiton, Exmouth, Beer and Otterton some 30 or 40 "guipurers," i.e. women who piece together small sprigs, being employed for that purpose by the dealers. In July, 1888, Mr. Alan Cole, of the South Kensington Museum, made a report, after visiting the district for the Home Office, on the condition and prospects of the Honiton lace industry. He attributed its decline mainly to the operation of the Compulsory Education Act of 1870 and the consequent closing of the lace schools, and partly to the cheap imitation of Honiton lace made by machinery at Nottingham, and suggested, as remedies, that lace making should be sanctioned by the Education Department as part of the regular course of instruction for girls in Elementary Board Schools in this district, and that grants of money and prizes should be given by the Science and Art Department to encourage proficiency in lace making. Mrs. Fowler has established a lace school for young girls, and 64 are now under instruction; the principal feature is the revival of the old net grounding, which had become almost a lost art. There is a brewery and a malthouse, an iron foundry, three flour mills, a tannery, a butter factory and a saw mill. Bricks, tiles and brown pottery were also made in the locality.

The Honiton Literary Institution has a very good library of 2,000 volumes of standard works of all kinds, and a constant supply of new books is obtained from Mudie's Library in London for the use of subscribers. The reading room is open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day except Sundays, and is well supplied with the principal daily and weekly papers and magazines. There are about 30 members.

The Dispensary, in High street, established in 1820, is now conducted on the provident system.

St. Margaret's Alms-houses, on the Exeter road, originally founded in the 14th century as a hospital for lepers, was refounded by Thomas Chard, last abbot of Ford (1520-39), who was born at Tracey, in the parish of Awliscombe, near here, about 1470; he rebuilt the chapel of the hospital and is said to have been interred within it; the existing houses are inhabited by nine aged persons, who have weekly allowances, averaging about 2s. 6d. with a small donation at Christmas, one inmate holding the office of governor; the charity is under the management of the rector, churchwardens and overseers, and is endowed with 18a. 2r. 7p. of land, let for about £80 a year. Other charities, amounting to about £350 yearly, are under the management of trustees elected for the purpose.

On Honiton Hill, about 2 miles from the town, is a tower about 80 feet high, erected by the late Dr. Copleston, Lord Bishop of Llandaff (1828-49), and now the property of Charles Every Cox esq. from which a beautiful and extensive view embracing the adjacent coast may be obtained. Richard Marker esq. J.P. of Combe, who is lord of the manor, and Miss Outhwaite, of Rougemont, Exeter, are the principal landowners.

The acreage is 3,134; rateable value, £12,966; the population in 1901 was 3,271, viz.:—St. Michael's ward, 1,603 and St. Paul's ward, 1,668.

HORWOOD is a parish and village, on the old road from Bideford to Barnstaple, 3½ miles north-east from Bideford station on the Torrington branch of the London and South Western railway, in the North Western division of the county, Fremington hundred, Branton petty sessional division, Bideford county court district, Barnstaple union, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael is an ancient building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 3 bells; the first inscribed "EOCCE AGNVS DEI," in Lombardic letters; the second, "SA: NCTA: MA: RIA"; the tenor is dated 1664: in the north or Pollard aisle is the recumbent effigy of a lady of the early 15th century, in horned head-dress, and wearing a long mantle, partly enwrapped in which are figures of three children; the effigy is believed to represent Emma (Doddescombe), wife of John Pollard, who, with her, founded this aisle: on the jamb of the window above is a tablet to Arthur Pollard, ob. 1633, and Joan, his wife, ob. 1662, Sarah, their daughter, ob. 1613, and Arthur Pollard, of Instow, gent. ob. 25 August, 1681: there is another memorial to Anthony Pollard esq. ob. 16 June, 1587, and Joan (Stucle), his wife, ob. 27 Feb. 1599, and a stone with an incised cross: the church was restored in 1889, at a cost of £900, under the direction of Messrs. Hayward and Son, architects, of Exeter, when a new roof was placed over the nave, the chancel and aisle roofs restored, oak choir stalls placed in the chancel, and some old carved panels incorporated in the reading desk: during the progress of the work a piscina, probably of the 13th century, was discovered in the south wall of the chancel, and another of later date in the Pollard aisle: fragments of a richly carved stone altar or reredos were also met

SOUTH HUISH is a scattered parish, situated in a deep vale of romantic beauty, terminating in Bigbury Bay; it is 4 miles south-west from Kingsbridge station on a branch of the Great Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Stanborough, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, union and county court district of Kingsbridge, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The old church of St. Andrew, now ruinous, is a small but ancient edifice of cragstone, with interesting remains of Early English work, and has a plain square tower containing 4 bells: the church of the Holy Trinity, at Galmpton, built in 1867, at a cost of over £2,000, on a site given by the 11th Earl of Devon, is an edifice in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, organ chamber and vestry, and a western tower containing one bell: all the windows in the chancel are stained, and form a memorial to the Right Hon. Sir George James Turner Kt. P.C. sometime M.P. for Coventry, and Lord Justice of Appeal, d. 9th July, 1867. The register dates from the year 1565. The living is a chapelry annexed to the vicarage of Malborough, net yearly value £190, with residence and 1 acre of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Sarum, and held since 1877 by the Rev. William Thomas Keeling M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford, who resides at Malborough; the Rev. John Warren Danford is curate in charge. Most of the farmers in this parish own their farms. The soil is principally loam; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, potatoes and roots. The area is 1,164 acres of land and 2 of water and 48 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,484; the population in 1901 was 227.
Parish Clerk, Henry Jarvis.

GALMPTON is a hamlet, 1 mile south, and HOPE COVE is 2 miles south-west.

The chapel of ease at Hope Cove was built in 1862, at the expense of the 11th Earl of Devon and the late Right Hon. Sir G. J. Turner: the interior was renovated about 1897. There is a small chapel at Galmpton, used by the Brethren. The inhabitants of Hope Cove are chiefly engaged in fishing; quantities of crabs and lobsters are caught. Here is a life boat station; the boat, called the "Alexandra," is endowed and was presented to the Royal Lifeboat Institution in 1877 by the Grand Lodge of Freemasons of England, on the occasion of the recovery of their grand master, King Edward VII., then Prince of Wales, from serious illness; a large boat house was also erected on the sands; Commander Charles H. Herbert, is hon. secretary.

HUNTSHAM is a parish and scattered village, in a picturesque valley, $\frac{3}{4}$ miles south-east from Bampton station on the Exe Valley branch of the Great Western railway, and 7 north-east from Tiverton, in the North Eastern division of the county, Cullompton petty sessional division, Tiverton hundred, union and county court district, rural deanery of East Tiverton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints, originally a building of the 13th century, was much altered in 1430: it is now chiefly in the Transition style, from Early English to Decorated, and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch, and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing a clock and 8 bells: a carved stone font was erected by the inhabitants in memory of Mrs. Troyte, and there is also a handsome chandelier, placed in the centre of the nave by the parishioners, as a mark of esteem to the late A. H. D. Troyte esq. D.C.L. d. 19th July, 1857: the east window, the west window of the aisle, and several others are stained: in 1856 the church was enlarged and restored, and a north aisle was added in 1871: there are 130 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £101, including 60 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Hugh L. Acland-Troyte esq. and held since 1897 by the Rev. Arthur Reginald Hudson M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford. Dr. A. H. D. Troyte left, in 1848, HUXHAM is a small parish and village, on the east bank of the river Culm, about 2 miles north-east from Stoke Canon Junction station on the main line of the Great Western railway, and 4 north-east from Exeter, in the North-Eastern division of the county, Wonford hundred and petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Aylesbeare, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Decorated style of the 14th century, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a turret containing one bell, and was completely restored in 1865, under the direction of the late Mr. Benjamin Ferrey, architect, chiefly at the expense of the £833 Consols, producing £25, of which £5 is given to the poor in money and £10 in beef, and £10 is applied for education. Huntsham Court, now occupied by Hugh Leonard Acland-Troyte esq. J.P. lord of the manor and sole landowner, was erected in 1869, on the designs of the original building; the oak panelling of the hall of the ancient house has been incorporated in the present mansion. The soil is clayey; subsoil, limestone and clay. The chief crops are barley and oats. The area is 1,737 acres; rateable value, £1,218; the population in 1901 was 214.

By Local Government Board Order 16,305, which came into operation March 24, 1884, Stallingthorne &c. was transferred from Huntsham to Hockworthy for civil purposes.

IDDESLEIGH is a parish and village, on the river Torridge, 8 miles south-west from Eggesford station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, 4 miles north-north-east from Hatherleigh and 10 north from Okehampton and 9 miles north-west from North Tawton, in the Western division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Hatherleigh petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Torrington, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. This place gives the title of earl to the Northcote family. The church of St. James is an ancient building in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 4 bells, of which the first two are dated 1620 and the third 1629; the tenor has an invocation to St. George in old English characters: under an obtuse arch in the north aisle is the recumbent cross-legged effigy of a knight in chain mail, covered with a cyclus and bearing a shield, c. 1250, supposed to represent an ancestor of Sir John Sully K.G. a distinguished warrior of the reigns of Edward I. and Edward II. who had "a fair house and two parks" at Idlesleigh, where he died in 1387, aged 105; there are memorial windows, erected in 1866, to Hugh Mallett, of Ash, d. 1865, and to Maria Louisa Prior; a memorial window has been placed at the east end of the north aisle by subscription, to Stafford Henry, 1st Earl of Idlesleigh G.C.B., P.C. d. Jan. 12, 1887: a new organ was provided in 1897 at a cost of about £120: there are sittings for 120 persons: the church was repaired and partly rebuilt in 1848, at a cost of about £400, and restored in 1879 at an expense of £1,500. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £270, including 146 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of, and held since 1864 by the Rev. Charles Spackman B.A. of New Inn Hall, Oxford. There is a Bible Christian chapel here, erected in 1890. Ash, the seat of John Smyth Smyth-Osbourne esq. D.L., J.P. by purchase from Hugh Mallett esq. is an ancient building of stone standing on an eminence, in grounds richly timbered, and commanding uninterrupted views of the Dartmoor hills and the valley of the Okement, and is approached through an avenue of fine beech trees. Nethercott is the residence of Mrs. Arnold. The Earl of Idlesleigh C.B. who is lord of the manor, John S. Smyth-Osbourne and Mrs. Arnold are the chief landowners. The soil is sandy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 2,971 acres of land and 16 of water; rateable value, £2,235; the population in 1901 was 335.

IDE is a parish and village, pleasantly seated in a sheltered valley on the small river Alphin, 2 miles south-south-west from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Exminster hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Kenn, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Ida is a plain cemented structure in the Decorated style, consisting of a chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing 6 bells, cast in 1880 in place of a former peal of 4, dating from 1693 to 1720, but in part useless: the church was rebuilt in 1834 at a cost of about £1,200, when the 15th century rood screen was removed and is now lost, and has 530 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £245, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1886 by the Rev. James Theodore Sheldon Bryett M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The Congregational chapel, erected in 1883 on a site given by J. C. Webber esq. is a building of stone. The charities are of the yearly value of £5. Pole House is now (1901) unoccupied. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who are lords of the manor, Lord Haldon and John Tuckett esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is clayey and sandy; the subsoil is red sandstone. There are many good farms in this parish, considered to be well cultivated, excellent crops of wheat being produced. The area is 1,658 acres; rateable value, £2,951; the population in 1901 was 689.

By Local Government Board Order 16,545, which came into operation March 24, 1884, a detached part of Exminster, known as Knowle and a detached part of Kenn, known as Perridge, were amalgamated with this parish for civil purposes.

IDEFORD, called in the Exchequer Domesday and the Exeter Domesday "Hindeford" and "Hindefort," and in Oliver's Ecclesiastical Antiquities of Devon and Cornwall, "Yuddeford," "Eddeford" and "Goddeford," is a parish and village, in a beautiful wooded valley surrounded by lofty hills. 3 miles south-east from Chudleigh station on the Teign Valley branch of the Great Western railway, $5\frac{1}{2}$ north-north-east from Newton Abbot and about 5 north-west from Teignmouth, in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge hundred and petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary-the-Virgin is an ancient building of stone, principally in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, one being known as "the Mary bell"; in 1884 two of the old bells were recast and three new ones added, one of the latter being given by A. E. Hope esq. and another by G. H. Pinckard esq.; the tenor is inscribed "I. P. 1666"; the north aisle dates apparently from the 15th century: the arms of the Arundells appear in one of the windows; the windows in this aisle were reglazed in 1893 and adorned with the heraldry of the Acland and Arundell families: the east window is a memorial to Capt. William Eccles Mostyn, of H.M. 24th Regiment (South Wales Borderers), who fell at Isandula, January 22, 1879, and there are others to John Hayman Whiteway, d. 1887, and other members of that family and to Mrs. Miller, besides memorial tablets to the Rev. John Bradford, 36 years rector here, d. November 1, 1811, and other members of his family; to the Rev. George Heywood, 25 years rector, d. May 29, 1836; and to the Rev. E. B. St. John, 12 years rector here, d. April 4, 1856; a brass tablet was placed to members of the Whiteway family in 1892; the church was restored in 1852 and again in 1885, 1887 and 1890 at a cost of £777, chiefly found by the rector and his friends, when the chancel was rebuilt and lengthened, a new vestry built, the old one being converted into an organ chamber, and in 1891 a new organ was built, the nave resected and the interior generally renovated: the brass lectern was presented by Miss Harrison: the ancient screen was removed about 1846, and two sanctuary chairs are said to have been made out of it: there are 180 sittings. The register dates from May, 1698. The living is a rectory, net yearly value, £235, including 63 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Gerard John Ford M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge. The charities amount to about £20 yearly; a sum of 20s. annually, the gift of Humphrey Borington in 1580, is again distributed on his tomb every Good Friday, in accordance with his will. Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, who is lord of the manor, and Capt. John George Edmund Templer, of Lyndridge, Bishops Teignton; Mrs. Endacott, of Newton Abbot; William Cornish Cleave esq. of Shobrooke, and William Henry Whiteway-Wilkinson esq. F.R.C.S. of Inverteign, Teignmouth, are the chief landowners. The soil is limestone; the subsoil is gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,440 acres; rateable value, £1,846; the population in 1901 was 254.

ILFRACOMBE.

ILFRACOMBE is a watering-place, seaport, market town and parish, and has a terminal station on a branch from Barnstaple of the London and South Western railway, 226 miles from London and 221 by the Great Western railway, 11 north-west from Barnstaple, $53\frac{1}{2}$ north-north-west from Exeter, 89½ from Plymouth and 103 from Bristol, in the North Western division of the county, Braunton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter. Ilfracombe possesses communication by rail with all parts of the kingdom; the extension of the South Western line from Barnstaple to Ilfracombe was completed in July, 1874; and the Great Western Railway Co. obtained running powers over the South Western line from Barnstaple to Ilfracombe in 1887. Steam packets also ply during the season to Lymouth for Lynton, Bristol, Padstow, Hayle and Swansea. This town, as a watering place, is of rising importance, the warmth, salubrity and equable character of its atmosphere rendering it a favourable resort for invalids and other visitors; the average winter temperature is 44° 75' or about one degree higher than that of Torquay, and its mean range 7° 8' as compared with 17° at Nice. The rate of mortality is very low, the average, including visitors, being 15 in 1,000, or 1 5-10th per cent.; it is sheltered by the eminence known as Capstone hill, 156 feet in height on the north shore, and Lantern hill, overlooking the harbour between the town and the Bristol channel. The town stands on a stratum of slate rock, intersected by veins of quartz at an angle of nearly 45°; hence the drainage is perfect, and in a few hours after heavy rains the town and walks become dry. It formerly consisted only of one irregular street, nearly a mile in length, but has in course of time been much altered and extended, and now contains many thoroughfares; terraces and detached villas have been built, chiefly for the convenience of visitors in the summer season, and around the Capstone walks have been constructed, thus from most points fine views of the coast, the Bristol Channel and the shores of Carmarthenshire can be obtained. The town was anciently a borough, with a mayor and bailiffs, but its municipal character has long been lost.

Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), it is now governed by an Urban District Council of 15 members, in place of the Local Board constituted in 1851. Extensive works for water supply and drainage have been carried out, and the approaches to the town much improved, under the supervision of Mr. E. Appleton C.B. of Torquay; and in 1889 a reservoir, holding 50 millions of gallons, was constructed at a cost of £11,000, so as to afford a constant and ample supply.

The harbour is formed by a natural basin, surrounded and nearly enclosed by rocks; and at the entrance is a pier originally erected by the Bouchiers, Earls of Bath, Barons Fitz-Warine and vice-admirals of the place; it was lengthened, partly rebuilt and enlarged in 1760, by Sir Bouchier Wrey bart. M.P. then lord of the manor; in the year 1823 it sustained considerable damage, but was further enlarged and repaired by Sir Bouchier Wrey bart. D.C.L. his son, in 1824, and completed in 1829, by Sir Bouchier Palk Wrey bart. late lord of the manor: the harbour is tidal, and dues are payable from vessels entering; the anchorage is very secure. The late Sir Henry Bouchier Wrey bart. M.A., J.P. in 1870 obtained power for the improvements of the harbour; and further improvements were carried out in 1893; the quay widened from Britannia hotel to the Pier hotel, and a jetty completed from the back of the quay to Warp House point; a low-water jetty was constructed in 1873.

The ancient chapel of St. Nicholas (the patron saint of sailors), situated on the Lantern Rock, at the entrance to the harbour, at an elevation of about 100 feet above high-water mark, has been converted into a lighthouse.

The church of the Holy Trinity, standing on an eminence at the western extremity of the town, and protected by hills of considerable height from the north and south-west winds, is an ancient edifice of stone in the Norman, Transition and Decorated styles, with Perpendicular additions, and consists of chancel with aisles, nave, aisles, north and south porches and an embattled tower on the north side, with pinnacles and containing a clock and 8 bells: the chancel retains a Decorated piscina, and in the nave are some good corbels: there are several fine stained windows, and a tablet to Capt. Richard Bowen R.N. who fell at the attack on Teneriffe, under Nelson, 15 Feb. 1797; another, to Charles and Grace Cutcliffe, 1637, has a quaint inscription, forming a double acrostic: there are some remains of the rood loft stairs in the south wall: the church has been thoroughly restored and re-seated, and has 1,200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1567. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £700, including 3 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Richard Martin M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Oxford, prebendary of Exeter, rural dean of Barnstaple and surrogate. The old Vicarage house, which comprised some portions of the Manor House of Camden's time, one room having a roof of ribbed oak, was taken down and a new house erected in 1888 by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

SS. Philip and James is an ecclesiastical parish formed May 17, 1850: the church, which is at the lower part of the town close to the Capstone hill, was erected in 1856 from the designs of Mr. J. Hayward, of Exeter, and is a building of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch, vestry and a massive tower on the north side, with spire and containing 6 bells, hung in 1876, at a cost of £1,000, when the church was also enlarged: in 1890, the Rev. W. Brigstock left £400 for the internal improvement of the church, and from this fund there was erected in 1890 a new pulpit of Devonshire marble and alabaster; brass communion rails and gas standards bossed with onyx have also been added. There are several stained windows; the west window being a memorial to W. H. Stone esq. by whom this church was partly built, and the church affords 673 sittings. The register dates from the year 1857. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £92, with residence, in the gift of the Church Trust Fund, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Hanbury Barnes.

LEE is an ecclesiastical parish, formed March 19, 1869, from the parishes of Ilfracombe and Morthoe; the church of St. Matthew, erected in the year 1833, is a small edifice of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel and nave, and a western turret containing one bell: the east window is stained: the gallery, seats and pulpit are of handsomely carved old oak, of Jacobean date; all the windows on the south side are stained, one being a memorial to the Rev. Alfred Lush M.A. vicar of this parish 1877-87: the church will seat 120 persons. The register dates from the year 1869. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £186, and a house standing in 2 acres of ground, in the gift of the vicar of Ilfracombe, and held since 1887 by the Rev. William Fisher McMichael M.A. of Downing College, Cambridge.

Christ Church, in Portland street, belonging to the Free Church of England, was erected in 1844, restored and re-seated in 1878; it consists of chancel, nave and south aisle, with a gallery at the west end: the font is supposed to have been a Roman quern: this church will seat 500 persons.

The Catholic chapel in Runnacleave road, erected in 1893, and dedicated to Our Lady Star of the Sea, affords about 200 sittings.

The Wesleyan Methodist chapel, Wilder road, erected in 1899-1900, is a building of stone, and will seat 500 persons.

The Wesleyan chapel, Lee, erected in 1889, is a small edifice of brick with stone dressings, and will seat 80 persons.

The Congregational chapel, High street, erected, with schoolroom, in 1818, was enlarged in 1884, at a cost of over £3,000, and will seat 735 persons.

There is also a small Congregational chapel at Hele, with 70 sittings.

The Baptist chapel, High street, built in 1891 at a cost of about £3,500, is an edifice of stone, and has sittings for 550 persons.

The Brethren's meeting room, in High street, affords 200 sittings.

The Bible Christians' chapel, in Oxford grove, erected in 1873 as a public hall, at a cost of £2,000, and converted to its present purpose in 1891, is an edifice of brick, holding about 900 persons.

In the Braunton road there is a small cemetery of 3 acres, formed in 1854, at a cost of £400, and containing a mortuary chapel, built by the late Mr. Richard Bligh.

The Market Hall, in Market street and Avenue road, was erected in 1900-1 at a cost of £4,900, and is a large building of stone, let for dramatic entertainments &c. and seating 1,000 persons; attached are dressing rooms, lavatories &c.

The Town Hall and old Market House were built in 1862. The former, facing the High street, has a facade of Bath stone in the Classical style, and contains a public hall holding 300 persons, and on the first and ground floors the offices of the Urban District Council.

Petty sessions are for convenience held at the Town Hall.

The Ilfracombe Hotel, centrally situated close to the sea, within 50 yards of Capstone Hill parade and commanding beautiful land and sea views, was erected by a limited company in 1867 and enlarged in 1871; it is a building in the French Gothic style, elegantly furnished, and containing a lounge hall, added in 1892, library and reading, smoking and billiard rooms and a lift; the surrounding grounds, of five acres in extent, are laid out in a tasteful manner; every modern improvement has been adopted in the construction of the hotel, and it is, as far as practicable, fire-proof. Baths (fresh and salt), situated within the grounds and available to the public, were opened in 1880. The covered swimming bath is 160 feet long and 50 feet wide, and holds 178,000 gallons of sea water, which is entirely changed every 24 hours, and a constant flow of water is maintained by means of a powerful steam pump.

There are several other good hotels in the town, the chief of which are the Royal Clarence family and commercial, and the Runnacleave private hotel.

The Victoria Promenade, at the foot of the Capstone hill, erected in 1888 at a cost of £4,000, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Gould, then architect and surveyor to the local board, is a large building of iron and glass, 200 feet long and 35 feet wide, with three entrances, a central dome and a verandah in front; the interior, which contains an orchestra, is filled with graceful palms and climbing plants, and there are attached cloak and retiring rooms.

The Sailors' Bethel and Coffee Room, on the quay, is well supplied with writing materials, newspapers, books &c.; the expenses are defrayed by voluntary contributions. There is also a lifeboat station and rocket apparatus at Capstone hill, from which telegraphic and telephonic communications are maintained to and from all stations round the coast.

"Our Boys" Institute, in Ropery road, was established in 1881, and comprises a reading room, gymnasium &c.; it is open daily during the winter months, and class instruction is given in wood carving and fret work.

Ilfracombe is the head quarters of the 10th Company of the 1st Devonshire Volunteer Artillery, Western Division Royal Garrison Artillery.

The Market House, in Market street, on the slope of a hill, is divided into two portions, for vegetables and other goods. The market is held weekly on Saturdays and Wednesdays in the season, and the annual market on the 1st Saturday after August 22nd; a fair was formerly held here on the 14th April, but this has become extinct.

The Early Closing day is on Thursday at 2 p.m.

Science and art classes in connection with South Kensington Museum are held in the National school, Church street, on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays from October till May.

The Ilfracombe Choral Society holds its meetings at The Masonic Temple, Northfield road.

There are baths (fresh and salt) at the foot of Northfield and at the Ilfracombe hotel.

The Masonic Temple, Northfield road, was erected 1899. The Ilfracombe and North Devon Constitutional Club, at 7 High street, comprises reading, billiard and smoking rooms, and a number of furnished apartments; there are now (1901) about 160 members; Mr. H. J. Macey, sec.

The Ilfracombe Liberal Association has premises at 4 Oxford grove, which are open to members every evening.

The Working Men's Club occupies rooms at the Infants' school, Church hill; daily and weekly papers, periodicals &c. are provided, and there is a library of over 300 vols.

The Tyrrell Cottage Hospital, in Horne lane, founded in the year 1864 by Mrs. Tyrrell, for the poor of Ilfracombe, was rebuilt in 1868, and now contains 25 beds for in-patients. Charities producing £50 yearly are distributed to the poor.

The Ropery Meadow, adjoining the Capstone hill, an eminence from which fine views can be obtained, purchased by the Board of Health for a sum of £2,203, is now used as a recreation ground, and paths and numerous covered seats have been made and added on and around the hill.

The Cairn, a public pleasure ground, situated about a quarter of a mile south of the railway station and adjacent to the line, consists chiefly of rough hilly land covered with furze and brake, and in area about 9 acres, the highest point-being about 500 feet above the sea, or three times as high as the "Capstone"; walks have been formed, giving easy access to the summit and to many secluded nooks in the rocks which cover the side of the hill; convenient seats have also been placed at various spots, from which fine views of the neighbourhood and the Bristol Channel may be obtained. A large portion of the land on Cairn side is now planted with pinus austriaca and Scotch fir, and the walks are bordered with rhododendrons and laurels.

Commander Sir Robert Bouchier Sherard Wrey bart. is lord of the manor.

The chief landowners are C. B. M. Drake-Cutcliffe esq.

ILSHAM, see Torquay.

ILSINGTON is a parish and village, $\frac{2}{3}$ miles west of the great road between Chudleigh and Ashburton, $\frac{2}{3}$ miles south-west of Bovey station on the Moreton Hampstead branch of the Great Western railway, 7 north-west from Newton Abbot and 5 north-by-east from Ashburton, in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge hundred and petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union and county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The parish church of St. Michael is a fine building, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, with remains of a much earlier date, and consists of chancel with side chapels and richly carved oak screen, nave, aisles, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: the font is ancient: in the north transept is a stone effigy, said to represent one of the Denham family, connected with the parish in the reign of Edward I.: there is also a slab with an elegant incised cross: some of the bench ends, which retain their poppy heads, bear the arms of the Beaumonts and Pomeroy, who possessed Ingsdon, in this parish, in the 15th century: and there is a fine rood screen now despoiled of its gironing, and seven stained windows; one in the south transept is a memorial to John and Henrietta Emma Divett, of Bovey Tracey, and was placed by their daughter in 1888; another in the north transept was erected by George Wills esq. in memory of his wife and two sons, who died respectively in 1860, 1870 and 1872; and there are three in the chancel and two in the south chapel: the church was restored and reseated in 1884 at a cost of £1,800, chiefly by public subscriptions, the cost of the restoration of the chancel being defrayed by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners: there are 300 sittings: at the eastern entrance to the churchyard is a lych gate. The registers date from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £281, including 91 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1899 by the Rev. William Russell Fox. There is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1852, and seating 70; and a Congregational chapel. The Moorland Hotel, now (1901) in course of erection, at a cost of over £4,000, is situated at a short distance from Haytor Rocks, and will command extensive views of the surrounding country: there will be 20 bed rooms, public and private sitting and dining rooms and a large billiard room. Lead, copper and tin mines have been worked; there are granite quarries of excellent quality at Haytor, in the parish. The Haytor Rocks are 1,550 feet in height; other notable eminences are Saddle Tor, 1,500 feet, and Rippon Tor, 1,563 feet, the views from which are very fine. The charities are:—Miss Jane Ford's, producing £20 yearly, for educating the poor children of the parish, secured on an estate in the parish of Ashburton, and divided between the two National schools in the parish: Candy's, producing £56 yearly, distributed in coats, hats, shirts and shoes to the poor of the parish: Mrs. Hale left property producing £9 gs. od. yearly, to be distributed in money to six old people, who must repeat the Catechism publicly in the church on the first Sunday in November: there is also a charity producing about £35 yearly, vested in the funds for the temporary relief of poor people meeting with accidents or illness, and a benefaction of £300, left about 1893 by W. F. Widger esq. and invested in Consols, the interest being distributed in the form of coats and blankets to the poor of the parish. Ingsdon Manor House is the residence of Charles James Hale Monro esq. J.P. Some remains of the ancient manor house of Ilsington exist near the church. The Rev. Prebendary Richard Robbins Wolfe M.A. of Arthington, is lord of the manor of Ilsington, and the Baroness de Virte, of Sandridge Park, C. J. Hale Monro esq. Mrs. Woodley, Miss Divett, of Bovey Tracy, the trustees of the late Alfred Lyon, Charles William Wills, John Bovey esqrs.

INSTOW is a parish and village, at the confluence of the rivers Taw and Torridge, immediately opposite the town of Appledore, and on the high road from Bideford to Barnstaple, having a station on the North Devon extension of the London and South Western railway, and is 6 miles west from Barnstaple, 3 north-east from Bideford and 217½ from London, in the North Western division of the county, Fremington hundred, Braunton petty sessional division, Barnstaple union, Bideford county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. Instow is much frequented in summer as a watering place, and a vessel from hence sails every Thursday to Lundy Island in the Bristol channel. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, transept, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing 3 bells, of which the first has a legend in Old English letters; the others are dated 1694 and 1682: the church was thoroughly restored in 1875 at a cost of £1,200, and a new vestry was built in 1880: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1717. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £120, including 31 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of A. L. Christie esq. and held since 1893 by the Rev. Samuel Charles Haines Ph.D. of the University of Rostock. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Joan Tucker's charity, of £2 yearly, is distributed among the poor. Augustus Langham Christie esq. of Tapeley Park, Westleigh, who is lord of the manor and Miss Arundell Yeo, of Fremington House, are the chief landowners. The soil is light loam; subsoil, clay. The area is 1,698 acres of land, 1 of water, 54 of tidal water and 303 of foreshore; rateable value, £2,973; the population in 1901 was 634.

INWARDLEIGH is a parish and village on the road from Okehampton to Hatherleigh, 4 miles north-west from Okehampton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, and 4½ south-east from Hatherleigh, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Black Torrington, Hatherleigh petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The place derives its name from a Thane called "Inwardus," who in the time of the Con- fessor held here the manor of "Lega" or "Leigh." The church (dedication unknown) is an ancient building of stone, chiefly Early English, with Early Perpendicular insertions, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, sepa- rated from the nave by an arcade of four arches, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 5 bells, rehung in 1899: the base of the tower and the font are Norman: the stained east window was erected by the poor of Inwardleigh in memory of Rebecca Maria Mitchel, late of the city of Bath, and a benefactress to this parish, who died March 19th, 1860, aged 75 years: the church was thoroughly restored and reseated in 1899, at a cost of over £2,500, and affords 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1699. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £200, including 230 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Simeon trustees, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Wilson Griffith Brougham Butlin M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge. A Missior room was erected, at Folly Gate, in 1897, at a cost of £225, and will hold 100 persons. There are Baptist, Bible Christian and Wesleyan chapels. The poor have the fourth part of Newcombe's (Crediton) charity. Viscount Portman, who is lord of the manor, the trustees of the late Ven. Archdeacon Woolcombe and John Reddaway esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area of the parish is 6,102 acres; rateable value, £2,487; the population in 1901 was 421.

IPPLEPEN is a village and parish, 3 miles west-by- south from Kingskerswell station, on the Torquay branch of the South Devon (Great Western) railway, 3 south-by- west from Newton Abbot and 5 north-north-east from Totnes, in the Mid division of the county, hundred of

Sexton, William Berry.

Post Office, Inwardleigh.—John Dustan, sub-postmaster. Letters through Okehampton by foot messenger arrive at 7.30 a.m.; dispatched at 5.25 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Okehampton, 4 miles distant. Letter Box, Folly gate, cleared at 6 p.m. week days only

A School Board of 5 members was formed February 20, 1877; J. D. Prickman, Okehampton, clerk to the board; Samuel Landick, attendance officer

Board School (mixed), erected in 1876, for 110 children; average attendance, 55; John Drought, master; Mrs. Mary Drought, mistress

Haytor, petty sessional division of Teignbridge, union of Newton Abbot, county court district of Newton Abbot and Torquay, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew is a large and ancient fabric of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles separated from the nave by arcades of six arches, south porch and a massive embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, of which the first four date from 1799, and the remaining two respectively from 1795 and 1818: the aisles have embattled parapets and a small tower at each angle: the chancel has been new roofed, and new windows inserted: there is an ancient rood screen of exquisite design, beautifully restored, at a cost of £500, in 1898, and two parclose: the rood loft stairs also remain, and a pulpit of richly-carved oak: the chancel retains a piscina and ambry, and a stoup remains in the porch: the font is Early Perpendicular, and has a panelled basin with carved figures: there are many mural monuments to members of the Studdy, Shepherd, Neyle and Raynes families: in 1883 a new organ was placed in an organ loft then erected, at a cost of £200, the western gallery being then removed: the church was partially restored in 1892 at a cost of £1,000, raised by subscription: the communion plate includes a chalice, supposed to be coeval with the erection of the church: there are 230 sittings. The churchyard is entered through east and west lych gates and contains the broken shaft of a cross on a granite pedestal, similar to the one at Torbryan. The register dates from the year 1558, and a list of vicars from the year 1274. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £268, including 21½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Robert Duins Cooke B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The Wesleyan chapel, erected with adjoining schools in 1866, at a cost of £2,000, is a building of limestone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early English style, and has sittings for 600 persons. The poor have about £16 distributed yearly. Here are marble quarries belonging to Mr. W. G. Thorpe, and limestone quarries the property of Mr. R. Maddicott. Lime burning and quarrying is carried on here by the Stoney Combe Lime and Stone Company. This parish was formerly the site of a Benedictine priory, a cell of St. Pierre Fougères, and dedicated to St. Andrew. The Priory, the residence of Miss De Lisle is said to incorporate a part of the original buildings of the ancient priory, but with several modern additions, and the whole forms a commodious mansion, standing in about 7 acres of garden and meadow land. IVYBRIDGE is a small market town and civil parish, formed in 1894 under the provisions of the "Local Government Act" (57 and 58 Vict. c. 73, section 1, sub-section 3), from the parishes of Ermington, Cornwood, Harford and Ugborough; it is on the river Erme, which is here crossed by three stone bridges, with a station half a mile north on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, and is 12 miles south-west from Totnes, 10½ east-by-north from Plymouth, 34 south-south-west from Exeter and 235 from London, in the Southern division of the county, Ermington and Plympton petty sessional division, Plympton St. Mary union, East Stonehouse county court district, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter.

The town is governed by an Urban District Council are no manorial rights, the land being all freehold. The chief landowners are Robert Maddicott esq. of Daignton, Edgar Neyle esq. Francis Baring Short esq. of Bickham Kenn, Matthew Fortescue esq. J. M. D. Shepherd esq. Henry Pearce esq. Cecil Edward Bewes esq. of Ridgeway, and J. F. Robinson esq. Messrs. Hamlyn Brothers, Mrs. Lydstone, Mrs. Bowden and W. H. B. Ash esq. The soil is fine loam and clay; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The parish contains 2,887 acres of good land; rateable value, £6,185; the population in 1901 was 789.

By Local Government Board Order, 16,370, which came into operation March 24, 1864, Apton Farm and cottages were transferred from this parish to Marldon, in Totnes union; and by Order, 16,367, March 25, 1885, Bramridge was added to Torbryan for civil purposes

DAIGNTON is a hamlet, 1 mile east from the village.

COMBE FISHACRE is a hamlet, 1½ miles south-east. Combe Fishacre House, the residence of Thomas Hodgson Archer-Hind esq. M.A., J.P. is a pleasantly situated house, standing in a park and gardens of about 6 acres, built in 1830 by the father of the present owner.

CASTLEFORD hamlet adjoins Combe Fishacre, on the west.

WOODLAND, formerly a chapelry of Ipplepen, but now an ecclesiastical parish, will be found under a separate head.

Parish Clerk, James S. Hodge.

of 11 members, constituted under the previously-mentioned Act, which takes the place of a Local Board, established under the Act of 1858; it is lighted with oil lamps and contains many good houses and shops. The temperature is mild and the surrounding scenery very beautiful, with the adjuncts of wood and water, and is much frequented by tourists. The ecclesiastical parish was formed in 1835. The church of St. John, erected in 1882, at a cost of £4,000, and constituted the parish church by instrument, dated January 9, 1883, is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave aisles and south porch: the piers of the arcades are of polished marble: during the years 1891-2 the church was redecorated throughout, the cost being defrayed from subscriptions and other sources:

there are 500 sittings. The ivy-covered tower of the old church, erected towards the end of the last century, is still standing. The register dates from the year 1835. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £150, with residence, in the gift of Lady Blachford, and held since 1872 by the Rev. George William Anstiss B.A. of the University of London, and chaplain of Plymouth Borough Asylum. Here is a Congregational chapel, erected in 1869, with Sunday schools attached. The Wesleyan Methodist chapel, in Fore street, erected in 1875, at a cost of £6,000, given by John Allen and Sons, is a building of stone in the Gothic style: the old chapel, erected in 1860, is now used as a Sunday school. The cemetery, opened in June, 1887, comprises 1½ acres, purchased at a cost of £1,300, and is divided into consecrated and unconsecrated portions, with a mortuary chapel in each portion; it is under the management of the Urban District Council. There is a Reading Room with library, supported by voluntary contributions. The Masonic Hall is in Chapel place. The large paper mills of Messrs. John Allen and Sons, who manufacture the finest qualities of note paper, employ over 200 persons. Francis Holman and Son also have a paper mill here, and there is a tannery and a flour mill. There are two good hotels; Millbourn's London hotel, which has a large concert room and private gardens, is a favourite resort of visitors and tourists. The early closing day is on Wednesday. The Misses Deare, of Blachford, are ladies of the manor and owners of all the Ermington and Cornwood portions of the land, the remainder being generally freehold and belonging to various gentlemen. The soil is light; subsoil, principally clay. The parish contains 500 acres; rateable value, £8,235; the population in 1891 of the Urban District and civil parish was 1,782, and of the ecclesiastical parish, 1,881, and of the Urban District in 1901, 1,575.

WOODLAND, half a mile north-west.

JACOBSTOWE is a parish and village, 5 miles north from Okehampton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway and 3½ south-east from Hatherleigh, in the Western division of the county. Black Torington hundred, Hatherleigh petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. James is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with crocketed pinnacles and containing a clock and 4 bells: in the north wall of the chancel is a mural monument of marble to Dame Ellen Astley, wife of Lieut.-Col. Lewis Powell Madden M.D. and widow of Captain Sir Edward Astley R.N. d. 1848: on the north side of the nave is a stained window to Lieut.-Col. Lewis Powell Madden M.D. d. 1887: the stained east window was erected in 1883 by public subscription as a memorial to the Rev. John Vincent M.A. rector, 1847-83: the west window was placed to the memory of Mrs. Margaret Day, d. 1874, by Mrs. Windham Holley, of Okehampton: there are 130 sittings: in the churchyard is a fine avenue of sycamores, and a cross of granite to Lieut. Henry Noel White-Thomson R.N. d. 1886. The register dates from the year 1587. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £180, including 63 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Sir B. T. White-Thomson K.C.B. and held since 1899 by the Rev.

Henry Raines Krüger M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Broomford Manor, which commands a fine and extensive view of the Dartmoor range of hills and the Okehampton Camp, is the residence of Col. Sir Robert T. White-Thomson K.C.B. who is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The manor of Broomford formerly belonged to the family of Leigh, whose heiress married a Beare; this branch took the name of Broomford, and from these it passed by marriage respectively to Pridaux, Strechleigh, Chudleigh and Oxenden families, and then to the Burtons, whose representatives sold it in 1863 to Col. Sir B. T. White-Thomson K.C.B. the present owner. Dunsland Court, the property of Capt. George Wrigley, 4th Batt. Devonshire Regiment, is now occupied by Alfred Hargreaves esq. The soil is red land and dun; subsoil, stone and shale. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and grass. The parish comprises 2,878 acres of land and 15 of water; rateable value, £1,396; the population in 1901 was 229.

KELLY is a parish, 3 miles south from Lifton station on the Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, 8 north-west from Tavistock, and 6½ south-east from Launceston, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred and petty sessional division, Tavistock union, county court district of Launceston, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary, situated in the centre of the parish, is a structure in the Perpendicular style of the 14th century, consisting of chancel, with north chapel, separated from the chancel by an arcade of two arches, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, all cast in 1772; the north chapel retains a piscina and at the east end is a window restored in 1882, and filled with ancient stained glass of the 15th century, comprising figures of Edward the Confessor bearing in his hand a church, the Virgin Mary, Our Lord on the Cross, and St. John the Evangelist: the heraldic devices include the arms of Carew of Crowcombe, Tremayne and Talbot: the window was inserted by a Tremayne of Collacombe-Lamerton, who married a Miss Carew and whose daughter was the wife of Oliver Kelly of Kelly: the east (chancel) window is a memorial to Reginald Kelly esq. d. Aug. 1899, and was erected by his widow in 1900; several others are also stained and together with numerous mural and other monuments are principally memorials to members of the Kelly family, and in 1897 a window was erected by Reginald Kelly esq. in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee: there is a memorial window to Arthur Kelly esq. J.P. ob. 1873: and another to the Rev. Henry John Morshead, late rector, ob. 1881: the church was restored in 1865 and affords 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, average yearly value £240, including 73 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Rev. Maitland Kelly M.A. and held since 1887 by the Rev. Hugh Fuller-Maitland M.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford. The whole of the parish and the manorial rights are the property of the Rev. Maitland Kelly M.A. of Kelly House, a pleasant Tudor residence near the church, and have been enjoyed by this family since the time of Henry II. The soil is light loam; subsoil, loamy clay. The land is mostly in pasture. The area is 1,773 acres; rateable value, £2,021, and the population in 1891 was 236.

KENN is a parish and village on the river Kenn and near the Plymouth road, 2½ miles south-south-west from Exminster station on the main line of the Great Western railway, and 4 south from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Exminster hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union; county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew, restored in 1889, under the direction of Mr. H. Woodyer, architect, is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, all cast by Mears, of London, in 1826; the fine screen was restored, and the rood and accompanying figures replaced in 1885 at the expense of the late Rev. Reginald Porter M.A. rector 1858-94, the work being carried out by Hems and Sons, of Exeter; there are a few monuments, a Norman font and several stained windows: the church has been restored at different times at a cost of £2,000, and affords 300 sittings. In the churchyard is a very large yew tree, said to be between 800 and 900 years old. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £508, with residence and 199 acres of glebe, in the gift of John Henry Francis Ley esq. and held since 1894 by the Rev. Frank Whitaker Vining M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. The charities, amounting to £2 8s. yearly, are distributed in bread on Easter eve and Christmas eve. Haldon House, the seat of James Fitz-Gerald Bannatyne esq. J.P. is a handsome mansion, standing on a commanding eminence in a finely-wooded park; the views from the house are grand and extensive. Trehill, the seat of John Henry Francis Ley esq. D.L., J.P.; Bickham House, the seat of Miss Short, and Woodlands, that of the Rev. Roger Granville M.A. are all mansions of some importance. The principal landowners are James Fitz-Gerald Bannatyne esq.; J. H. F. Ley esq. who is lord of the manor, and the trustees of the late F. A. Short esq. The soil is loam; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are corn and roots, also much grazing land. The area is 5,241 acres; rateable value, £5,927; the population in 1901 was 773, not including Perridge, a hamlet part of the ecclesiastical parish of Kenn and numbers about 12 inhabitants. By Local Government Board Order 16,545, which came into operation March 25, 1884, a detached part of this parish known as Perridge was transferred to Ide for civil purposes. Kenn Reading Room, erected in 1878 by the Rev. Reginald Porter M.A. rector 1858-94, is a neat and substantial building, comprising reading and games rooms, with small billiard and bagatelle tables, and supplied with the London and local papers, magazines &c.; there is also a library of about 400 vols. and an attached skittle alley; this institution has about 50 members and is open daily from 1 to 2 p.m. and 6 to 10 p.m. and on Sundays from 2 to 5 p.m.

KENNERLEIGH (anciently Kynwarthlegh) is a small village and parish, seated on a pleasant declivity on the road from Crediton to South Molton, and skirted on the south by a tributary stream of the river Cready, and is 6 miles north-by-west from Crediton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 13 north-west from Exeter and 196 from London, in the Northern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Crediton, rural deanery of Cadbury, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist is a building of stone, in the Later Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing 3 bells; the first is plain but ancient; the second has a reversed inscription in unusual characters and the third is an alphabet bell; all three are cracked: the church was repaired and newly slated in 1847, the chancel being restored by the rector about the same time: a memorial window was afterwards inserted to the Rev. William Owen Tripp: in 1895 the interior of the church was restored, re-floored and re-seated at a cost of £350: there are 100 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1645; marriages, 1696; burials, 1663. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £90, including

KENTISBEARE is a parish and village, 3 miles east-by-north from Cullompton station on the Bristol and Exeter section of the Great Western railway, 8 south-east from Tiverton and 8½ north-west from Honiton, in the North Eastern division of the county, Hayridge hundred, Cullompton petty sessional division, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of East Tiverton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. A small stream, a tributary to the river Culme, rises here. Henland, formerly belonging to Cullompton, now forms part of Kentisbeare. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells: an old rood screen, coloured and gilt, and the rood loft stairs remain: in the south aisle is an altar tomb, on which, until Feb. 1858, were male and female brass effigies, the former being in armour; above the matrices is an inverted inscription to John Whytyng esq. ob. March 15, 1529, and Anne, his wife, and at the head and foot four shields, with the arms of Whytyng, Clivedon and Pauncefoot; the fine screen between this aisle and the chancel retains traces of colour, and bears shields with the arms of Whytyng impaling or quartering other coats; one of the piers of the arcade also has shields of these arms, and another a merchant's mark and the letter "W"; in the same aisle is an altar tomb with inscription in brass and two shields to Mary (Wotton), wife first of Sir Henry Gwyldesford K.G. and next of Sir Gawen Carew, ob. Sept. 13, 1558; the church was restored some years ago at a cost of £1,300. In 1882 a reredos was erected as a memorial to Miss Alleyne by her father, the Rev. J. F. Alleyne M.A. late rector. at the same time the east window and another were filled with stained glass, some tile flooring in the chancel renewed and other improvements effected: in 1884 an organ was erected at a cost of £420 by Francis Radford esq. who also gave £600 more for KENTISBURY is a parish and scattered village, standing at a great elevation, about 2 miles north-west from Blackmore station on the Barnstaple and Lynton railway, opened in 1897, and is 8 east-south-east from Ilfracombe and 9 north-east from Barnstaple, in the 11th Western division of the county, Brantton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwell, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Thomas is an ancient edifice of stone, chiefly in the Early English style, and was restored in 1875 at a cost of £3,000, when a north aisle was added and the chancel lengthened; it now consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower of Perpendicular date, containing 4 bells: of the ancient screen, which in 1847 was in good condition, though it had been painted white, only a few fragments now remain, and these are in the vestry: on the south side is a tablet with a list of the rectors of the parish since the time of Elizabeth, with the dates of their several institutions: the stained east window is a memorial to J. O. Openshaw, d. 1861: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1675. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £300, including 70 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of, and held since 1896 by the Rev. John Ormerod Openshaw B.A. of Clare College, Cambridge. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The principal land-owners are Earl Fortescue and Miss Inledon, who is also lady of the manor. The soil is sandy loam; sub-soil, shale. The chief crops are wheat, oats and pasture. The parish comprises 3,749 acres; assessable value, £2,045; the population in 1891 was 304.

KENTON is a large parish and village, on the road from Dawlish to Exeter, 1½ miles north-west from Starcross station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 5 north from Dawlish and 7 south-by-east from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Exminster hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Kenn, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The village is lighted with gas from works at Southtown, the property of the Starcross and Kenton Gas Light Company Limited, established in 1877. The church of All Saints, a fine building of red sandstone, in the Early Perpendicular style, consists of chancel with aisles, nave of seven bays, aisles, south porch with parvise over, and an embattled western tower, 100 feet in height, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast by T. Bilbie in 1747: the south porch has a groined roof and is ornamented with a profusion of niches: a very rich and elaborate screen of wood, of the same date as the fabric, separates the nave and chancel, and has been restored under the direction of F. Bligh Bond esq. F.S.B.A.: the lower portion is divided into panels containing the Apostle's Creed, in Latin, before each article of which, as supposed to be dictated by an apostle, the painter has introduced one of the ancient prophets, or an apostle bearing a label with a text from the Old Testament, chiefly according to the old Latin version, and referring to the article: afterwards follow eight other figures of saints, including the Blessed Virgin, crowned as Queen of Martyrs, and bearing a sword: the church was greatly improved in 1866, and an addition was made to the burial ground at an expense of £2,000; the east window is stained, and there are memorial windows to Mary, wife of Col. Edward Studd, of Oxtou, d. August 13th, 1853, and to the late Tom Drew esq.: a handsome brass lectern and Bible were given in 1866 by the Rev. Arthur L. Dames B.A. to commemorate the 50th year of his incumbency of this church. The carved oak pulpit is the finest in the county: the retables is a triptych, with carved representations of scenes from the life of Christ: there are monuments to Sir Nicholas Martyn knt. temp. James I., John Rothleigh esq. of Meunobilly, 1651, Lord Lisle, 1856, and a brass to the late Lord Courtenay, d. 1898, besides others, and the church affords 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1694. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £276, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury, and held since 1890 by the Rev. William Philip Strong Bingham M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The great tithes are commuted at £402 10s.; £208 8s. 6d. of which is annexed to the vicarage of Starcross, £10 11s. 1d. to the vicarage of Kenton and the remainder, £243 10s. 5d. is vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The Wesleyan chapel is a building of stone, erected in 1870, and has sittings for 100 persons. A fair is held on Shrove Tuesday, but is now of little importance. The charities are of £18 yearly value; there are also four almshouses, erected by William Reginald, 12th Earl of Devon (d. 1888), occupied by aged widows, who live rent free. There are clothing and coal clubs. In the centre of the village is an enclosed green, planted with shrubs and containing a stone cross, erected by the above Earl of Devon. Oxtou House is the property and residence of Edward Fairfax Studd esq. M.A., B.C.L. and High House of Lady Courtenay. The Earl of Devon is lord of the manor and chief landowner, Sir R. H. S. D. Lydston Newman bart. of Mamhead, and Edward F. Studd esq. also own land in the parish. The soil is light; subsoil, new red sandstone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 5,182 acres of land, 11 of water, 1 of tidal water and 288 of foreshore; rateable value, £9,866; the population in 1901 was 9,866, inclusive of Starcross. Under the provisions of the "Divided Parishes Act," by Local Government Board Order, 16,546, the ecclesiastical district of Cofton, including Cockwood, Middlewood, Westwood, Eastdon, The Warren and Week, amounting to 739 acres, was taken from this parish and added to that of Dawlish, March 25, 1885.

KILMINGTON is a parish and village on the western acclivity of the Axe valley and on the Axminster and Honiton road, 13 miles west-by-south from Axminster station on the London and South Western main line of railway, 7½ south-east from Honiton and 23 from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county. Axminster hundred, petty seasonal division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Dunksell and Honiton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Giles is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1862, at a cost of £1,330, under the direction of Mr. Talbot Bury, architect, of London, and consisting of chancel with side chapels, nave, south porch, aisles and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, and a clock presented in 1883 by Marwood Tucker esq.: the east window and six others are stained, two of these being memorials to the late William Anning esq.: in the church is a large marble monument to Thomas Southcott esq. of Dulcis, in this parish, ob. 31st December, 1715, erected in 1735 by George Southcott, of Dulcis, his eldest son; the monument bears the arms of Southcott, Holway and Fry, and has a genealogical inscription in Latin: in the south, or Coryton aisle, is a fine brass to Charles Tucker esq. of Coryton Park, who died at Marlands, Exeter, on Christmas day, 1885, and in the chancel a brass to the late Frederick Swabey esq. long resident at Coryton Park, d. 1885: the brass altar cross was presented in memory of Mrs. Bridges, of Heathfield, d. May 5, 1886: a handsome alms dish and altar vases have also been given by W. George King esq. and Mrs. King; the communion plate, of silver gilt, was given by members of the Tucker family: an organ was provided in 1895 at a cost of £200: there are 320 sittings. The register dates from the year 1723. The living is a parochial chapelry, annexed with Membury to the vicarage of Axminster, joint net yearly value £220, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Arthur Newman M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who resides at Axminster. The tithe, amounting to £100, is appropriated to the prebendaries of Grindall and Warthill in York Cathedral. Here is a Baptist chapel and a small lending library. The mansion of Coryton Park, built by Benedictus Marwood Tucker, A.D. 1756, and now the property of Charles Marwood Tucker esq. J.P. is a handsome rectangular structure of brick, with stone dressings, in the Ionic style, and has a fine entrance porch surmounted by a pediment adorned with a shield of arms: the house stands in a well-wooded park of about 50 acres, and is at present occupied by Col. De Courcy Daniell. Charles Marwood Tucker esq. who is lord of the manor, Miss Anning, Major Gardiner, the Rev. Henry Buller Heberden M.A. rector of Oddington, Gloucestershire and John Impey Scarborough esq. of Colyford, are the chief landowners. The soil is mixed; the subsoil is marl. The crops are wheat, barley, roots and pasture, with some excellent dairy land. The area is 1,716 acres of land, 9 of water; rateable value, £3,667; the population in 1891 was 558.

KINGSBRIDGE AND DODDBROOKE.

KINGSBRIDGE is a small but important market town, with terminal railway station, and is a parish in the extreme south of Devon, and distant about 5 miles north from the sub-port and harbour of Salcombe and from the English Channel; it is the head of a union and county court district, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Stanborough, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The town, which is the market centre of a large district, is 20 miles east-south-east from Plymouth, 12 south-south-west from Totnes, 10 south-west from Dartmouth, 20 south-west from Torquay, and 23½ from London.

In 1888 an Act of Parliament for making the railway from South Brent to Kingsbridge and Salcombe, which had been previously obtained by private promoters, was transferred to the Great Western railway, and this line was opened in 1893 as far as Kingsbridge.

By an Order of the County Council, confirmed by Local Government Board Order 29,274, which came into operation March 25, 1893, the parishes of Kingsbridge and Dodbrooke were united into one parish for civil purposes.

The town stands on rising ground at the extremity of a long and irregular creek, broken up on either side by numerous inlets; the passage is navigable for ships of from 200 to 500 tons burthen, and at the foot of the town there is ample quays for the import and export of merchandise of all descriptions. Shipbuilding is also carried on, and vessels ranging from 200 to 500 tons are built here and at Salcombe, and, until the growth of the steam shipping interest, were employed in the green and dry fruit and Newfoundland fish trades, as well as in traffic with the East and West Indies and the Brazils.

The parish is governed, under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), by an Urban District Council of 12 members, which takes the place of a Local Board, formed April 24, 1893, and consists for the most part of a single street, about half a mile in length and 60 feet wide; it is well paved, lighted with gas by a limited company, and plentifully supplied with fresh water from a spring rising at Combe Royal.

The public property of the town, the value of which is considerable, is principally vested in feoffees, and the proceeds are assigned to various purposes by the votes of the ratepayers in vestry assembled; the present annual income amounts to about £500, and on the expiration of existing leases will probably exceed £600.

The church of St. Edmund, King and Martyr, standing near the centre of the town, on the western side, is a cruciform building of stone, erected previous to the year 1310, chiefly in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, north and south-west porches and a central tower with spire, containing 8 bells, rehung in 1877: the aisles were added in the 15th century, forming chapels on either side of the chancel: in both aisles are hagioscopes: the chancel retains a piscina and a fine ancient stall seat or miserere: about 1889 the reredos of Caen stone was restored and decorated in gold and colour by the Rev. James Henning, Duncombe lecturer, who also designed the baptistery, which contains the children's window: the large and ancient font of Polyphant stone is Early English; the walls immediately near it are panelled in oak, ornamented with decorative work of Early English design, and a quotation from the Te Deum, the whole being inclosed by wrought iron screen work, also from designs by the Rev. J. Henning: in the south transept are remains of Early English work: the piscine of two chapels remain: the 15th century parclose screens separating the chancel from the chapels contain rich tracery: the doors and lower panels have been removed to make choir pews, but some good specimens of scroll pattern panels are still left: of the rood screen, also a work of the 15th century, the only remains consist of ten of the lower panels, incorporated in the pulpit and prayer desk: the south-west porch is of the early part of the 15th century, and has a water stoup constructed out of Early English window tracery: the stained east window was presented by John Miller and Tryphena Toby: there is a memorial window erected in 1873 by Thomas Harris esq. to his parents; and in the baptistery the "Children's window," so called from the fact that the cost was chiefly subscribed for and collected by the Sunday school children of St. Edmunds: the window of the north chapel contains the arms of the Earls of Devon, the only fragment of ancient stained glass now remaining: the only old window of the church is in the south chapel, and, as well as the iron work protecting it outside, belongs to the 16th century: in the south porch the old parish stocks are still preserved: the church was restored in 1860, and again in 1884-91 at a cost of £758, and since 1896 the whole church has been re-floored, choir stalls placed under the tower, a chapel formed on the south side of the chancel, and a screen, presented by Mrs. Birks; the south gallery has also been removed, and a new porch built: the old choir vestry has been converted into a library for the clergy of the deanery: the centre of the church has been re-seated in oak, the whole work being carried out under the direction of Mr. Ralph Nevill F.S.A. of London and Mr. T. W. Latham, architect, of Kingsbridge. The earliest register (for baptisms) is dated 1603; the rest date from 1754, and are in good preservation. The living is a vicarage, annexed to that of Churchstow, joint net yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Herbert Alfred Birks M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. William Duncombe, by will dated 1691, founded a lectureship in connection with the parish church of the present yearly value of £120, with residence, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Henry Chicheley Stevens M.A. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge.

The Baptist chapel, Fore street, founded in 1640, was rebuilt in 1798, enlarged in 1852, and restored in 1899, and will seat 350 persons.

The Congregational chapel, Fore street, was founded in 1662; the new chapel, erected in 1858, was renovated throughout in 1891 at a cost of over £300, and has sittings for 500 persons.

The Wesleyan chapel, Fore street, was erected in 1814 and enlarged and improved in 1870, and has sittings for 400 persons.

The Brethren's chapel, Fore street, was erected in 1853, and is a building of stone with a colonnade before the principal entrance; the chapel stands back from the street, from which it is separated by a lawn: there are 300 sittings.

The meeting house belonging to the Society of Friends, in Fore street, is built of local stone, and will seat 250 persons, but this sect is now extinct in the town.

A Burial Board of 9 members was established here in December, 1865. The cemetery, consisting of one acre and containing 2 mortuary chapels, was formed in 1874, and is situated at Highhouse Point, 1 mile south from Kingsbridge, on the Charleton road, in the parish of Dodbrooke.

The Town Hall, built in 1850 by a joint-stock company, at a cost of about £1,500, will hold 600 persons: the clock was erected in 1875. It is now the property of the feoffees, and is used for the benefit of the town. A reading room, police station and other institutions are comprised in this building, and the county court and petty sessions are also held in it.

Here is an ironfoundry, a brewery, a large roller flour mill and implement works.

The Shambles, belonging to the lord of the manor, and used by local butchers, are in Fore street, under the east end of the church, and were first erected about 1586; five of the granite pillars which support the building were in their present position at that date, and three others were added later; the rooms above are used as offices by the owner.

A market for the sale of general produce is held every Saturday. A large cattle and pleasure fair is held on the Thursday after the 10th July in every year, and extends to the end of the week.

The head quarters of the E Company 5th Volunteer (Hay Tor) Battalion Devonshire Regiment are in Fore street; number of men about 80. There is a spacious armoury belonging to this company, and a reading and recreation room, and about 2 miles south of the town an excellent range, 1,000 yards in extent.

The Devon and Cornwall Banking Co. Limited, Lloyds Bank Limited and the Wilts and Dorset Banking Co. Limited and the Naval Bank have branches here: there is also a branch of the Devon and Exeter Savings Bank, and an old-established penny bank vested in trustees.

St. Edmund's Hall, near the top of Duncombe street, formerly called the Oddfellows' Hall, a fine building of stone and brick, erected at a cost of £1,000, will seat 300 persons: the hall is used for the Church Sunday school and parochial and other meetings; the two ante-rooms are used by the St. Edmund's Institute, founded in 1884. In 1896 the basement was fitted out as a gymnasium and bagatelle room, and is used on Sunday as an infant school.

The Fire Brigade station, in Fore street, is a building of stone, erected by the feoffees, and affords room for two fire engines: the upper storey contains a large room, used for parochial and school board meetings.

The Masonic Lodge of Freemasons, "Duncombe No. 1,486," was consecrated on the 16th April, 1874: the lodge meetings are held monthly at the Masonic Temple in Duncombe street, on the Monday nearest the full moon.

A lodge of Mark Master Masons was established in 1897. The meetings are held in the Masonic Temple on the first Tuesday in each quarter.

The Kingsbridge and South Hams Constitutional Club, established in June, 1887, occupies premises near the Quay, formerly known as Quay house. The building includes spacious reading, billiard, smoking and writing rooms, and was opened on the 6th January, 1888; it is managed by a committee of 9 members, with two hon. secretaries and treasurer.

The Girls' Friendly Society and Mothers' Union has a branch here, formed in 1885: meetings are held fortnightly for members who are in service and others, for work and recreation: it is under the management of ladies residing in the town and district.

The principal hotels are the King's Arms, established for nearly a century; the Albion and the Anchor, from which coaches run three times a day to the seaside hotel at Torcross, on Start Bay.

Two local newspapers—"The Kingsbridge Gazette," and "The Kingsbridge Journal," are published weekly.

The Cottage Hospital, in Duncombe street, was opened April 2nd, 1898, and contains 5 beds and a cot.

The early closing day is on Thursday.

There are several charitable societies supported by voluntary contributions. The Acland charity of about £2 12s. yearly value is distributed to the poor in bread at the church porch. The Cornworthy charity of £1 is distributed annually to 20 poor persons. The grave of Mrs. Tryphena Toby, and the east window in St. Edmund's church, are kept in repair by money, amounting to £13 yearly, left by her, any surplus being given to the poor.

The manor of Kingsbridge is the property of John S. Hurrell esq. A manorial court is held every two years, at which a portreeve is appointed.

The area of the parish of Kingsbridge and Doddbrooke is 83½ acres of land, 16 of tidal water and 78 of foreshore; rateable value, £11,685; the population in 1891 was 2,888, and in 1901 was 3,075, including 72 inmates and 7 officers in the Workhouse.

DODDBROOKE is a market town, so closely connected with Kingsbridge that their boundaries are very indistinctly defined, and they were in 1893 amalgamated for civil purposes, and included within the jurisdiction of the Urban District Council: the streets of the two places run into each other, and such divisions as exist are mere brooklets partly covered in. Many residences have been built of late years on the Quay; but there are very few tradesmen's shops as compared with Kingsbridge, a great number of the houses being the abodes of artisans. The inhabitants draw their supplies mainly from Kingsbridge, and most of the residents have their employment there. The public property of the town is vested in feoffees, and the disposition of the proceeds rests with "the ratepayers in vestry assembled"; the present annual income amounts to £130, and on the expiration of existing leases will probably exceed £270. The church of St. Thomas à Becket, standing at the north end of the town, is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells: the tower was formerly surmounted by a spire, removed in 1785: the ancient and beautifully carved oak screen of the 15th century was restored in 1897 by Mr. Harry Hems, of Exeter, as a memorial to the late J. P. Margary esq. of Stoke Damarel: the church, partially restored in 1846, was again restored in 1878-86, at a cost of £2,200, when the chancel was rebuilt, a north aisle added, divided from the chancel and nave by an arcade of six arches, three of which were taken from the ruins of the now disused church of South Huish: the ceiling of the south aisle was removed, exposing the oak roof, which is enriched with carving and bosses: the church was also re-seated, and the font, an interesting work and the sole relic of the original building, re-erected on a base of Dartmoor granite: several windows of the new north aisle are stained, the west window in this aisle, formerly in South Pool church, being fitted with stained glass by the Duncombe Lodge of Freemasons: the stained east window, the gift of Capt. Strickland, of Dawlish, was dedicated by Bishop Knight Bruce in 1896: the organ was enlarged during the years 1889-93 and 1897 at a cost of about £700, and has now been completed, at a cost of over £1,000: the wall of the new north aisle is adorned with painting representing the martyrdom of St. Thomas à Becket: new clergy and choir vestries have also been added: the Welle chapel, on the south side, is now the property of the rector, and has been converted by him into a morning chapel: in 1899 the oak screen was continued across the north chancel aisle, at the expense of Mr. Peter Bond: in 1900 marble steps, the gift of Mr. Tucker, were placed in the Sacramentum, and elaborately carved dwarf oak screens given by Mrs. Lewis, placed at their head: the west window has also been filled with stained glass: there are 500 sittings. The earliest existing parish register dates from the year 1725, many ancient documents and registers having perished in a fire at Langwell House about 1830. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £157, with 36 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Mrs. Lewis, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Thomas Curling Lewis, of St. Mary Hall, Oxford, and F.R.H.S. The rectory house was enlarged in 1897. The Bible Christian chapel, erected in 1867, will seat 250 persons. Doddbrook is famous for "white ale," a beverage compounded of malt, hops and flour, and fermented with an ingredient called "grout," which is manufactured in this neighbourhood only: the manufacture was at one time so large that the rector levied a tithe on it; tradition assigns the introduction of this peculiar beverage into the district to the surgeon of a German regiment which was at one time quartered here. Citrons and oranges are grown here to a large size. There is one brewery, a ship-building yard, agricultural implement works, and several commercial wharves. An important cattle market is held on the third Wednesday in every month, and is attended by large numbers of butchers and agriculturists; an open square near the centre of the town, called Market Cross, is devoted to the purposes of this market. John Walcot M.D. better known as "Peter Pindar," the celebrated lyric and satirical poet of George III.'s reign, was born at Doddbrooke in 1738, and educated at Kingsbridge; his residence, called "Pindar Lodge," still remains; he died in Somers town, London, 14 Jan. 1819. William Legassick Bellew esq. J.P. of Hens Park, Dulverton, Somerset, is lord of the manor and principal landowner. Buttville is the residence of Lieut.-Col. Jason J.P. Welle House, an ancient residence of the Champernowne family, of which a fine gateway still remains, is now the property of the rector, and is let to Mrs. Henley.

Sexton, James Peter Oldridge.

SCHOOLS.

The Grammar school, Fore street, which possesses endowments under the wills of Thomas Crispin, dated 1670, & William Duncombe, dated 1691, is now managed under a scheme of the Endowed Schools Commissioners, framed in 1877, by which 12 governors are appointed for 6 years in rotation—three by the trustees of Duncombe's Charity, three by the trustees of Crispin's Charity, three by the magistrates of the Stanborough & Coleridge division & three by the ratepayers of Kingsbridge: attached to the schools are several exhibitions awarded by the governors in the form of remission of fees; one half of these are open to competition by boys who have been educated for three years at public elementary schools within two miles of this school: the endowments yield an income of about £300 yearly: it is now also a school of science under the Board of Education, & receives a grant from the Devon County Council for the maintenance of technical instruction & chemical & physical laboratories, a lecture hall & a work shop, have recently been erected; Rev. William Watson M.A. late exhibitor of Wadham College, Oxford, head master; Henry R. Collins M.A. Henry S. Hawkey B.A., B.Sc. & John Henry Snow, resident assistant masters; Walt. D. Finch, visiting art master; J. Harris Square, clerk to the governors

A School Board of 7 members was formed August 9, 1887, for the united district of Kingsbridge & Dodbrooke; John S. Hurrell, chairman; William Beer, Fore street, clerk to the board

Kingsbridge & Dodbrooke United District Board, Church street (formerly the British schools) (girls & infants), built in 1843, for 260 children; average attendance, 110 girls & 147 infants; Miss Edith Collacott, girls' mistress; Miss Clara Saunders, infants' mistress

Boys', Waterloo road (formerly the National school), built in 1845, for 200 boys; average attendance, 130; Robert Chase, master

KINGSKERSWELL (or Carswell) is a parish and village, on the old road from Exeter to Torquay, with a station on the Torquay branch of the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, and is 2½ miles south from Newton Abbot and 3 north-west from Torquay, in the Mid division of the county, Haytor hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is a picturesque building of stone, in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, separated from the nave by arcades of five arches, north and south porches and a western tower of the Late Decorated period, with a turret and containing 6 bells, of which the tenor was re-hung in 1887: over the north porch is a parvise, now used as a vestry: in the church are three recumbent effigies; the earliest (1350-1420) is that of a lady in a richly-worked head-dress and mantle, and supported by mutilated cherubs; the other two are those of a knight and lady of about the same period; the former is in bascinet with camail, and has on his tunic four fusils in fess, the arms of the Dinham family, who had a castle here adjoining the churchyard; the lady wears a coronet and a dress and mantle with rich adornments and fastenings; these effigies were placed in the window sills during the restorations in 1834 and 1874, when new windows were inserted, and are now coated with whitewash: in 1847 some portions of the ancient screen were formed into chancel seats: the north porch retains a fragment of an aumbry, and there are sedilia and a piscina in the chancel: the church was reseat in 1834, and again in 1887, and the chancel was restored in 1874 by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, the cost of the work carried out from 1874 to 1887 amounted to £1,220: in 1897 a window in the north aisle was restored, at a cost of £30, one in the south aisle re-opened, and the gallery removed at a further cost of about £85: there are 300 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1702; marriages, from the year 1712.

The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £237, with residence, (built in 1836 by the Rev. Aaron Neek) and 9½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the vicar of St. Mary Church, and held since 1889 by the Rev. George Hickson Feltrim Fagan M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford. Here are Particular, Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The Plymouth Brethren have also a place of meeting. In the parish are lime rock quarries. During the past ten years Cottage Art Schools have been held in this village, in which young men have been trained in art, handicraft and design, and many have in consequence obtained permanent employment in the Aller Vale art pottery works. Traces of the castle of the Dinham family, barons Dinham, are still to be seen near the church. Barton Hall, 1 mile east from the village, the seat of Hercules Edwin Brown esq. J.P. lord of the manor and chief landowner, was originally erected in 1840, but completely destroyed by fire and rebuilt in 1862: the present house is a handsome mansion of red sandstone, standing in about 25 acres of park land and commanding beautiful sea and land views. Jacob Ley esq. of Holmleigh and Mr. John James Wale are landowners in this parish. The soil is various, principally red loam; the subsoil is a red gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats, and the neighbourhood is celebrated for its cider. The area is 1,797 acres; rateable value, £7,236; the population in 1901 was 1,027.

KINGSNYMPTON is a parish and village, on the river Mole, and about a quarter of a mile west of the road from Chulmleigh to South Molton, 2½ miles north from South Molton Road station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, 4½ north from Chulmleigh, 5 south from South Molton, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Witheridge, South Molton petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. James is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, vestry, south porch and a tower, with spire, containing 5 bells: one of the windows in this church formerly displayed effigies in stained glass of Sir Lewis Pollard kt. Agnes (Hext), his wife, and twenty-two children: the church, which retains a handsomely carved and interesting oak screen, was partially restored in 1892, and affords 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £440, including 96 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Hull, of Brighton, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Joseph Arthur Hull B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. There is a Bible Christian chapel in the village. Kingsnympton Park, the property of the Rev. John Vowler Tanner B.A. rector of Chawleigh and James M. Tanner esq. and occupied by Berthold Smith esq. is a short distance south-west of the village; the mansion stands in a well-wooded park of forty acres. This estate anciently belonged to Sir Lewis Pollard kt. son of Robert Pollard esq. of Way and a justice of the Common Pleas 1514-25; he is said to have inclosed the park and erected a stately mansion here. The Rev. M. H. M. Byne M.A. of Seaton, who is lord of the manor, the Rev. J. V. Tanner B.A. rector of Chawleigh, James M. Tanner esq. Aaron Buckingham esq. J.P. and the trustees of the late Ven. Archdeacon C. W. Furse M.A. (d. 1900) are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, sandstone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area of the parish is 5,454 acres of land and 32 of water; rateable value, £4,002; the population in 1901 was 502.

KINGSTEIGNTON (or Teignton Regis) is a parish and large village, on the river Teign and at the junction of the roads from Exeter to Newton Abbot and Teignmouth to Newton Abbot, 1½ miles north from Newton Abbot station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 14 south-by-west from Exeter, 4½ west from Teignmouth and 8 north-west from Torquay, in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge hundred and petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. A clear stream of water runs through the village and churchyard, issuing from an extensive limestone rock at Rydon, a short distance from the village, and is used for working three flour mills in the village, as well as for domestic purposes. There are two canals from the Teign, used for the conveyance of clay from this place to the port of Teignmouth; one of these, the Stover canal, made by the Templar family during the latter part of the last century, and extending a distance of about 2 miles to Teigngrace, now belongs to the Great Western Railway Company; the other, the Hackney canal, about a mile in length, belongs to Lord Clifford, of Chudleigh, and extends to the village. The church of St. Michael is a fine old building of red sandstone, in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, separated from the nave by arcades of five arches, south porch and an embattled western tower 82 feet in height, containing a clock and 6 bells, dated respectively 1766, 1774, 1726, 1623, 1746 and 1870: there is a piscina in the chancel and one at the east end of each aisle: the priest's doorway also remains, and on the north side is an external projection which contained the stairs to the rood loft: the font and south doorway date from the 14th century: the stained east window is a memorial to the late vicar, and there is one to Major Marshall, erected in 1873, and another to the Smalldridge family in 1889: in the church are inscribed memorials to Nicholas Downing, vicar, ob. 27 March, 1666; Richard Adlam, vicar, ob. 1 November, 1676; Richard Carpenter, vicar, ob. 10 September, 1697; and Christopher Beeke, vicar, 1737-98: and to the Clifford, Hele, Horwell and Yarde families: there is also a brass to the Rev. John H. Hext, late vicar, d. 1878: a number of chained books, including a copy of

Fox's "Book of Martyrs," are preserved here: portions of the screen, finely painted and gilt in, in 1848, are preserved at the vicarage house: the church was restored in 1865, and affords 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1670, and is perfect from that date to the present time. The parish chest contains a complete list of the vicars of this parish from the year 1262. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £225, including 20 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Percival Jackson M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The Wesleyan chapel was erected in 1879, and the Congregational chapel in 1815. The charities, averaging £12 yearly, are equally divided between the church, the schools and the poor. There are also two clothing clubs and a meat kitchen for the poor. Theophilus Gale M.A. fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, an eminent Nonconformist divine and writer, son of a vicar of this parish, was born here in 1628, and died at Newington, London, in March, 1678. The parish is noted for its pipe and potters' clay, of which large quantities are sent annually to different parts of the kingdom for tobacco-pipe making and the use of potters. Messrs. Hexter, Humpherson and Co. employ a large number of hands at their potteries: the largest clay works here are those of Messrs. Watts, Blake, Bearn and Co. and Messrs. Whiteway and Co. At Rydon, in this parish, are limestone quarries, the stone from which is extensively used for church building purposes. The manor of Preston, with the great tithes in this parish, originally belonged to the cathedral church of Salisbury, and was attached to one of its prebends, designated the "golden prebend": it is now vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. Teignbridge House, the residence of Francis Hy. Plumtre esq. J.P. is about a mile west of the village, and stands in about 5 acres of land. Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, who is lord of the manor, William Henry Whiteway Wilkinson esq. the Rev. Thomas John Yarde B.A. of Chudleigh, the trustees of the late Rev. Nicholas Watts, Mrs. Pidsley, of Knowles hill, Newton Abbot, Francis Henry Plumtre esq. the trustees of William Satterley Bawdon esq. and Miss Whidborne are chief landowners. The soil is loamy; the subsoil is lime rock, excepting in the valley by the Teign, which is alluvial, and under the latter soil the channels of pipe and potters' clay run. The chief crops are grain, mangold wurtzel and turnips. The area is 3,945 acres of land, 30 of water, 5 of tidal water and 63 of foreshore; rateable value £12,107; the population in 1891 was 1,808 in the civil, and 1,705 in the ecclesiastical parish, and 1,942 in the civil parish in 1901.

PRESTON is a small hamlet, about 1½ miles north-west. GESTRIDGE, ¼ mile north-east, WARE CROSS, ¼ east, GAPPAH 3 miles north, SANDY GATE, 1 mile north, and BELLAMARSH, 3 miles north-by-west, are hamlets of this parish.

KINGSTON is a parish and village, bounded on the west by the river Erme and on the south by Bigbury bay, and is 7½ miles south from Ivybridge station on the South Devon branch of the Great Western railway, 8 north-west from Kingsbridge and 14 east-by-south from Plymouth, in the Southern division of the county, Ermington and Plympton hundred and petty sessional division, Kingsbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. James the Less is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, dating chiefly from 1406, and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south transept (formerly a chapel attached to Wonewell Court), south porch and an embattled western tower containing 4 bells: the church was restored throughout in 1893 at an estimated cost of about £1,000, under the direction of Mr. Edward Sedding, architect, Plymouth: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1635. The living is a vicarage, annexed to that of Ermington, joint net yearly value £187, including 22 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Crown, alternately with trustees, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Edmund Pinwell M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. Of the rectorial tithes, commuted at £233, a sum of £6 is assigned to the rector of the adjoining parish of Ringmore, for his chapelry at Okenbury, an ancient seat of the Bozuns, now the property of H. B. Mildmay esq. of Flete, Ivybridge, the remainder being divided between the sinecure rector of Ermington and H. B. Mildmay esq. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Wonewell Court, belonging to H. B. Mildmay esq. and formerly the seat of the Hingestons, Ayshfords and Ayshford-Wises, is now a farmhouse. The manorial rights are the property of Mrs. Dyer. Thomas Bulteel esq. of Radford, Plymouth, Henry Bingham Mildmay esq. of Flete, Ivybridge, and Messrs. John White and Henry Helmer are the chief landowners. The soil is light; subsoil, various. The chief crops are corn and potatoes. The area is 2,178 acres of land, 2 of water, 13 of tidal water and 221 of foreshore; rateable value, £2,146; the population in 1891 was 449.

By Local Government Board Order 16,312, which came into operation March 24, 1884, Challons Combe was transferred to Bigbury, and a detached part of the parish near Strayland Green added to Modbury, and by Order 19,444, March 25, 1885, Stoverlake transferred to Aveton Gifford.

KINGSWEAR is a parish and village, on a point of land projecting into the river Dart, opposite Dartmouth, 4½ miles west from Brixham, 10½ west from Torquay and 22½ from London, in the Torquay division of the county, hundred of Haytor, petty sessional division of Paignton, union and county court district of Totnes, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Here is the terminal station of the branch line from Newton Abbot, on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, and steamboats in connection with the trains cross the estuary of the Dart to Dartmouth. The village is supplied with water from a system carried out under the direction of Mr. E. Appleton C.E. The church of St. Thomas & Becket, rebuilt with the exception of the tower in 1847, at a cost of £1,600, is a building of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 3 bells; the two first have inscriptions and initials only; a third is dated 1680; one bell was sold in 1767 to buy a clock: the stained east window was erected in 1880 by public subscription, as a memorial to the Rev. John Smart, for 44 years vicar of this parish; a window on the north side was erected by Llewellyn Llewellyn esq. in 1882, in memory of his son Charles. The register dates from the year 1601. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £114, with residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Frederick Walker Th. Assoc. K.C.L. There is a Wesleyan chapel erected in 1869. A Cemetery of 1½ acres, in Brixham road, was formed in 1885, and is under the control of the Parish Council. The Club house of the Royal Dart Yacht Club, established in 1866, was erected from designs by Mr. E. Appleton C.E. and opened in June, 1881, and is pleasantly situated on the banks of the Dart. Above Kingswear, on the top of the hill, are the remains of Fort Ridley, which Sir Henry Cary defended at the siege of Dartmouth in January, 1645, by the parliamentary forces under General Fairfax. Kingswear Castle, on the Kingswear side of the Dart, a little beyond Dartmouth Castle, standing on the rocks and washed by the sea, is an ancient rectangular pile, said to date from the time of King John, and is the property and residence of the Right Hon.

Charles Seale-Hayne P.C., M.P., J.P. On the side of the declivity which descends to the sea, opposite Dartmouth Castle, is Brookhill, the seat of Robert Francis Wilkins esq.: the wainscoting and ceiling of the dining-room illustrate by emblazoned shields and inscriptions the history of the county and locality, and it has a finely carved chimneypiece, depicting the story of three Hebrew children: in a wood close to Brookhill may still be seen, a little above the water's edge, the remains of an old guardhouse, and the hollow in the rock through which the chain passed to the castle opposite, and which used to be stretched across the mouth of the harbour to prevent the entrance of enemies' ships. Llewellyn Llewellyn esq. J.P. who is lay impropriator of the great tithe of this parish and also of Brixham and Churston Ferrers, has a seat called Nethway, in Brixham parish, about a mile and a half from Kingswear. The soil is light; sub-soil, shale. The parish contains 97 acres of land and 16 of foreshore; assessable value, £3,103; the population in 1891 was 850.

KNOWSTONE is a parish and village standing on an eminence and surrounded by hills, 4 miles south-west from East Anstey station on the Devon and Somerset branch of the Great Western railway, 9 miles east-south from South Molton, 11 north-west from Tiverton and 9 west from Bampton, in the Northern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of South Molton, rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Peter is a small building of stone, chiefly in a simple form of the Late Decorated style, with Perpendicular insertions, and consists of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the east and west windows and one other in the chancel and one in the nave are stained, and there are 230 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1538; marriages, 1539. The living is a vicarage, with that of Molland annexed, joint net yearly value £420, including 54 acres of glebe, with residence, and has been held since 1853 by the Rev. John Matthews B.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, and prebendary of Exeter. There are charities of £4 10s. yearly value, £3 10s. of which is payable out of the Edgerley and Bowden estates. Wadhams, now a farm house, was a seat of the Wadhams family, of which was Sir Nicholas Wadhams kt. founder, in 1610, of Wadhams College, Oxford. At Knowstone was born, in 1635, Sir John Berry kt. a distinguished naval commander, who fought with great bravery at the LAMERTON, in Domesday "Lambertone," is a village and scattered parish, watered by the river Lamber, from which its name is derived, and is on the road from Tavistock to Launceston; it is 3 miles north-west from Tavistock station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 18 north from Plymouth and 10 south-east from Launceston, in the western division of the county, hundred of Lifton, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Tavistock, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The hamlet of North Brentor, formerly part of this parish, was added to Brentor, Sept. 10, 1883, for ecclesiastical purposes, and civilly by Local Government Board Order 15,033, March 25, 1885. The church of St. Peter is a large building of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with remains of crocketed pinnacles rising from embattled turrets and an octagonal stair turret on the north side, and containing 6 bells: the stained west window was erected by Thomas Weekes, of Lamerton and Tavistock, to his wife and daughter, and in the chancel is an ancient monument to the Tremayne family, erected in 1588 by Digory Tremayne; it has effigies of his five brothers and a long inscription in verse: the monument, which was injured by the fire, has been restored, together with another memorial of the family, by the late John Tremayne esq. of Marystowe: the church plate includes a chalice dated 1576, the cover forming a paten, and an ancient paten: the alms-box of wood has a piece of inserted silver, bearing the date 1752: the church, which has been thoroughly restored in 1876 at a cost of £1,600 and re-opened 20th July in that year, was entirely burnt down on the night of Monday, Nov. 10th, 1877: the stonework of the tower remains intact, but the rest of the church, except the most easterly window on the south side, is wholly new, having been rebuilt in 1879-80 at a cost of £6,007, and re-opened Jan. 29 in the latter year, when an organ was provided: the church has 325 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1547; burials, 1549; marriages, 1538. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value, £264, with residence and 25 acres of glebe, in the gift of J. C. L. Tremayne esq. of Heligan, St. Austell, and held since 1839 by the Rev. John Henry Bidlake Wollcombe M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford. There are two Wesleyan chapels and a Bible Christian chapel. A cemetery of one acre was formed in 1881, and is under the control of the Parish Council. Here is a Reading Room, erected decisive engagement in June, 1665, in Sole bay, off the coast of Suffolk, between the English and Dutch fleets, when the latter were signally defeated and their leader, Admiral Opdam, slain; in 1682, when in command of the "Gloucester" frigate, he conveyed the Duke of York to Scotland, was afterwards made a vice-admiral, and died 14th Feb. 1691. Sir Nicholas William George Throckmorton bart. of Buckland, Faringdon, Berks, is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The Earl of Ilchester, Mr. James Snow (Beaples and Brownsford) and Mr. Herbert Snow (Moortown) are also landowners here. The soil is clayey; subsoil, rock. The chief crops are oats, barley and some wheat. The acreage is 5,144; rateable value, £2,961; the population in 1901 was 343.

EAST KNOWSTONE, 1 mile north-east, and ROCHILL, 1½ miles north-east, are hamlets in this parish. The soil is heavy; the larger portion of it being grass land.

National School (mixed), erected in 1859, for 60 children; average attendance, 57; Miss Emma Snow, mistress

by the Rev. J. H. B. and Mrs. Wollcombe on a site presented by Viscount Ebrington, and opened Jan. 1st 1900. Several mines have at various times been opened in this parish, but met with little success. The poor have about £20 yearly from Tremayne's charity of South Sydenham, about £50 from the Holwell charity and about £2 from the Williams charity. Of the Rowe family, some time resident here, was Nicholas Rowe, poet laureate, 1715, born at Little Barford, Beds, in 1673; died 6th Dec. 1718, and was buried in Westminster Abbey. Willestrew House is a mansion standing in ornamental grounds and commanding some of the finest views in the district; it has for a long period belonged to the Weekes family, and is at present the residence of Major W. M. Fowler. Willestrew Park, the residence of Mrs. Weekes, commands an extensive view of Dartmoor: Henry Maitland Sperling esq. who resides at Lew Trenchard, keeps a pack of harriers in this parish; hunting days, tuesday and saturday. Venn House is the residence of the Rev. Charles Vernon Peacock Keene M.A. Collacombe, in this parish, was the seat of the Tremaynes before their removal to Sydenham House; the house, called "Collacombe Barton," and now a farm-house, is a curious mansion, rebuilt in the reign of Elizabeth: one of the rooms has a large transomed window containing 3,275 panes of glass: and there is a chimney-piece with the date 1574. Viscount Ebrington is lord of the manor. The Duke of Bedford, John Ward Spear M.P., J.P. of Eastcott, Dunterton, R. Morshead, of Hurditch Court, Philip Daniel Rowe esq. and Mrs. Weekes are the chief landowners. The soil is loamy; the subsoil is various, partly clay and partly slate. The land is principally in pasture. The parish comprises 5,013 acres; rateable value, £5,559; the population in 1891 was 771.

OTTERY is 1 mile south; CHADDLEHANGER is 1 mile north-east; HILLTOWN adjoins the village on the east.

LAPFORD is a parish and village on the river Yeo, and on the road from Crediton to Chulmleigh, with a station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, and is 5 miles south-east from Chulmleigh, 9 north-west from Crediton, 17 north-west from Exeter, and 189½ from London, in the Northern division of the county, North Tawton hundred, Crediton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Chulmleigh, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Thomas à Becket is a building of stone, partly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with aisle, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, restored in 1882 and containing 6 bells: on the south side is a memorial window to Christopher Rogers Kelland esq. of Loosbeare Manor and Bow, who died in 1852, and to Anna Maria, his wife, and one on the south side, inserted in 1887 by W. H. Kelland esq. to Mrs. Kelland, wife of John Kelland esq. d. 1838; the pulpit was given in 1881 by W. H. Kelland esq.: there is a very fine rood screen of the 16th century, groined on both sides and richly carved; and a parclose screen of plainer character separating the chancel from its aisle: the oak benches date from the same period: the church was further restored in 1888, when new buttresses were added to the north aisle, the roofs renewed, heating apparatus fixed and other improvements effected by Mr. Harry Hems, under the direction of Messrs. Packham, Croote and Stuart, architects, of Exeter; during the progress of the work a statuette in oak of St. John the Evangelist was met with: a memorial brass to the late J. F. Skipper B.A. d. 1883, was at the same time placed by W. H. Kelland esq.: the total cost of the different restorations from 1879 to 1891 amounted to £1,152: the stained east window was inserted in March, 1889, to John Kelland esq. of Kelland, De Bathe and Exbourne, who died 1859, and his son, John Kelland esq. d. 1862: there are 200 sittings. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1567: burials, 1570. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £376, including 158 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Rev. John Vicars M.A. vicar of Calbourne, I. of Wight, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Cornelius William Wilson M.A. of Oriel College, Oxford. Here is a Congregational chapel. In 1778 Philip Kelland, of this parish, left a rent-charge of 20s. a year to the vicar and churchwardens to be distributed yearly in bread; this charity, which had lapsed, has been, with some others, revived by W. H. Kelland esq. Several of the farmhouses in this parish afford good examples of the domestic architecture of the Elizabethan age. The chief manor, formerly a part of the honor of Torrington, passed to St. John Arundell, of Trezise and Bagot, and after to the Radfords, and has been dismembered: the lesser manor was known as "Court Manor," and was formerly the property of Philip Kelland esq. who bequeathed it to the late P. Saunder, and of which manor Edwin Troake Saunder esq. is now lord and also owner of Lapford Court, now a farmhouse, renamed Court Barton: the Saunder family is of ancient repute here, the Rev. Christopher Saunder having been rector 1515-1567. Kelland, in this parish, now (1901) the property of William Ford esq. of Devonport, was the original seat of the ancient family of Kelland, who have possessed land here since 1567 without a break in the male line, and several of whom were sheriffs of the county and members of Parliament in the 17th century; William Henry Kelland esq. is the present representative. The Stone family had property here for generations until 1778, when it came by purchase to the Kellands. Bury Barton, originally the seat of the Bury family, was purchased in 1877 by the present owner, Mr. Roger Densham, whose family occupied it as tenants for several generations: the arms of the Bury family still remain in plaster over the mantel in the drawing room: on the farm is an ancient Catholic chapel, dating from 1434, and now used as part of the farm buildings. Bowerthly, 234 acres in extent, the property until 1828 of the late Philip Kelland esq. now belongs to the Earl of Portsmouth. Lapford Wood, the residence of the Rev. Charles Henry Gerald Vivian B.A. Pennycotts was purchased in 1613 from Sir Edward Seymour; in 1788 it was sold by Rev. Samuel Stone to Richard Kelland esq. of Lapford, and it is now the property of James George Kelland esq. of Barnstaple. The land is nearly all freehold, except a small portion in the manor of Loosbeare. The Mill House was anciently the seat of the Gater family, who were seated here and in Morchard Bishop adjoining from 1434 to 1820: their property in this parish was sold to the Crootes. The principal landowners are the Earl of Portsmouth, George Croote esq. William Ford esq. of Devonport, J. G. Kelland esq. of Barnstaple, William Clarke esq. Miss Hitchcock, Rev. C. H. G. Vivian B.A. of Lapford Wood, Mr. Roger Densham, Rev. W. Densham, of Wareham, Dorset, Edwin Troake Saunder esq. of West Ashford, Heanton Punchardon, Richard Tucker esq. Mr. Buckingham, of King's Nympton, and the rector; there are also several small freeholders.

EASTINGTON is a hamlet, about 1 mile north-east; from 1711 to 1863 it belonged to the Kellands, but is now the property of Miss Hitchcock.

FILLEIGH is a hamlet, 1½ miles north-north-east.

IRISHCOMBE, formerly a detached portion of this parish, adjoining those of West Worlington and Meshaw, 9 miles north-east from Lapford and 1½ south-east from Meshaw, was annexed for civil purposes to Meshaw, March 25th, 1885, under the provisions of the "Divided Parishes Act, 1882," by Local Government Board Order, 16,345. It was for a considerable time the property and residence of the Notts, who sold it in 1770, and formed part of Court Manor, in Lapford, to which it still pays a fee. T. G. Keats esq. is the owner of Irishcombe, and Major H. T. Vials of Irishcombe Moor.

The soil of Lapford is skillett and clay; the subsoil is the same. The west of the parish, containing some dun land, is remarkably fertile; the east is moorland and of inferior soil. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 3,568 acres of land and 13 of water; rateable value, £3,313; the population in 1901 was 511. Parish Clerk, Henry Northcote.

Post Office.—William Stoneman, sub-postmaster. Letters arrive from Morchard Bishop B.S.O. North Devon at 7.10 a.m. & 5.5 p.m.; dispatched at 6.50 p.m.; sunday, 10.55 a.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. Morchard Bishop is the nearest money order office. The telegraph office is at the railway station. Wall Letter Box, close to church, cleared at 6.40 p.m.; sunday, 10.45 a.m.

The Collegiate School (private boarding), pleasantly situate near the church, was established in 1859 by the late James Clarke, for the education of the sons of business men & farmers. During recent years the school has been modernized to meet the present day requirements; Alexander Snape A.C.P., M.C.P.Lond. principal A School Board of 5 members was formed Nov. 24, 1873, for the united district of Lapford & Nymet Rowland; the Rev. C. W. Wilson M.A. is chairman of & clerk to the board

Board School (mixed), built about 1863, for 120 children; average attendance, 82; Walter Lawson, master

Police Station, William Baker Webber, constable

LEUSDEN (originally a hamlet) is now an ecclesiastical parish, formed March 4, 1864, from Widecombe-in-the-Moor, and includes the hamlets of Jordan, Lower Town, Pondsworthy, Poundgate, Sherwell and Dartmeet, and is in the Mid division of the county, Haytor hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union and county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Leusden village is about 6 miles north-west from Ashburton terminal station on a branch from Totnes of the Great Western railway, 12 west from Newton Abbot and 12 north from Totnes. The church of St. John the Baptist, erected in 1863, is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a tower, on the south side of the chancel, containing a clock and one bell: the east and west windows are memorials to the late Mrs. Larpen, who died in 1879: there are 180 sittings. The register dates from the year 1864. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £252, including 24 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1896 by the Rev. Walter Alfred Prideaux, of St. Aidan's. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Frederick Pine T. Struben esq. is the principal landowner. The soil is granite; subsoil, granite. The land is chiefly pasture. The area is included with that of Widecombe; the population in 1891 was 376.

NORTH LEW is a compact village and parish, 2½ miles north from Ashbury and North Lew station on the Okehampton and Holswothy branch of the London and South Western railway, 4½ south-west from Hatherleigh and 7 north-west from Okehampton, in the Western division of the county, petty sessional division of Hatherleigh, hundred of Black Torrington, union of Okehampton, county court district of Totnes, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The river Lew, which flows through the parish, abounds in salmon and trout. The church of St. Thomas à Becket is a building of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, with some earlier portions, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 5 bells: the great feature of the interior is the very fine carving of the benches, dating from the 16th century and exhibiting great diversity of design and elaborate workmanship: the ends of the benches bear in some cases the emblems of the Passion and in others shields with monograms and the date 1537: the roofs are also of carved oak and the lower portion of the rood screen remains: the stained east window was presented by the late Miss Woolcombe, of North Grange, and there are oak choir stalls and lectern, introduced at the late restoration: the font, an interesting example of Norman work, is assumed to have belonged to the original church: in 1804 a carved stone reredos was erected as a memorial to the late Miss Woolcombe, of North Grange a new organ has since been provided by public subscription: the church was restored in 1885 at a cost of £1,450, under the direction of Mr. R. Medley Fulford A.R.I.B.A. of Exeter, when the roofs and benches were carefully repaired by Mr. H. Hems, of Exeter, the flooring relaid, a new communion table, pulpit, lectern and choir stalls erected, the battlem-menting of the tower renewed and the fabric generally renovated: a number of ancient embossed tiles have been laid down in the tower: the church affords 239 sittings. The register dates from the year 1700. The living is a rectory united with Ashbury, joint net yearly value £450, with 74 acres of glebe here and residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1885 by the Rev. John Worthington M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, and rural dean of Okehampton. There are Bible Christian and Wesleyan chapels, also a Bible Christian Sunday school, erected in 1890. In the village is an ancient stone cross, to which a new granite shaft was added in 1900 by H. Hems and Sons, of Exeter. William Madge esq. of Bladgon, and the rector are lords of the manor. North Grange belongs to Mrs. George Woolcombe. John North Woolcombe esq. of Ashbury House, Mrs. George Woolcombe, and the trustees of the late Ven. Archdeacon Henry Woolcombe are landowners here. The soil is sand and clay; subsoil, stone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 7,247 acres of land and 12 of water; rateable value, £3,830; the population in 1901 was 629.

LEW TRENCHARD is a parish, 2½ miles north from Coryton station on the Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, 9 north from Tavistock and 8 east from Launceston, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred and petty sessional division, Tavistock union and county court district, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter: it includes the greater part of the Lew Down, a small village on the high road between Launceston and Okehampton, and is bounded on the east by the Lew Water. The church of St. Peter is a building in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 5 bells, of which the first and fourth date from 1812; the rest are dated respectively 1769, 1758 and 1804: all the windows are stained; and there are ancient oak benches with finely carved ends; the ancient screen was destroyed in 1833, but a new screen was provided in 1899, and a new pulpit in 1900: the church contains numerous monuments to the Gould family: there are 100 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1706; burials, 1714; marriages, 1713; but part of this is lost, from 1756 to 1813. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £185, with 50 acres of glebe, and residence, in the gift of and held since 1881 by the Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge, and J.P. A fair is held at Lew Down, 1 mile north of the church, usually the Tuesday before the last Wednesday in November and the third Wednesday in April. The Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould M.A., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. Lew House, the manor house and seat of the Gould family, is an interesting mansion dating from before the year 1625, when the property came into the possession of that family; it contains some finely carved oak chimney-pieces, antique furniture and good pictures. At Lew Mill is a curious prehistoric monolith about 16 feet high, long prostrate, but recently re-erected. At Slayers hill is a circular British camp, where bronze celts have been found. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay and slate and limestone. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and pasture. The parish contains 2,230 acres of land and 8 of water; rateable value, £1,531; the population in 1891 was 266 in the civil and 281 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order, 15,033, Wortham, Orchard and Kilson were transferred to Thrushelton, March 22, 1885.

Parish Clerk, Henry Davey.

LIDFORD, see Lydford.

LIFTON is a parish and village and head of a petty sessional division, pleasantly seated near the Cornish border, in the valley of the river Lyd, about a mile from its confluence with the Tamar, and on the road from Okehampton to Launceston, with a station on the Launceston and Tavistock branch of the Great Western railway, and is 4 miles east from Launceston, 11 from Tavistock and 275 from London, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred, Tavistock union, Launceston county court district, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient structure in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, separated from the nave and chancel by an arcade of 6 arches, north porch with parvise and an embattled western tower, with crocketed pinnacles, containing a clock and 8 bells, all recast by Taylor, of Oxford, in 1827; the tower and bells were renovated in 1881 at a cost of £259; the clock was presented by the Rev. A. H. Simms and his mother in 1883 at a cost of about £110, and in 1885 the pinnacles of the tower were repaired at an expense of £34: in the church are several monuments to the Harris and Dynham families, one of which, on the north side of the chancel, has three life-sized kneeling effigies, in the costume of the period, representing members of the Harris family, with the dates 1590, 1618, and 1631; this monument was restored in 1742 and 1795, and again in 1871: in the south chapel is a richly illuminated mural monument to John Dynham, dated 1649; and there is an interesting Norman font: the north window in the chancel is a memorial to the Tucker family; two of the windows in the nave are also stained: the chancel retains a piscina, and there is another in the south chapel, which also contains a brass to John Harris, ob. 1657: in 1871 the church was thoroughly restored and re-seated, and in 1888 an organ-chamber was erected at a cost of £133: there are 350 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1653; marriages, 1654. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £322, exclusive of 20 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Frank Bradshaw esq. J.P. and held since 1900 by the Rev. Richard Witherstone Buller M.A. of New College, Oxford. The Rectory House, formerly the manor house, is a substantial mansion, with walls of extraordinary thickness. King Charles I. slept here on the 31st of July, 1644. The Rectory House was anciently situated at Cross Town, about 1½ miles distant from the church, but on the purchase of the manor of Lifton by William Harris esq. of Hayne in 1555, it is probable that the present house was assigned as a residence for the rector; it was certainly so described in a terrier of the living in 1613. There is a Baptist chapel in the village, a Bible Christian chapel at Tinhay, built in 1876, and a Wesleyan chapel at Lifton down. In the village is a literary institute and reading room. A fair is held here on the 13th of February. In the parish are two lime quarries and a manganese mine, but none of these are at present being worked. Lifton Park, the seat of Frank Bradshaw esq. J.P. is a large, modern mansion in the Tudor style, situated in the valley of the river Tamar and commanding delightful views: the estate covers 7,000 acres, about 5,000 of which are in Lifton parish and 2,000 in the neighbouring parishes. Frank Bradshaw esq. who is lord of the manor, the Hon. Mrs. Tremayne, of Sydenham House, Lew Down, and the Rev. Maitland Kelly M.A. of Kelly, are the chief landowners. The soil is various; subsoil, limestone and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, and some land is in pasture. The parish comprises 5,330 acres of land and 46 of water; rateable value, £6,464; the population in 1891 was 1,195 in the civil and 1,264 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order 15,034, which came into operation March 24, 1884, a detached part of this parish (the hamlet of West Week) was amalgamated with Broadwood Widger in Launceston union for civil purposes.

Simeon M.A. of Oriel College, Oxford. There is a Wesleyan chapel in the village. The charities are of about 23s. yearly value. The manor belonged at an early period to the Stapledons, and subsequently to the Botelers or Butlers, Earls of Ormond, from whom it descended to the families of St. Leger and Leigh; it was purchased in 1872 by the late Sir George Studey Studey bart. Lieut.-Col. Sir W. L. Studey Studey bart. D.L., J.P. of Hartland Abbey, who is lord of the manor, and Major James Morrison Kirkwood, of Yeo Vale, are the principal landowners. The parish is finely wooded and the land is very fertile. The subsoil is clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The acreage is 1,321; rateable value, £1,453; the population in 1901 was 302.

LITTLEHAM (near Exmouth) is a parish and small straggling village on the sea coast, 2 miles east from Exmouth station on the London and South Western railway and 12 south-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of East Budleigh, petty sessional division of Woodbury, union of St. Thomas, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. A large portion of the town of Exmouth is within this parish, the whole of which is under the control of the Exmouth Urban District Council, formed Jan. 1, 1895. The church of St. Margaret and St. Andrew is an ancient building of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel with aisles, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells, two of which were recast in 1838: the south aisle was probably erected by the Drake family, of Spratshayes, in this parish, and the roof is enriched with figures of angels holding shields and with richly carved bosses: on the pavement is a slab inscribed to Robert Drake, gent. ob. Sept. 30, 1628, whose father and mother are also buried here; and there are other memorials to John Drake, ob. 1694, Katherine, his wife, ob. 1692, and John Drake, their son, ob. 1712: there are monuments to the family of Peel, relatives of the great statesman, Sir Robert Peel; another by Turnerelli, the celebrated sculptor, to Frances, Viscountess Nelson and Duchess of Bronté, widow of the great admiral, who resided for many years at No. 6 The Beacon, Exmouth, and dying in London, May 6, 1831, was buried in this churchyard: there is a finely carved oak screen 37 feet in length, of the Decorated period, c. 1460, enriched with shields bearing monograms, various knots and groined tracery, and also parclose screens, all restored in 1884 by Mr. Harry Hems, of Exeter: the roofs are enriched with figures of angels and carved bosses: the reredos, designed by Mr. R. M. Fulford F.R.I.B.A. of Exeter, is of oak, on a re-table of Devonshire marble, and, as well as the oak lectern, was executed by Mr. Hems; the latter, a memorial to Frances Jane, wife of Capt. Carr R.N. was given by her mother, having been made from oak removed from Salisbury cathedral, and probably dating from 1250: there are several memorial windows: the church was restored in 1884 at a cost of about £3,000, the chancel under the direction of Mr. Ewan Christian, architect to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and the rest of the fabric by Mr. Fulford: the roofs have been renewed and the interior seated with open benches, a western screen erected and the aisles repaved; the total cost was about £3,000: there are 286 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1612; marriages and burials, 1603. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Exmouth annexed, joint net yearly value £350, with residence and 2½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Edward Vere Freeman M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, who resides at the Vicarage, Exmouth. The charities for this parish amount to £12 yearly. The Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is clay and stone; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,370 acres of land, 4 of water, 2 of tidal water and 279 of foreshore; rateable value, £36,544; the population of the parish in 1901 was 5,743, of which 5,250 are in the town of Exmouth. By a Local Government Board Order dated 21 June, 1895, a portion of this parish, measuring 193 acres, was transferred for civil purposes to Budleigh Salterton Urban District.

LODDISWELL is a large scattered parish, with a station about a mile distant from the village on the Kingsbridge branch of the South Devon (Great Western) railway, and is about 3 miles north-west of Kingsbridge; it is in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Stanborough, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, Kingsbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The village is built upon the slope of the hills on the northern side of the Avon, a river celebrated for its trout. The church of St. Michael is a large building of stone, some portion of which was erected in the 15th century, but the tower, nave and chancel date about the 12th century: it consists of chancel, nave, north transept, south aisle, north and south chapels, south porch and a low embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells: the windows contain the arms of the families of Arundel, Courtenay, Fortescue, Furlong, Wood, Fursland, Wise and others, and there are monuments to members of the Wise and Osmond families, as well as to the Langworthys and Woods, of Hatch Arundel: the north chapel contains a monument to Roger Furlong, ob. 1616: a stained window in the transept was given by Miss Wise, of Idé, near Exeter: the east window is a memorial erected by Mr. William Peck to his mother, who was a native of this parish; and there are others to Edward Ashton Wise, killed in action in the Malay States, and to Wyse Weymouth: in the centre of the chancel is a large and interesting stone inscribed to Mr. Phillips, a benefactor to the parish: the font of old red sandstone is older than the church and is supposed to date from the 12th century: two hagioscopes and the entrance and steps to the rood loft are well preserved: a pulpit of alabaster was erected in 1893 as a memorial to Mr. Richard Peck: the church was restored in 1866-7 at a cost of £1,500, and has 450 sittings. The parish register dates from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Buckland Tout Saints attached, joint net yearly value £245, including 114 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mesdames Cameron, Cooper and Richards, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Thos. Francis Boulthbee M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The tithes were commuted in 1838, the rectorial for £281 yearly, now in the hands of Mr. William Budd, and the vicarial for £261. The Vicarage House, about a mile from the village, was enlarged and nearly rebuilt in 1865. The Congregational chapel was erected in 1864. There is a reading room near the church, opened in 1900. Mr. R. Phillips in 1724 devised a house and lands for the benefit of the poor of this parish; the rents, amounting to about £50, are annually distributed to the poor by the feoffees: other lands are held by another body of feoffees in trust to keep the church in repair. Yellow ochre was at one time manufactured from the clayey soil found on this down. The remains of a British camp, commonly called "The Rings," are on land belonging to Mrs. Allin, of Holbeton vicarage. Woolston House, the residence of Mrs. Weymouth, is surrounded by extensive grounds. Allerton is the residence of Lieut.-Col. Dacres William Wise J.P. The lordship of the manor is in two portions, belonging respectively to Miss Carew, and Nicholas William Prettyjohn Pitts esq. of Whymptstone, Modbury. The principal landowners are Mrs. Weymouth, N. W. P. Pitts esq. Lieut.-Col. Dacres William Wise, the trustees of the late Sir Henry Peck bart. Miss Carew, and Mrs. Allin, of Holbeton Vicarage. The soil is various; subsoil, clayey with shale. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and pasturage. The area is 3,576 acres of land and 22 of water; rateable value, £3,989; the population in 1901 was 650.

HAZELWOOD, 2½ miles north-east, and STANTON, 2 miles north-west, are hamlets of this parish. At Hazelwood is a Congregational chapel, erected in 1864.

with residence, in the gift of Miss Rosalie Caroline Chichester, and held since 1884 by the Rev. George Owen Ramsay. There is a small Wesleyan chapel at Lower Loxhore, built in 1840. Miss Rosalie Caroline Chichester, of Arlington Court, who is lady of the manor, Sir William Robert Williams bart. D.L., of Upcott and Messrs. Comer Clarke and Richard Comer Clarke, are chief landowners. The soil is light; the subsoil is clayey. The chief crops are oats and turnips. The acreage is 1,553; rateable value, £1,469; the population in 1901 was 220.

LUFFINCOTT is a parish in the valley of the Tamar and on the western border of the county, 4 miles west from Ashwater station on the Launceston and Tresmeer branch of the London and South Western railway and 7 south from Holsworthy, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Holsworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. James is a small and plain edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles at the angles, containing 3 bells, of which the first is an alphabet bell from A to I; the second bears an invocatory legend to the Virgin in Lombardic characters; the third is dated 1625: on the south side of the tower is a slate slab bearing an inscription recording the rebuilding of the tower in 1791: in the floor of the aisle is a stone to the memory of James, son of the Rev. Joseph Whitborne, a former rector, ob. 1701: the church was partially restored and reseated in 1893, when a new altar-table of carved oak was provided; there are 70 sittings. LUNDY ISLAND, situated in the Bristol channel, 15 miles north-west from Clovelly, constitutes a parish in the North Western division of the county, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Bideford, hundred of Branton, rural deanery of Hartland, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; it is 3 miles nautical, or nearly $\frac{3}{4}$ statute miles in length, by 1 nautical, or rather more than 1 statute mile in greatest breadth, but being very irregular in outline, does not average more than $\frac{1}{2}$ of a mile in breadth, giving an area of about 1,500 acres; the whole, together with the sea surrounding it for 3 miles, from low water mark, is included in the port of Barnstaple; the nearest railway station is Westward Ho! on the Bideford and Westward Ho! Railway, opened in May, 1901; the island is surrounded by lofty and inaccessible rocks, except on the eastern side, where it can be approached only by a very small entrance: on this side is the roadstead, which is much frequented by outward bound vessels and pilot and tug boats, and affords to craft entering or leaving the Bristol channel the only shelter from westerly gales: communication with the mainland is secured by means of a sailing vessel every Thursday from Instow, by which the weekly mails are conveyed; and, during the summer months only, a steamer runs from Ilfracombe three or four times a week, as well as occasionally from Barnstaple and Bideford. The steamer "Devonia," plying between Bideford and Bristol, calls at the island when required. The ancient chapel of St. Helen, with the annexed oratory of St. Anne, traditionally said to have been in use, at least for funeral services, in the reign of William III. has now been for many years a ruin. In 1889 the proprietor and his family erected an iron church, which was opened and licensed by the Bishop of Exeter, and affords 82 sittings: but in 1896-7, a permanent church of local granite was erected on an elevated site, at a cost of over £4,000, from designs by Mr. John Norton F.R.I.B.A. of London, and dedicated, like its predecessor, to St. Helen. It contains a fine reredos, with three marble panels, displaying, in high relief, representations of the "Passover," the "Scape goat in the Wilderness," and the "Last Supper"; this work, as well as the pulpit, font and a statue of St. Helen in a niche over the south-west entrance, being executed by Hems and Sons, of Exeter; the entire expense is borne by the rector, who has built the Church as a votive offering. The church, opened June, 1897, affords 164 sittings. No parish registers are known to exist; certainly none have been kept since the Reformation; births and deaths have been registered of late years by the registrar of the Hartland district. The living is a rectory, the patronage belonged in pre-Reformation times to Cleve Abbey, in Somersetshire, but on the suppression of that house the patronage appears to have lapsed, and no appointment has ever since been made; the glebe, if any, passed to the owner of the island: the incumbency is in the gift of and has been held since 1864 by the Rev. Hudson Grosett Heaven M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford. There is an ancient burial ground attached to the remains of St. Helen's chapel, dating from the 13th century, the freehold of which appears to have passed into the possession of the land-owner for the time being, on the suppression of monastic 1659; marriages, 1653; burials 1664. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £65, with glebe, let at £30, and residence, in the gift of Frank Bradshaw esq. and held since 1895 by the Rev. Thomas Ward Brown M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Frank Bradshaw esq. J.P. of Lifton Park, Messrs. Joseph and Edmund Spettigues and Mrs. Richard Ford, of 17 Park street, Park lane, London W. who is lady of the manor, are the principal land-owners. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. Acreage, 1,477; rateable value, £540; the population in 1901 was 95. By Local Government Order 14,691, East Peake has been added to this parish from Tetcott, March 25, 1885, for civil purposes.

Letters through Holsworthy arrive at 9 a.m. Holsworthy is the nearest money order office & Ashwater railway station the nearest telegraph office, 4 miles distant

This place is included in the United School Board district of Clawton, Luffincott & Tetcott, formed August 31, 1874. The children attend the school at the latter place houses. There are no dissenting chapels of any kind. The ancient keep and other remains of Marisco Castle, dating from the time of Henry III. still exist, and there is a lighthouse and fog-signal station.

Two lighthouses have been erected by the Trinity House, one on the north end and the other on the west side of the island: these were completed about 1897.

Lloyd's have a signal station on the island. Telephonic communication with Barnstaple by day and Appledore by night, has also been established under Post Office control. The night telephone is for special use in case of wrecks and marine disaster requiring prompt assistance. The Rev. H. G. Heaven M.A. is lord of the manor (which retains very full manorial rights) and sole land-owner. A handsome mansion was built here by the late William Hudson Heaven esq. The whole island, with the exception of about 60 acres, is held on lease for a term of 20 years by George John Taylor esq. who resides at Abbotsham Court, Bideford, and visits the island about every month. During the years 1899-1900 a large reservoir has been made for supplying the manor house with water. There is a large and well-appointed boarding-house, where visitors can be boarded "en pension"; terms can be obtained on application to Mrs. Pellman, Manor House, Lundy Island. There are also several cottages and a large luncheon room for visitors to the island, capable of holding 200 persons. There is very good fishing, and lobsters are caught in great quantities by Mr. Thomas, who will supply visitors with any quantity on application. Very good woodcock shooting can be had in winter. Mr. Taylor has arranged to run a steamer to Lundy during June, July, August and September, starting from Ilfracombe, Swansea and Sharpness, enabling visitors to stay on the island several hours. This is the only steamer allowed to land passengers on the island. The island, which is the sole property of the lord of the manor, is mainly formed of, and is famous for a very hard and durable granite, which furnished supplies for the construction, in 1864-70, of the Thames Embankment. Of the land, only about 200 acres are under cultivation, about 300 acres are maintained as permanent pasture, and the remainder is moorland. The soil is generally light, varying from light reddish loam to very light black sandy peat, overlying a varying subsoil of white and yellow clay or gravel. The chief crops are hay, oats, barley and roots. The island supports about 800 sheep and 100 beasts and horses, and is the nesting-place of millions of sea-birds of many different varieties. The area is about 1,500 acres, according to recent Ordnance survey, but has never been valued, and no rates are either levied or paid; there is 102 acres of foreshore in the parish; population is now (1901) about 25.

Post Office, established in 1887 by H. M. Government, who also pay half the expense for the weekly mail from Instow, the other moiety being borne equally by the proprietor & the lessee. The Trinity House also have a private mail from Appledore twice a month. Letters through Instow R.S.O. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. The Post Office authorities have since 1893 established telephonic communication, by means of cable, with the mainland, in connection with the general scheme of electric communication for light-houses round the coast. Connected with the Manor House is a large store, where anything can be obtained, & from which the windbound vessels obtain supplies, such as beef, mutton, bread, tobacco and beer.

There are no rates or taxes

LUPPITT is a village and parish, intersected by a small tributary of the river Otter, 5 miles north from Honiton station, on the London and South Western railway, 11 south-east from Wellington, 14 south from Taunton and 20 north-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, Axminster hundred, Honiton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Dukeswell and Honiton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient cruciform building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and a western tower containing 4 bells: it has a very ancient cradle roof of oak, supported at the intersection of the transepts by massive ribs of oak, which, crossing the nave diagonally, meet in a fine boss in the centre and form two horse-shoe arches, resting on stone pillars at the four angles: in rebuilding the chancel, earthen jars, said to be for acoustic purposes, and commonly placed in buildings between the 13th and 15th centuries, were found in the walls: some remains of an Early Norman piscina, which had been cut in order to form a buttress corbel, were also met with: in the north wall of the chancel is a tomb with niches and rich tabernacle work under an open foliated arch, said to be that of Sir John Carew, ob. 1320: it once bore some fine brasses, now missing: in the south transept is a stone inscribed to Joan (Beylle), wife of William Wenard, supposed to be identical with William Wynard, recorder of Exeter, in 1404, and founder of "God's House" in that city: there is also an interesting font of Early Norman or Saxon date: the two stone screens formerly here, viz. the chancel screen, and one enclosing the north transept, have been broken up, and fragments of both are now incorporated in the mantel pieces of houses adjoining: the church was restored during 1885-90, at a cost of £1,280, and affords sittings for 300 persons. The register dates from the year 1710 and is much mutilated. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £93, including 8 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late Col. C. W. H. Helyar (d. 1900), and held since 1880 by the Rev. William Thomas Perrott, of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. The view from Dumpdon Hill, a well-formed British encampment in this parish, is extensive and beautiful. There is also a fine range of hills called "Hartridge." There are some remains here of an ancient mansion of the Mohun family, barons Mohun, including the gateway, adorned with some fine carving. Arthur Francis Bernard esq. of Combe Raleigh, who is lord of the manor, George Potter Blake esq. the trustees of the late Col. C. W. H. Helyar (d. 1900), Mrs. E. Helyar, Rev. W. H. Helyar B.A. rector of Sutton Bingham, Somerset, and Mrs. Simcoe, of Wolford Lodge, are the chief landowners. H. N. Pope esq. steward of the manor, holds a yearly Court Leet at the Luppitt inn. The soil is various; subsoil, marl. The crops are chiefly grass, with some wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 5,072 acres; rateable value, £4,855; the population in 1901 was 467.

SHAPECOMBE, 2½ miles south-west, is a tithing, and was formerly a manor.

LUSTLEIGH is a parish and village, about one mile west of the high road from Newton Abbot to Moreton Hampstead, with a station on the Moreton Hampstead branch of the Great Western railway, and is 10 miles north-by-west from Newton Abbot, 4 south-south-east from Moreton Hampstead and 22½ from London, in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge hundred, Crockernwell petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union and county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient edifice of granite in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, south transept, nave, north aisle, with an arcade of four arches separating it from the nave, south porch and an embattled western tower of ashlar work, with pinnacles and containing 6 bells: the chancel retains a beautiful double piscina of Early English date, and three sedilia with triangular heads of the same period: the priest's doorway also remains, and on the north side is an Early English Easter sepulchre: the east window is stained, and there are seven other stained windows, some of which contain ancient glass representing the Virgin and Child, St. Margaret and an Archbishop: in the chancel are also two small brackets, each pierced with three holes, and from which, during Lent, a cloth or hanging was suspended concealing the altar: the rood stairs, with both doorways, still remain: in the north aisle, within low arched recesses, are recumbent effigies of a knight in coif and hauberk, covered by a cyclas, and bearing a shield; and of a lady attired in a wimple and flowing gown; these figures appear to belong to the first part of the 14th century; at the east end is a similar effigy of a knight of somewhat later date; the whole are assumed to represent members of the Pron or Pronz family, and according to Risdon (survey of Devon 1714-23) one of the shields then bore the arms of this family: a carved oak screen of Perpendicular date extends across the nave and aisle; the lower portion is panelled in 24 panes, containing figures of saints carved in relief; the cornice is carved with vine foliage and grapes: the font is Norman, and consists of a circular basin ornamented with cable moulding, and once surrounded by six shafts, only the capitals being now left: the porch has an aspersorium, or holy-water stoup, with a square basin: at the entrance of the porch is a stone with a remarkable inscription on it, as yet unexplained: the communion plate includes a chalice, given by Edward Basil, rector, who died 6th Jan. 1697, and a flagon and two patens, given by the Rev. William Davy, rector, who died in 1826: the church was restored in 1883 and subsequent years at a cost of £700, and affords 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1631. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £197, including 36 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1888 by the Rev. Harry Tudor M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge, prebendary of Exeter, proctor in convocation and surrogate. The rectory house contains a fine hall, with an Early English roof. Here is a small Baptist chapel and a meeting house for the Brethren. The parish room was rebuilt in 1888 in memory of the late rector. Davy's charity of about £6 10s. a year is now expended in giving awards to the children of the Board and Sunday schools; a smaller charity of £1 yearly value is for the benefit of deserving parishioners. Lustleigh Cleave is a picturesque ravine of granite rocks of considerable extent, running almost parallel with the valley in which the village stands, and surmounted by a bold sweeping brow: in a hedge between the church and the railway station is a square block of granite, probably once the base of a cross, and called "the Bishop's Stone," from the arms of Bishop Stapledon, which are said to appear upon it. The celebrated Logan rock is about 1½ miles from the station. The chief landowners are Mrs. Wise, George Wills esq. and Mr. Frederick Amery. The soil is granitic; the subsoil, granite. The chief crops are wheat, barley, potatoes and turnips. The area is 2,973

LUTON, see Bishops Teignton.

LYDFORD, or Lidford, is a parish, with a station 1½ miles south of the village on the Launceston and Tavistock branch railway, 20¾ miles from London, in the Western division of the county. Linton hundred, Tavistock petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter, 7½ miles north from Tavistock and 14 from Launceston. This place, during the Saxon period and subsequently, was a borough, and returned two members to Parliament from 1301 until 1307, after which the burgesses, "propter pauperatem," were excused: at the beginning of the reign of Edward I. the assizes were held here and at Exeter alternately. Lydford station is the junction of the London and South Western railway with the Launceston, Tavistock and Plymouth line of the Great Western railway. The Plymouth, Devonport and South Western junction railway, constructed in 1889 from Lydford to Plymouth, furnishes the South Western Company with an independent line to Plymouth. The village is supplied with water conveyed from Dartmoor through pipes. The church of St. Petrock is a building of granite, incorporating remains of an older structure of freestone, in the Early Perpendicular style, with some traces of Early English work, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with crocketed pinnacles, containing 5 bells, recast with additional metal in 1789, from a previous peal of three, by J. Pennington and Co. under a licence from the Bishop: in the west wall of the aisle are the remains of the staircase to the rood loft; the east end of the aisle, formerly a chapel, retains a hagioscope pierced through these stairs, and a niche with a mutilated female figure in alabaster: the priest's door on the south side of the chancel is now blocked and filled in part with a square-headed window: the circular granite font is a curious work of Early English date, and the porch, which belongs to the same period, retains a stoup on the east side; the stained east window was erected in 1879 by Daniel Radford esq. of Lidford

Bridge, in memory of his brother, George W. Radford esq. and there is a memorial window to a child of Mr. and Mrs. George Radford; there are also two other stained windows, placed by Arthur Radford esq. as memorials to his late wife: there are 100 sittings. The Rev. W. K. Chafy Chafy, curate in charge of the parish, 1875-6, spent about £3,000 in completely re-furnishing the church, repairing and adding to the rectory house and building new stables: in 1890 a north aisle and a vestry were added and the church restored at a cost of £800: in the churchyard is a tomb with a long and very singular inscription to George Routleigh, a watchmaker. The register of baptisms dates from 1716; marriages, 1719; burials, 1726. The living is a rectory, with Princetown, Dartmeet and Postbridge annexed, net yearly value £141, including 28 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of H.R.H. the Duke of Cornwall and York K.G. and held since 1895 by the Rev. William Arthur Badger. There is a Bible Christian chapel here, built of stone, with sittings for 100 persons. A granite cross has been erected on Bray's Tor. Lydford Castle, now in ruins, was erected at some period subsequent to the Conquest, as a protection to this part of the county; the remains consist chiefly of the keep, situated on an artificial mound on one side of a wide sloping area, inclosed by double parallel earthworks; the fortress can be approached only from the north-east, and was once, no doubt, a place of considerable importance; the castle was in a decayed state in 1650, but continued to be in some degree habitable until about 1820: here the Stannary Courts were formerly held. The river Lyd, which flows through the parish, rises about 3 miles above Lydford, and is spanned by a picturesque bridge of one arch, thrown across a ravine 70 feet in depth; immediately below is the famous Lydford Gorge. The stream flows over its rocky bed for about a mile and a half from the bridge, where it is joined by the stream which forms the well-known Lydford cascade, which has a fall of about 100 feet; the path to the waterfall runs through the grounds of the Manor hotel.

About one mile above the village, on the course of the Lyd, is another waterfall, commonly called "Kitt's Steps." H.R.H. the Duke of Cornwall and York K.G. is lord of the manor and chief landowner. This parish, which includes the greater part of the forest of Dartmoor, is the largest in area in England. The township contains 3,662 acres of land, exclusive of the Dartmoor Forest quarter, which extends over 56,333 acres; rateable value, £9,385; the population in 1891 was 2,144, including about 218 officers and 470 prisoners in Dartmoor Convict Prison.

PRINCE TOWN, on the moor, is given under a separate heading, and particulars of Dartmoor are there given.

LYMPSTONE is a parish and village pleasantly seated on the eastern bank of the broad estuary of the Exe, with a station on the Exmouth branch of the London and South Western railway, and is $7\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-south-east from Exeter, $3\frac{1}{2}$ south-south-east from Topsham, $2\frac{1}{2}$ north from Exmouth and 180 from London, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of East Budleigh, petty sessional division of Woodbury, union of St. Thomas, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is a building of red sandstone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, dating from 1409, and containing a clock and 5 bells, all cast in 1746, and the third recast in 1887: in 1864 the old structure, being much dilapidated, was, with the exception of the tower, rebuilt and a north aisle added; the interior of the tower was restored, and a clock chiming the quarters erected in 1884 at a cost of £266, and the tower was again restored in 1890: there are memorial windows in the south aisle to William Henry Wright, d. May 16, 1867, and to Mary Jane, wife of W. H. Peters esq. J.P. d. Nov. 3, 1884; and others to Frances Lucy Peters, daughter of the above, d. May 17, 1854, Mary Ann and Catherine Shirreff, d. 1884, Dr. Shirreff, d. 1886, Major and Mrs. Octavius Marshall, d. 1889, and Capt. and Mrs. Macdonald, d. 1847 and 1849: a new organ chamber and vestry were erected in 1889 at a cost of over £500, and a new organ was provided in 1893, at a cost of £468: there are 510 sittings. The register dates from May, 1654. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £250, with about 13 acres of glebe and house, in the gift of the Rev. C. D. E. Malet, vicar of Cannington, Somerset, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Charles Gordon Browne M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford: attached to the living is a rectorial manor, the lands of which are leased out for lives, and held under the rector as lord; on the expiration of the leases the value of the living will be considerably augmented, as, by an Act of Parliament passed in 1861, the rack rents will then revert to the living. The Primitive Methodist chapel, erected in 1883 at a cost of about £850, is a neat building of limestone with Bath stone dressings in the Gothic style, and will seat 280 persons. The parish charities amount to about £60 yearly, and are expended upon the National and Sunday schools and the deserving poor. Near the beach is a square tower with weather vane, containing a clock with two dials, erected in 1885 at a cost of about £1,000, by W. H. Peters esq. of Harefield, in memory of his wife Mary Jane, and to commemorate her kindness to and sympathy for the poor of Lympton; from the top magnificent views of the surrounding country can be obtained. This is the head quarters of No. 1 Company of the 1st Devonshire Volunteer Artillery, Western Division, Royal Artillery; the drill shed and general equipments are very complete. Here is a Working Men's Club, established in 1884, and a lending library, open during the winter months; also a Conservative Club, established in 1885. There are several good residences in the parish, including Harefield, Lympton House, Lympton Grange, the Manor House, Sowdon Lodge, and the Rectory. Sir Francis George Augustus Fuller-Elliott-Drake bart. of Nutwell Court, is lord of the manor. Major-Gen. William Henry Brooke Peters J.P. is the principal landowner; the rest of the land is divided among a great number of persons. The soil is of a rich loam, and the subsoil is gravel. The chief trades are sea-fishing and Honiton lace making, the latter industry having greatly declined in recent years. The area of the parish is 973 acres of land and 434 of foreshore; rateable value, £4,992; the population in 1901 was 1,012.

LYNMOUTH, so called from its situation at the confluence and mouth of the East and West Lyn, on the outskirts of Exmoor, is well known as a popular and beautiful watering-place, occupying a level site, near the seashore, at the entrance of an immense gorge, into which the magnificent ravine of the East Lyn and the densely wooded but sequestered valley of the West Lyn abruptly descend, the twin streams, after heavy or long continued rains, assuming formidable proportions, and rush down to the sea with extraordinary speed and great uproar; within the circuit of a few miles inland there is every variety of hill and dale, with woody tracts and moorland of vast extent, and valleys of extreme beauty traversed by mountain streams dashing impetuously over their rock-strewn beds; the coast scenery here is also very fine and extensive: the Welsh coast is generally visible, and sometimes the hills of South Wales may be very distinctly made out. The nearest railway station is at Lynton, the terminus of the Lynton and Barnstaple railway, and about 1 mile distant. By an Order in Council, dated July 6, 1886, Lynmouth was ecclesiastically annexed to Countisbury, and is in the rural deanery of Sherwell and archdeaconry of Barnstaple. The church of St. John the Baptist, a chapel of ease to Countisbury, erected by voluntary contributions at a cost of about £2,000, is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of vaulted apsidal chancel, nave, south aisle, north porch and a western turret containing 2 bells: there are 220 sittings. The living is a perpetual curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Countisbury, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Albert Richards Hockley. There is also a Gospel mission hall. The Lyndale, Tors Park and Lyn Valley hotels afford every convenience for visitors. Here is also a public reading room; and a life-boat and life-saving rocket apparatus are maintained. Among the chief places of interest in the neighbourhood are Brendon Valley, Bossington hill, Culbone, Dunkery beacon, 1,668 feet above the sea level, Exmoor, about 14 miles square and largely uncultivated; Glenthorne, with a delightful coast path winding round the cliffs; Heddon's mouth, the entrance to a romantic valley, Lyndale, Lee bay, the Valley of Rocks, and the valleys of the West Lyn and Watersmeet. The Valley of Rocks is a wild region, in which the Castle rock, rising in a sheer precipice from the sea of 500 feet, is the most prominent feature. Watersmeet, up the East Lyn, which is crossed by rustic bridges, receives the Combe water; the narrow gorge is well wooded, and there is good fishing. A lighthouse was built in 1900 by the Trinity House authorities at a cost of £10,000, including the making of two miles of approach roads; the lighthouse stands about 200 feet above the sea, and has a keeper's residence attached. The population in 1901 was 402.

LYNTON is a parish containing several hamlets, with a terminal station on the Lynton and Barnstaple railway now in course of construction; the village is 20 miles from each of the following towns, viz.:—Minehead, Barnstaple, South Molton and Ilfracombe, and stands on a wooded hill 900 feet in height, immediately above and connected by a cliff railway with Lynmouth, where the waters of the East and West Lyn unite and fall into the Bristol Channel, the scenery here, especially in the Valley of Rocks, being wild and romantic. Lynton is in the North Western division of the county, hundred of Shirwell, petty sessional division of Braunton, union and county court district of Barnstaple, rural deanery of Shirwell, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter.

The parish was formerly governed by a Local Board, formed Dec. 7, 1866, under the "Local Government Act of 1858," but is now controlled by an Urban District Council of 15 members, constituted under the Act of 1894. The village is supplied with water by the Lynton Water Co. Limited, and is partly lighted by electricity, the works for which are situated in Lynmouth. The church of St. Mary, an ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, enlarged during the period 1817-33, was entirely rebuilt, with the exception of the tower and south wall, during the period 1873-92, at a cost of £5,000, and now consists of chancel, nave, aisles, north and south-west porches and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 3 bells, 2 of which are of pre-Reformation date; the third was cast in 1707 by Richard Penneyton: a clock with two dials was erected in 1887: there are 500 sittings: the church was wholly closed against interments, and regulations made concerning the churchyard, Feb. 9, 1855. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1569; marriages, 1591; burials, 1568. The early registers are written on the back of indentures of apprenticeship and bound together. The living is a vicarage, and was severed from that of Countisbury by an Order in Council, May 7, 1858, but not gazetted, net yearly value £300, with 17 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Walter Eustace Cox M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, and surrogate. In 1879 (Feb. 7) the living was endowed with 3 acres of land for a parsonage. The mission church of St. Bartholomew, at Barbrook Mill, is an edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a western turret containing one bell. There is a Congregational chapel, built in 1851, with 250 sittings, a Wesleyan chapel at Lynton and another at Barbrook Mill.

Lynton has communication by coach with Ilfracombe and Minehead during the summer months. There are 7 hotels, viz.: "The Royal Castle," Lynton Cottage Private hotel (both in the same extensive and romantic grounds), the "Valley of Rocks," "the Crown," "the Imperial," "the Gobe" and "the Queen." The District Cottage Hospital, established in 1873, is a plain cottage building, enlarged in 1893 at a cost of £50, and is supported by voluntary contributions. The Foresters' Hall will seat about 300 persons. The Town Hall, erected and presented to the parish by Sir George Newnes bart. in 1900, is a building of stone and cost £20,000. The lift here, one of the longest and steepest of its kind, connecting Lynton with Lynmouth, was designed and built by Mr. Jones, of this town, and opened on Easter Monday, 1890. Lee Abbey is the residence of Frederick Charles Bailey esq. D.L., J.P. Mrs. Jeune, of Countisbury, is lady of the manor; the principal landowners are C. F. Bailey esq. J.P. Col. James Lean, Evan Browell Jeune esq. J.P. of Countisbury, Lady Carew and R. H. Taylor esq. The soil is light gravelly; subsoil, turf, in some parts rock; crops, oats and barley. The area is 7,100 acres of land, 13 of water, 2 of tidal water and 80 of foreshore; rateable value, £11,289; the population in 1901 was 1,641. The population during the visiting season is not less than 7,000.

LYNMOUTH, a hamlet in this parish, has been ecclesiastically annexed to Countisbury.

MALBOROUGH is a parish pleasantly situated on one of the highest points of the county, commanding an extensive prospect and bounded on the south by the open sea between Bolt Head and Bolt Tail, and is $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Kingsbridge station on a branch of the Great Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, Stanborough hundred, Stanborough and Cole-ridge petty sessional division, Kingsbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Woodleigh, arch-deaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The seaport of Salcombe, formerly included in this parish, has now become a separate parish under section one, sub-section three of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73). The church of All Saints is an interesting edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with spire containing 6 bells, of greater antiquity than the rest of the church: the spire, which has been twice struck by lightning, can be seen at a great distance on account of its elevated position: there is a very curious old font, a piscina and a stoup: the east window is a memorial to Andrew Pinwill esq.: another stained window, in the south aisle, was given anonymously: there are memorials in the church and churchyard to persons lost at sea off the coast of this parish and also a marble monument to John Stapleton, 28th baron Kingsale, d. Jan. 7, 1847: the church was restored and re-seated in 1870, at a cost of £2,500, and has 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1640. The living is a vicarage, with South Huish annexed, net yearly value £190, with residence and one acre of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Sarum, and held since 1877 by the Rev. William Thomas Keeling M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The Baptist chapel was erected in 1815, and enlarged and repaired in 1872, when a new school room was added. There is also a Wesleyan Methodist chapel at Inner Hope Cove. The reading room was given to the parish by Mr. Mildmay, and is managed by the vicar. The charities amount to £150 yearly, derived from the rents of lands bequeathed by Richard Dyer and Mrs. Alice Bayning, half of which is appropriated to the repairs of the church: the other half is under the management of the trustees of the Poores' Land Charity. Ilton Castle, now a farm-house, was built as a fortified mansion by Sir John Chiverston in 1335: the Courtenays, in right of their estates here, formerly held Admiralty Courts at the maritime villages within the different manors. Captain James Stevenson Twysden R.N. of Murston, Kingsbridge, the trustees of the late Mr. J. Ford, of Plymouth, and B. Heriot esq. of Salcombe, are the principal landowners. The soil is chiefly loam; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and roots. The area is 5,090 acres of land and 245 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,291; the population in 1901 was 564.

MANATON is a parish and village, standing high upon Dartmoor, and is 4½ miles north-west from Bovey Tracey station on the Moreton Hampstead branch of the Great Western railway, 10 north-west from Newton Abbot and 4 south from Moreton Hampstead, in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge hundred and petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union and county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Winifred is an ancient building of granite in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, three aisles, south porch, and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells: the porch is vaulted and has a parvise over, and crossing the interior from north to south is a fine traceried screen of carved oak of the early part of the 15th century, with a coved canopy, deep frieze, and open cresting: it was restored in 1803, under the direction of Mr. Sedding, architect, of Plymouth, and is now one of the most interesting in the country: a staircase to the roof screen was constructed in 1900: in 1897 new choir-stalls were provided: the stained east window is a memorial to Miss Vavasour, and there are two others to the Rev. William Carwithen D.D.: the south east porch was erected in 1896: in 1897 a new organ was provided, and a reredos presented by Mrs. Ffrench, in memory of the Ffrench family; it was designed by Mr. George Prynne, and the panels were painted by Mr. Edward Prynne: a new brass lectern was presented in 1900 by the rector and his wife, in memory of Miss Sweetland, who died in 1899: on the 13th December, 1779, during a thunderstorm, the east end of the church was much damaged, as well as the altar-piece; the south side of the tower was split from the top to within a few feet of the bottom, and one of the pinnacles fell through the roof: the church was restored and entirely resited during the period 1874-91, at a cost of £530, and has 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £160, including 40 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Hon. W. F. D. Smith M.P. and held since 1894 by the Rev. John Charles Burch Sanders, of Oxford University and St. Aidans. The Parish Room, mansion, delightfully situated in a park of about 300 acres, containing some beautiful ilex and cork trees and erected about 60 years ago, is an edifice of Bath stone, with gables and four towers intersecting the roof and producing, together with the porches and numerous oriel windows, a highly ornamental effect: on the top of the Haldon Hill, above the house, is an obelisk of Portland stone, 100 feet in height, erected by Thomas Balle esq. formerly of Mamhead House, in the last century, as a beacon to vessels at sea. Sir R. H. S. D. L. Newman bart. who is lord of the manor, and William Ellis esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is old red sandstone; the subsoil is gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, mangolf wurtzel and turnips, but there is much good pasture land. The area is 1,181 acres; rateable value, £1,749; the population in 1901 was 178.

erected in 1898, in the rectory grounds, is used as a Sunday school and for entertainments. There is a Wesleyan chapel. In the Hound-tor Valley is a cascade called "Becky Fall," descending 70 feet over the granite rocks, and among the crags opposite the village is a rock called "Bowermans," more than 40 feet in height and having the appearance of a gigantic human figure, in a seated posture. Hound-tor, a remarkable pile of huge rocks, and Horsham Steps, a bed of huge detached rocks, beneath which the little river Bovey loses itself for several hundred feet, are also in this parish. At the western end of the parish is a circle, called "Grimspound," from about 450 to 500 feet in diameter, formed of stones, several of which are of great size; within are several smaller circles, about 10 feet in diameter; most of the stones are now prostrate, but the circles can be easily traced. The Hon. W. F. D. Smith M.P. the Rev. Prebendary Richard Robbins Wolfe M.A. of Arthington, Mrs. Ffrench, John Kitson esq. Thomas Foster Barham esq. Robert Earle esq. W. R. Cookson esq. of Binfield, Berks, John Eveleigh Farmer esq. James Bryant, Albert and Robert Nosworthy esqrs. and Mrs. May are the principal landowners. The soil is sand and the subsoil is granitic. The chief crops are barley, oats and some pasture land. The area is 6,414 acres of land, including 2,000 of commons and waste and 8 of water; rateable value, £2,445; the population in 1901 was 315.

MARIANSLEIGH is a parish and village seated on a hill overlooking the valley of the Mole, 4 miles south-east from South Molton station, on the Great Western railway, in the Northern division of the county. Witheridge hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells, a new treble having been added in 1894, at a cost of £110, which included the cost of rehanging and adding a chiming apparatus: the font, constructed of granite, and probably of Norman date, has a square panelled basin: the east window is a memorial to W. T. Shackleton esq. d. 1882, and there is another, erected in 1900, to the late Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, formerly of this parish: in the window of the north aisle are some remains of ancient glass: the church affords 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1727. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £150, with residence and 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Exeter Church Charity Trustees, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Alfred Win-

MARLDON is a parish and village about 2 miles north-west from Paignton station on the Torbay and Dartmouth branch of the Great Western railway, 5 miles east-north-east from Totnes, 3 west from Torquay and 5 south from Newton Abbot, in the Torquay division of the county, hundred of Haytor, petty sessional division of Paignton, union and county court district of Totnes, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes, and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist is an edifice of dressed stone in the Late Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, three chapels, nave, aisles, south porch with a priest's room above, and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 5 bells, of which the first was broken in 1862 and recast in 1885; the second and fourth date from 1636; the third, a mediæval bell, is inscribed "Sit nomen Domini benedictum"; the fifth was cast in 1639: the church is said to have been erected by the ancient family of Gilbert, of Compton Castle, whose arms, with those of the family of Compton, are emblazoned in the windows: and there are several monuments to the Gilberts, De la Poles, Comptons, Templers, Bartlettas, Bishops and Eastleys: in the church is the mutilated stone effigy of a knight in armour, bare-headed, and once attached to the stone screen formerly existing in the church: it is believed to represent Otho Gilbert, sheriff of the county in 1476; the steps and doors of the rood loft remain, and each of the chapels retains a piscina: there are stained windows to Mr. Garratt, of Parkfield, to William Henry Browne, and to the wife of the Rev. J. M. de Ludbrooke Bartlet, of Ludbrook Manor, Devon: the church was partially restored in 1862, under the direction of Mr. Wm. White F.S.A. architect, and the restoration was completed in 1889 by Mr. R. M. Fulford, architect, at a cost of £2,000: there are sittings for 250 persons. The registers date from the year 1598. The living is a chapelry annexed to the vicarage of Paignton, joint net yearly value £400, in the gift of J. G. E.

niffrith M.A. of Merton College, Oxon. There is a Wesleyan chapel at Alswere. Lieut.-Col. Sir J. D. Ferguson-Davie bart. of Crudy Park, who is lord of the manor, is principal landowner. The soil is light loam or dun; subsoil, clay, skillett and substances of slate. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,030 acres; rateable value, £1,503; the population in 1901 was 205.

ALSWERE, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south, and LITTLE SILVER, $1\frac{1}{2}$ south-west, are hamlets.

Letters from South Molton arrive at Alswere & Little Silver at 8 a.m. & at the village at 8.30 a.m. Wall Letter Boxes: in the village, cleared at 4.50 p.m. week days only; Alswere, cleared at 5.30 p.m. week days only & Little Silver, cleared at 5.20 p.m. week days only. South Molton, 4 miles distant, is the nearest money order office & Bishopslympton, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles distant, is the nearest telegraph office

This place is included in the United School Board district of Romansleigh & Mariansleigh, formed April 19, 1875. Board School (mixed), built in 1876, for 100 children; average attendance, 57; Miss Jessie Lee, mistress

Templer esq. of Lindridge, and the Earl of Iddesleigh, the former having two, and the latter one presentation, and held since 1892 by the Rev. John Trelawny Ross D.D. of Trinity College, Dublin, rural dean of Ipplepen and surrogate, who resides at Paignton. The Congregational chapel is a plain rectangular edifice of grey stone, built in 1864 and holding 150 persons. There is a Baptist chapel at Compton. There are charities of $3\frac{1}{2}$ acres of land producing £4 yearly, given by an unknown donor for the benefit of the poor, and 6s. 8d. from Kelly's gift, yearly; the proceeds of both these gifts are distributed among the poor by trustees appointed by the Parish Council at their discretion, in sums varying from 1s. to 5s. Compton Castle, the property of Cecil Edward Bewes esq. situated in the hamlet of Compton, within this parish, was anciently a seat of the Pole family, and in the reign of Henry II. was held by Sir Maurice de la Pole; the existing structure is supposed to have been erected in the early part of the 15th century; the buildings originally surrounded a quadrangle, and the north front, with its embattled tower and ancient gateway and the dilapidated ivy-covered walls, remain: in the floor of the room over the gateway on the east side is an oblong opening of some size: there is also a subterranean passage (supposed to have now fallen in) for a short way towards Berry Pomeroy Castle; north of the main entrance was a chapel, retaining a hagioscope and piscina. At the time of Domesday Survey, Compton was held by Stephen, under Jubel de Totnaia; Osolf possessed it in the reign of Edward the Confessor, and in the time of Henry II. it was in the hands of Maurice de la Pole and long continued to be the property and residence of this noble family, ancestors of the celebrated antiquary, Sir William Pole; and on this account was for a considerable time designated Compton Pole: Lady Alice de la Pole gave the manor and castle to the Comptons, in whose possession it remained for seven descents: until a co-heiress of the Comptons, by marriage with the Gilberts, brought it, in the reign of Edward II. into the family of Sir Humphrey Gilbert, the great navigator and mathematician and half-brother to Sir W. Raleigh. In the reign of Edward VI. this manor and castle were held by Elias Bishop, in whose family they remained during several generations, but subsequently re-purchased by the Gilberts and held by them until a late period, when the property was acquired by the Templers of Stover, and from these passed into the hands of John Bishop esq. a descendant of its ancient owners. The chief landowners are Cecil Edward Bewes esq. of Hillside, Ridgeway, Plympton; Sir George Farwell, justice of the High Court, of 60 Queen's gardens, Bayswater, London W. Percy Beavis Holberton esq. and Charles Herbert Mallock esq. of Cockington Court. The soil is limy, and subsoil, rocky. The chief crops are grass. The area of the parish is 2,547 acres; rateable value, £4,416; the population in 1891 was 528.

MARWOOD is a parish and village on the Ilfracombe road, 3 miles north-west from Barnstaple stations on the London and South-Western and Great Western railways, in the North Western division of the county, Braunton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south transept, south porch, and a western embattled tower containing 6 bells, cast in 1771: a richly carved screen, bearing the name of John Beaul, rector in the reign of Henry VIII. crossed the north aisle: the rood loft stairs exist, but the screen disappeared within recent years: the chancel retains an Early English piscina: the carved stone font was presented by the late Mrs. Ann Tyrell, and the old one buried underneath to preserve it: the south porch has a sun dial, made by John Berry, of this parish, in 1762, which shows the approximate time at the principal capitals of Europe and at Jerusalem: the church plate includes flagon dated 1671, alms dish 1678, paten 1714, and a cup with cover of the time of Elizabeth: there are 200 sittings. The churchyard was enlarged in 1878 by the addition of the parish bowling green. The register dates from the year 1602. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £396, including 26 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of St. John's College, Cambridge, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Henry Theodore Edward Barlow M.A. of that College. The Mission church at Muddiford is a building of wood, erected in 1864, consisting of nave only, and has 20 sittings. There is a Congregational chapel, two Wesleyan chapels and one for the Plymouth Brethren. The charities are of £34 yearly value. The country from Whitefield hill, through Swindon, across to Patsford down, affords evidence of the presence of iron ore in large quantities, and at Milltown there is a quarry of old red sandstone. Prieford House is the property of Mrs. Smith, of Riversdale, Marwood Hill, the property of Miss Landon and Mrs. Goodban, is at present occupied by William C. Ernest Arthur esq. J.P. Lee House, Prieford Barton and Town Ridden are now the property of George Brown esq. R. borough. The Earl of Devon and the representatives of the Cutcliffe family are lords of the manor; Charles Chichester esq. of Hall, Barnstaple, Major John Stafford Goldie Harding, of Sandgate, Kent, Miss Arundell Yeo, of Fremington House, William Smith esq. John Brady esq. Miss Crang, Mrs. Bates and Mrs. Jury are landowners. The soil is very rich and loamy; subsoil, slate and old red sandstone. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and turnips. The area is 5,374 acres; rateable value, £4,990; the population in 1901 was 686.

MUDDIFORD, 1 mile north-east, partly in this parish and partly in Sherwell parish; GUINEAFORD, a quarter of a mile north-west; MIDDLE MARWOOD, 1 mile north-west; KING'S HEANTON, three-quarters of a mile east, MILLTOWN, 1½ miles north-east, and PRIFORD, ½ mile south, are hamlets.

MARYCHURCH, see St. Mary Church.

MARYSTOWE (or Marystow) is a scattered parish, near the river Lyd, 1 mile west-by-south from Coryton station on the Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, 7 north-west from Tavistock and 8 east from Launceston, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred and petty sessional division, Tavistock union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary, originally built by Juhel de Totnais, and afterwards belonging to Plympton priory, is an edifice in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, and consists of chancel, nave of six bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with angle buttresses and pinnacles, containing 6 bells, all recast out of the previous peal of 5, by Taylor, of Oxford, in 1829: there are some remains of oak screen work, and in the chancel are two Decorated stone sedilia: in the centre of the east end of the aisle, which was widened specially for its erection, stands the huge monument of Sir Thomas Wise K.B. ob. 1627, Margaret (Stafford) his wife, and the younger members of his family; it consists of an altar tomb, with recumbent effigies, mutilated and carelessly repaired, over which rises a ponderous canopy, upheld by eight columns of the Corinthian order; on one side are the figures of a boy and girl kneeling at a desk, and on a kind of ledge round the tomb are figures of other children: in the chancel is a slab inscribed to the Rev. Edward Tuke, vicar and prebendary of Exeter, ob. 1613: the south porch has a Norman doorway, and there is a font of the same date with a circular basin, formed within a square block of stone, surrounded by an arcade of intersecting arches relieved by grotesque heads at the angles: in 1729, October 17th, a portion of the tower and all the pinnacles were thrown down by a violent storm; these, after having lain some time in the vicarage garden, were replaced in 1829: the fabric was much altered in the 14th and 16th centuries; it has been restored by the patron, and in 1889 the tower was new-roofed and the bells rehung at a cost of £130; the church affords 250 sittings: in the churchyard is a lych gate with a stone archway. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1648; marriages and burials, 1654. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Thrushelton annexed, joint net yearly value £240, including 114 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Honorable Mrs. Tremayne, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Henry Borlase Grylls M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. An estate called "Thorne Lands," consisting of a farm house with buildings and 47 acres of land, said to have been left by John de Thorne, or "de Spineto," is let for about £60 a year, this sum being partly applied to the repairs of the church, and the remainder distributed among the poor, who also have £200 yearly from Tremayne's charity, under the will of Mr. Arthur Tremayne, of Sydenham, dated May 24, 1808 (see Coryton). There were originally here two manors, Rad-don (or Ratdone), Allerford and Sydenham, called in the time of the Confessor "Sidraham"; the former being held by Osulf, the Saxon, and the latter by four thanes or nobles, but both manors afterwards became the property of Juhel de Totnais, a Norman baron, who was eventually banished by Rufus and his lands confiscated. The manor of Radford appears to have been subsequently possessed by the Hamptons and next by the Trenchard family, whose heiress conveyed it by marriage in the reign of Edward III. to the Tremaynes, its present owners. Sydenham manor, in the time of Henry III. was held by a family of that name, and after passing through the families of Mauris and Trevage, came eventually, in the reign of Henry IV. to that of Wise, but on the death, in 1675, of Sir Edward Wise, his daughter and heir, having married Edmund Tremayne, of Collacome, in Lamerton parish, this manor was also transferred to the Tremayne family. Sydenham House, the seat of the Hon. Mrs. Tremayne, lady of the manor and sole land-owner, is an interesting old mansion, built in the form of the letter E, and partly in the Elizabethan style; it was erected by Sir Thomas Wise K.B. and over the entrance are the arms of the family, "Sa. 3 chevrons ermine"; during the civil war the house was garrisoned for the king, but was taken by Colonel Holbourne in Jan. 1645, and in consequence of the damage it received was extensively repaired; the rooms are panelled in oak, and the wainscoting in one of these conceals a secret stair, communicating with other apartments and with the upper storey; there is much antique furniture and many family portraits, including the nine daughters of Sir Thomas Wise, Col. Arthur Tremayne and Bridget, his wife, Margaret Chichester, daughter of Sir Edward Chichester, 1st Viscount Chichester, and Arabella (St. John), wife of Sir Edward Wise.

The land is chiefly arable, with some good pasture; the soil is a light loam; subsoil, partly clay, partly slate. The area is 2,913 acres of land and 14 of water; rateable value, £2,491; the population in 1891 was 350.

MARY TAVY (or St. Mary Tavy) is a parish on the road from Tavistock to Okehampton, with a station on the Launceston branch of the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, and is $\frac{3}{4}$ miles north from Tavistock and 264 from London; it is in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred, Tavistock petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Lydford railway station is also in this parish. The church of St. Mary is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, chiefly built in the reign of Henry VI. with additions in 1553 and 1893, and consists of chancel, nave of three bays, transept, south aisle, porch and vestries, and a low embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 5 bells: at the eastern end of the south aisle there appears to have been a chantry chapel, which retains a piscina, and in the jamb of the adjoining window is a niche with bracket, which has been restored and a figure of the Virgin and Child placed within it as a memorial to a daughter of the Rev. H. P. Russell, who died in 1890 aged 9 years: on the south side of the chancel is another piscina: on the north side is an external turret for the staircase once leading to the rood loft: a handsome rood screen, with the usual rood figures, and a parclose of oak were erected in 1893, and there are a number of modern stained windows: in the porch remain the ancient stocks and portions of the old timber roof, and a tablet of encaustic tiles, with a complete list of rectors from 1270: the font is plain, with an octagonal basin: during the restoration some roughly carved grave stones were discovered, with the dates 1691 and 1766; the church was re-seated with open benches and thoroughly restored in 1878-9, at a cost of £1,565, by the Rev. Walter Champenowne M.A. a former rector, and his family: in 1887 an organ and gallery were built, at a cost of £115, and in MEAVY is a parish and village on the river Meavy, a tributary of the Plym, from which it derives its name, and is situated in a picturesque valley, 3 miles south-east from Horrabridge station and $\frac{1}{2}$ south-east from Yelverton Junction, both on the Tavistock and Launceston branch of the South Devon (Great Western) railway, 10 north from Plymouth and 7 south-east from Tavistock, in the Western division of the county, Roborough hundred, Midland Roborough petty sessional division, union and county court district of Tavistock, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter.

The church of St. Peter is an ancient edifice of local stone, with piers, arches and windows of Roborough Down stone, in the Norman, Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, with organ chamber and south chapel or Drake aisle, nave of three bays, south aisle, south transept, south porch and an embattled western tower of the 15th century, with stair-turret and 4 small pinnacles, and containing a clock, placed in 1827, and 6 bells, all recast in 1778 by John Pennington and Co. from a previous peal of 4; one again recast in 1814, and the whole, with the exception of the 5th bell, in 1876:

the north pier of the chancel arch, carved with rams' heads, is a portion of the Norman church: the chancel retains an aumbrey and hagioscope: the south chantry, rebuilt exactly as before, the stones being carefully numbered, has been the mortuary chapel of the Drake family, and here was interred Sir Francis Drake, 3rd bart. and M.P. for Tavistock, ob. 1714; in this chapel is a grey marble tablet with an inscribed brass to Sir Francis Drake, erected by the present baronet in 1896: on the north side of the church are the stairs to the rood loft; the timber roof has bosses at the intersections of the ribs carved with quaint devices: in 1884 a new reredos of marble, alabaster and Caen stone, designed by Mr. J. D. Sedding, architect, was erected as a memorial to the Rev. John Abbott, 41 years rector of this parish: the altar table of carved oak, with its massive slab of polished alabaster, erected in 1896, was the work of Hems and Sons, of Exeter: the screen was existing subsequent to 1840, but there are now no remains: in the porch is a statue, formed by a grotesque head, and stone seats, and over the entrance, on the inside, is an image bracket: the font, of the Decorated period, has an octagonal basin, the sides of which are relieved with shields bearing swords in bend and keys in saltire; built into the exterior wall is a grave-stone, incised with a cross-crosslet: the church was restored in 1873-4 at a cost of £704, when the organ chamber and vestry were added: in 1891 the chancel floor was relaid with marble, and in 1892 carved oak stalls were placed in the chancel, at a further cost of £110: there are now 180 sittings: the churchyard is entered by a lych gate, in front of which stands a venerable and famous oak, traditionally believed to date from the Saxon period; it is 25 feet in circumference, and though now so hollowed out that it is possible to walk through its trunk, the spreading lower branches are still bright with foliage, year by year; under this tree stands the village cross. The earliest registers have been much injured, and part of them re-copied; the earliest date now to be traced is 1654. The preamble of the Act of 1652, ordering the provision of new register books, is preserved in the register, and signed by John Eilford of Sheepstor, J.P. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £164, with 25 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor,

MEETH is a scattered parish and village on the river Torridge, 10 miles west-by-south from Eggesford station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, 3 north from Hatherleigh and 10 north from Okehampton, in the Western division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Hatherleigh petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Torrington, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. A fine stone bridge of 3 arches crosses the Torridge at the southern boundary of the parish. The church of St. Michael is an ancient edifice of stone of mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 4 bells: in the church is a monument to John Lempriere D.D. of Pembroke College, Oxford, author of the well-known Classical Dictionary, and head master of Abingdon school from 1792 to 1810; he was rector of this parish from 1811 and died in London 1st February, 1824; there is also a monument, erected in 1848, to the late Mrs. Lamb, with a group in marble representing the assumption of the deceased: the church was thoroughly renovated in 1893, the pews being lowered and replaced, the chancel lengthened and a vestry added: there are 84 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The and held since 1895 by the Rev. Richard Trezise Tyacke M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. There is a Baptist chapel at Homeavy. Adjoining the church are the remains of an old mansion, once the residence of Sir Francis Drake, who was born near Tavistock about 1545, and died off Nombre de Dios, 28th January, 1596: the house, originally built in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, in the shape of the letter E, is now a farm house. The poor have the interest of £300, left by the late Sir Ralph Lopes bart. The manor anciently belonged to a family of Mew or Meavy, and afterwards, in the 16th century, to the Millatons, from whom it passed by marriage to the Strode family, and later to that of Drake. The Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C. of Maristow, Tamerton Foliot, who is lord of the manor, and Sir F. George Augustus Fuller-Elliott-Drake bart. of Nutwell Court, are the chief landowners. The soil is light, and the subsoil ferruginous. The chief crops are barley, oats and roots, with some wheat. The parish contains 3,410 acres of land and 12 of water; rateable value, £3,502; the population in 1891 was 266.

The hamlet of LOVETON is about three-quarters of a mile south-south-east. HOMEAVY is about 1½ miles west-south-west. GOODAMEAVY is 3 miles south-south-west: its manor formerly belonged to the Pomeroyas, and is now the property of Mrs. Scobell. CALISHAM is a quarter of a mile south-west: this manor, with that of Durance, belongs to the Drake family. GRATTON, 1 mile west: a stone bridge has been erected over the river Mew at Gratton.

BRISWORTHY (a contraction of Britisworthy) is a hamlet 3 miles south-east.

MEMBURY is a parish and scattered village, on the small river Yarty, bounded on the east by the county of Dorset, and is 3½ miles north-west from Axminster station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 5½ south-west from Chard and 9 east from Honiton, in the Eastern division of the county, Axminster hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Dunkeswell and Honiton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The parish is divided into two tithings, north and south. The church of St. John the Baptist is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, 74 feet high, containing 5 bells, one of which bears the arms of Fry; the tower was restored and the bells renovated during the period 1808-1809, at a cost of about £850; the chancel is Early English and retains a piscina; the north wall of the nave appears to be of the Decorated period; in the south aisle is a monument with mutilated inscription and arms to Sir Shilston Calmady kt. who fell in a skirmish near this village 13 Feb. 1645-6: at the east end of the south aisle are several memorials to the Frys of Yarty, including a monument with kneeling effigies to Nicholas Fry and Eleanor (Brett), his wife, ob. 18 March, 1620, and several children: at the north end of the north or St. Catherine's aisle is the stone effigy of a female; there is another monument, with fine marble bust, to Frances, daughter of Robert Fry, of Yarty, d. 18 March, 1718; one to Mary (Napper), wife of John Fry, ob. 1863, and to other members of the family, from 1725 to 1742; the church was restored in 1893 at a cost of about £1,500, and during the progress of the work, a Norman pier was met with near the tower: the stained east window was erected in 1900 as a memorial to the Rev. Francis Tate, vicar of the united parishes of Axminster, Kilminster and Membury, 1855-69, and to Emma, his wife. The register of baptisms and burials dates from , and marriages, 1638; many entries relating to Quakers appear in the register. The living is a parochial chapelry, annexed with Kilminster to the vicarage of Axminster, joint net yearly value £220, and held since 1867 by the Rev. Arthur Newman M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, and surrogate; the Rev. Fredk. Edwd. Whitter Langdon M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, has been curate in charge since 1897. The charities amount to £3 13s. yearly. There are lime and stone quarries here. At Court are the remains of an ancient chapel, now used as a cider cellar; another chapel once existed at Chapel Croft, and was licensed by Bishop Grandison in 1352. A Quakers' burial place is still to be seen at Lee Hill farm. Membury Castle Hill is an ancient Romano-British camp. Yarty, the ancient seat of the Frys till 1718, and about a mile west, is now a farm; it originally belonged to the de Yartie family, whose heiress conveyed it to the Frys in marriage; the original mansion was destroyed by fire about 1870. Thomas Wakley, founder of "The Lancet," in 1823, M.P. for Finsbury, 1835-52, and who died at Madeira in 1862, was born at Land, in this parish, in 1795. Oxenway Lodge is the residence of Robert Manning Davy esq. J.P. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who are lords of the manor, and B. M. Davy esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is clay, marl, foxmole, clay and chalk; the subsoil is marl and gravel. The chief crops are corn. The area is 4,385 acres of land and 9 of water; rateable value, £5,180; the population in 1891 was 645.

CROWLEY, a hamlet, has been taken from Chardstock under the provisions of the Divided Parishes Act, by Local Government Board Order 15,947, and added to this parish, March 24, 1884. It is 3½ miles north from the church.

By Local Government Board Order 15,948, Birch Oak Tything was transferred from this parish to Yacombe, March 24, 1884.

FURLEY is a small hamlet 1 mile north from the church.

LONGBRIDGE hamlet is 2 miles north from the church.

MERTON is a parish and village, on the river Torridge, 7 miles south-east from Torrington terminal station of a branch of the London and South Western railway, in the Northern division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Torrington petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Torrington, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south transept, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, of which the fourth dates from 1669, the tenor from 1752; the first and fifth were cast by Warner, of London, in 1883; the second is inscribed "Plebs omnis plaudit ut me tam sepius audit"; weight of tenor 10 cwt.: the church retains an ancient register chest, and has five stained windows, one of which is a memorial: the northeast window, a work of early date, was restored and filled with stained glass in 1847: in the north aisle is a memorial window to the rector's daughter: the church was restored in 1875 at a cost of £1,951, under the direction of Mr. R. Medley Fulford, architect, the Speccott aisle being rebuilt at the cost of J. C. Moore-Stevens esq. the chancel by the late rector, and the remainder of the church by Lord Clinton and others; the screens and fittings being the work of Hems, of Exeter: in 1895 a new organ, the gift of parishioners and friends, was erected as a memorial to the late Rev. James Cory Kempe M.A. for over 40 years rector of this parish: there are 310 sittings. In 1892 a lych gate was erected at the eastern entrance to the church. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1687; marriages, 1688. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £273, with residence and 63 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lord Clinton, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Frederic Robinson M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford, hon. chaplain to Sir Massey Lopes bart. Here is a Bible Christian chapel. There are charities of 5s. yearly value, left in 1727 by Thomas Langdon, who also left £1 for the rector for preaching a sermon on the anniversary of his death, Sept. 5th. Here is an Industrial Home for 25 orphan girls, supported by Lady Clinton. The Victoria saw mill, erected in 1887, is driven by water-power from a large ornamental lake of 3 acres, the property of Lord Clinton. Lord Clinton, Lord-Lieut. of the county, is lord of the manor and owner of the whole parish, with the exception of Great Potheridge, which belongs to the Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle, and Speccott, which is the property of John Curzon Moore-Stevens esq. of Winscott. The soil is dun; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The MILTON ABBOT, so called from its connection with the abbey of Tavistock, is a village and parish, on the high road from Tavistock to Launceston, and watered by the river Tamar; it is 3½ miles south-west from Coryton station on the Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, 6 north-west from Tavistock, 7½ south-east from Launceston, in the Western division of the county, Tavistock hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Edgcombe, in this parish, gives the title of baron to the Edgcombe family, Earls of Mount-Edgcombe. The church of St. Constantine, erected about 1460, in the Perpendicular style, consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, two south porches and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, all re-cast by John Pennington and Co. in 1769: attached to the north wall of the nave is a turret containing the staircase, still perfect, which formerly led to the roodarea is 4,046 acres of land and 43 of water; rateable value, £2,937; the population in 1901 was 507.

GREAT POTHERIDGE was the birthplace (December 6th, 1608) of General Monk, afterwards Duke of Albemarle, who is said to have been baptised at Landcross, near Bideford. He died January 3rd, 1670, and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

loft: the timber roof is relieved with foliated bosses, and there is an octagonal font, ornamented with quatre-foiled panels and shields: the east window is stained, and there is a memorial window, erected by the Rev. Samuel Lane, sometime vicar of Holne, from 1827, to his wife, daughter of Dr. Robert Jago, a former vicar; there is another to Dr. Jago himself, and two others, placed by the Rev. Sir St. Vincent Love Hammick bart. vicar 1836-88, who died in 1888, to his father-in-law, Robert Alexander esq. his son Albert Hammick, and to his father, Sir Stephen Love Hammick bart. d. 15 June, 1867: there are also memorials to the Edgcombe family, 1589-1781, and to that of Doidge, 1584-1717: the church was thoroughly restored in 1860, at a cost of £1,500, and has 300 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1653; marriages, 1654. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £400, including 80 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Duke of Bedford, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Harry Martin Petty M.A.

of Hatfield Hall, Durham. The Duke of Bedford is owner of the great tithes, valued at £374. Here are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels, and there is also a Bible Christian chapel at Chillaton. There is a Working Men's Reading Room and a parish library of 300 volumes. A fair is held here on the last Tuesday in July. The charity called "Jewell's trust" consists of dividends arising from £567 stock, left by will, dated 7 Jan. 1783, by Nicholas Jewell, of Stoke Climsland, mason, and has a yearly value of about £16 10s.; of this two-thirds belong to Stoke Climsland, Cornwall, and the other third to Milton, and is applied to the support of a clothing club for the poor. This place, in the latter part of the 16th century, was the residence of several families named Rundle, of whom was Thomas Rundle LL.B. born here in 1686, prebendary of Salisbury, archdeacon of Wilts and Bishop of Derry, 1734-43; he died 15th April, 1743. The manor, as part of the possessions of the dissolved abbey of Tavistock, was granted to Sir John Russell, Baron Russell of Chenies, and subsequently Earl of Bedford K.G. 4th July, 1539. Endsleigh, a picturesque gabled building on the Cornish border, in the Anglo-Swiss style, erected by John, 6th Duke of Bedford, in 1810, from designs by Sir Jeffrey Wyattville, is surrounded by extensive and enchanting grounds of nearly 3,500 acres, through which flows the river Tamar, and is a residence of his Grace the Duke of Bedford, who is lord of the manor: in one of the gables is a figure of the last abbot of Tavistock. The Duke of Bedford, William Henry Chichester esq. of Grensfen, Tavistock, John Carpenter-Garnier esq. of Bookesbury Park, Fareham, Hants, Mrs. Wood, of Brentwood, Essex, the Hon.

MILTON DAMEREL is a parish and village on the Waldon high road from North Devon to Plymouth, and on the river Torridge, across which are two bridges, one, of two arches, connecting the parish with Newton St. Petrock, and the other, of one arch, with Shebbear; it is 6 miles north-east from Holsworthy station of a branch of the London and South Western railway and 12 south-south-west from Bideford, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Holsworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of the Holy Trinity is an ancient building in the Norman and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisle, transept and south porch: the tower fell in 1879, but in 1892 was partly re-erected; the three bells remain unhung; the first is dated 1758, the tenor 1658, the second is undated: the spiral stair to the rood-loft remains, and some fragments of the screen are incorporated in the altar table: there are 250 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1791; from 1749 to 1791 these are entered in the Cookbury register; the marriages date from 1754. The living is a rectory, with the vicarage of Cookbury annexed, joint net yearly value £385, including 136 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1898

SOUTH MILTON is a parish and village in a deep valley, about $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Kingsbridge station on the Great Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Stanborough, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, union and county court district of Kingsbridge, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells: the chancel retains a piscina, and there is another in the south transept and a stoup at the south doorway: the font, said to be Saxon, has a conical carved wood cover, and there is an oak screen, carved and painted, and fairly perfect: in 1885 the church, including the south transept, was substantially restored and reseated, and the latter new roofed, at a cost of £1,700: the steps formerly leading from the north aisle to the rood-loft have been opened, and an old painting, for many years used as an altar piece, has been removed from the chancel to another part of the church: there are mural tablets to members of the Prideaux and Elliot families: the church affords 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1689. The living is a perpetual curacy, formerly annexed to the vicarage of West Alvington, but made a separate living under an Order in Council dated June 7, 1886, net yearly value £150, with $2\frac{1}{2}$ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury, and held since 1802 by the Rev. William Henry Wilkinson M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1882, at a cost of about £300, is a building of stone, and will seat 150 persons. The charities amount to about £45 annually, and are applied for repairs of the church and relief of the poor. Horswell House, a large and elegant mansion, the property of William Roope Ilbert esq. J.P. has been unoccupied for some years. Captain Dowglass, who is lord of the manor of South Milton, W. R. Ilbert esq. of Bowringsleigh, Mrs. William Square, of Plymouth, and John Elliot esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 1,545 acres of land, 5 of water and 15 of foreshore; rateable value, £2,079; the population in 1901 was 287.

MODBURY is a small but important market town and large parish, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Ermington, petty sessional division of Ermington and Plympton, union and county court district of Kingsbridge, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The town is built on the slopes of a rivulet which runs into the river Erme, and consists of four streets, intersecting at right angles; it is 5 miles south-east from Ivybridge station and 6 south-west from Kingsbridge Road station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 12 south-east from Plymouth and $7\frac{1}{2}$ north-west from Kingsbridge, is supplied with water by conduits from several springs, and has been lighted with gas since 1865. The church of St. George stands on an eminence, and is a fine embattled structure in the Gothic style of the 13th and 14th centuries, consisting of chancel and nave, with aisles to both, transepts, south porch and a tower, re-erected in 1622, with spire 134 feet in height, and containing a clock and 6 bells: in the south transept are two recessed canopied arches, in one of which is placed the recumbent effigy of a knight in plate armour, possibly representing Sir John Champernowne, c. 1488; within the other arch lies the mutilated effigy of a crusading knight: in the north aisle is another canopied recess of more elaborate character, containing the effigy of a lady in flowing robes, c. 1250-1310, and fragments of the effigy of another crusader; these earlier figures are assumed to represent members of the Okeston family, once the possessors of this place, or of the Prideaux family: at the back of this recess, restored by Mr. Prideaux-Brune, of Prideaux Place, Cornwall, is a quatrefoil window, which has been filled with the arms of the Prideaux family in stained glass: in the south aisle is a memorial window to the Ven. Archdeacon Froude:

the east window is a memorial to the Rev. Nutcombe Oxenham, late vicar: in 1858 the interior was restored and reseated and a new reredos erected, and in 1873 a new organ was erected: there are 550 sittings. The register dates from the year 1601. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £261, including 9 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Eton College, and held since 1859 by the Rev. George Clark Green M.A. King's College, Cambridge. The inappropriate tithe rent-charge of the parish of Modbury, payable to Eton College, is £788 8s. Near the church once stood the ancient priory of Modbury, founded by the Champernowne family as a cell to the Abbey of St. Pierre Sur Dives, in Normandy, and dedicated to St. Gregory; the revenues at the dissolution were estimated at £70. Of the mansion of the ancient family of Champernowne, small portions still exist. Here are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The Literary and Scientific Institute, in Brownston street, founded by Richard King in 1840, is a building of stone, with Doric columns and portico, and has a good sized lecture-room. The cattle market is held the second Monday in every month, and is largely attended. The stock fair is on the 4th of May (old St. George's Day). The early closing day is on Thursday. Woollen serge was formerly manufactured here, but the trade is wholly discontinued; agricultural pursuits now form the chief employment of the inhabitants. A subscription pack of harriers is kept in the village. Here, in Feb. 1642-43, Sir Ralph Hopton and Sir Nicholas Slanning, with a force of about 2,000 men, were attacked and defeated by a body of Parliamentary troops from Plymouth, under Col. Ruthven, and a number of the leaders captured. Whymptstone is the residence of Nicholas William Prettejohn Pitts esq. J.P. Claude Crispin esq. is lord of the borough and manor of Great Modbury; Henry Bingham Mildmay esq. of Flete, Ivybridge, is lord of the manor of Orchardton, the Manor House of which was the ancient seat of the Prideaux family. H. Bingham Mildmay esq. Nicholas William P. Pitts esq. John Andrews esq. Admiral George Parker, of Delamore, Ivybridge, Claude Crispin esq. and Eton College are the principal landowners. The soil is a rich loam, occupied as arable, orchard, pasture and woodland; subsoil, various. The area is 5,869 acres of land, 5 of water, 16 of tidal water and 49 of foreshore; rateable value, £9,018; the population in 1891 was 1,406 in the civil and 1,474 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order, 16,313, a detached part of Kingston, near Strayland Green, was added to this parish; and Penquit, Caton and Ludbrook House transferred from this parish to Ermington, March 24, 1884, for civil purposes.

Parish Clerk, William Shephard.

BROWNSTON is a hamlet, 3 miles north-east. St. John's chapel of ease, erected in 1844, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, and has a gift of £20 yearly from Eton College, the patrons of the mother church: in 1870 the late John Andrews also left £15 yearly to the curate.

LEIGH, 2 miles east-by-north, is also a hamlet in this parish.

MOLLAND is a parish and village bounded on the south by the river Yeo, with a station called Bishops-nympton and Molland, 2 miles south-west from the village, on the Somerset and Devon branch of the Great Western railway, and is 7 miles north-east from South Molton, and 193 from London, in the Northern division of the county, South Molton hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 4 bells: in 1894 memorial windows were erected to William Rossiter esq. and his wife, of South Molton: in the church is a memorial to the Rev. D. Berry B.D. some time vicar of this parish and Knowstone, who was persecuted for his attachment to the cause of Charles I. and died in 1683, aged 45: there are also several interesting monuments to the Courtenay family: the church affords 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1541. The living is a vicarage, united with that of Knowstone, joint net yearly value £420, with 54 acres of glebe, in the gift of Sir N. W. G. Throckmorton bart. and held since 1853 by the Rev. John Matthews B.A. of Exeter College, Oxford and prebendary of Exeter, who resides at Knowstone. Here are meeting rooms for Wesleyans, Bible Christians and the Brethren. There are two mines in this parish, recently worked for iron, manganese and copper, but now (1901) closed. There is a charity of £27 a year, £4 of which is for the education of eight poor children, left by Thomas Clarke in 1776, who also bequeathed the impropriate tithes of the parish, commuted at £100 yearly, to establish a lectureship; this sum is now assigned to augment the salary of the resident curate. West Molland House, about a mile from the village, is a fine old mansion, long the seat of the Courtenay family, but now occupied as a farm by John Herbert Turner: over the entrance is a shield of arms with the following inscription:—"This is the Armes of Hugh Courtenay, sometimes Earl of Devon, who was Grandfather unto Sir Philip Courtenay of Molland, knight"; Sir Nicholas William George Throckmorton bart. of Buckland, Faringdon, Berks, is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is variable, clay being in the south of the parish only; subsoil, old red sandstone and skillett. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area is 6,260 acres; rateable value, £3,004; the population in 1901 was 397. Sexton, William Bede.

NORTH MOLTON is a parish and long straggling village, seated on the side of a hill on the borders of Exmoor and on the river Mole, from which it derives its name, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east from South Molton station on the Devon and Somerset branch of the Great Western railway and 12 east from Barnstaple, in the Northern division of the county, South Molton hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. This parish is the second largest in Devon. The church of All Saints, standing on an eminence, is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with chapels, clerestoried nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower 100 feet high, with pinnacles, and containing a clock and 6 bells: there is a carved oak screen and a fine font of Perpendicular date with an octagonal basin, richly arcaded, on a shaft adorned with canopied niches containing effigies: the pulpit is of oak, elaborately carved with figures of saints: on the south side of the tower, under a canopy, is a large figure of the Virgin and Child: the east window is stained: in the south aisle is a memorial window to William Davy: and in 1804 another was placed to the late Rev. William Burdett, formerly vicar here: in the south-chapel is an altar-tomb of alabaster to Sir Amias Bampfylde, erected in 1626 by John Bampfylde, his son, with effigies of himself, his dame, 12 sons and 5 daughters, and a long genealogical inscription in Latin: during the period 1876-83 the galleries were removed, the organ placed in the north chancel chapel and a warming apparatus put in, at a cost of over £100: the church was restored in 1886-90 at a cost of £730, but the arcades are still much out of the perpendicular: a lych gate was erected in 1901 by A. F. Ferrell Shapland esq. to his parents, from designs by Mr. Jaems Crocker F.R.I.B.A. of Exeter, at a cost of about £200; the walls are of local stone with granite intermixed, the wood of oak and the roof of tiles; on a bronze plate is an inscription:—"To the loving memory of John Terrell Shapland and Charlotte Shapland": there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a vicarage, with that of Twitchen annexed, joint net yearly value £229, including 36 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Lord Poltmore, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Thomas Woodman Theol. Assoc. of King's College, London, and hon. canon of Bloemfontein Cathedral. The impropriate tithes are commuted at £1,293 for North Molton and £211 for Twitchen, and there is an impropriate glebe of $6\frac{1}{2}$ acres. There is a Wesleyan chapel in the village, built in 1891, and another at Heasley; a Church of England service is held in the Board school room at Heasley on Sundays, at 3 p.m. A social club, established in 1881 for the benefit of residents, comprises reading and recreation rooms supplied with daily and weekly papers, and a billiard table. There is also a Provident club and Clothing and Girls' Friendly societies. The parochial library contains over 100 volumes. In the parish are several mines, at one time worked for copper, iron, silver, lead and gold, traces of which were met with about 1840. This parish has long been celebrated for its breed of North Devon cattle. A cattle fair is held on the first Wednesday after May 12th and the last Wednesday in October. There are almshouses for six poor people, founded by Mr. Parker, and various bequests for the benefit of the poor, amounting to £20 yearly. In 1864 the Dowager Lady Poltmore bequeathed the sum of £500, less legacy duty, to the poor of the parish. In 1893 the late Mrs. Maria Langdon bequeathed £100 to the vicar and churchwardens, the interest of which was to be given to the poor, and in the same year Mr. Lane, of Highgate, London, gave £500, the interest to be also given to the poor. There are also houses and land in the hands of feoffees for the repair of the church; new feoffees were appointed in 1893. Court Hall is the seat of the Rt. Hon. Lord Poltmore P.O., D.L., J.P. lord of the manor and chief landowner. Court House, also belonging to Lord Poltmore, is now occupied as a farmhouse. Sannacott is the property of Thomas Rew esq. J.P. Sir W. W. Karslake K.O. of 8 Curzon street, London W. and Sir Charles Thomas Dyke-Acland bart. of Killerton, are also landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, skillett. The chief crops are barley and oats. The area is 15,032 acres of land and 14 of water; rateable value, £10,986; the population in 1901 was 1,080.

Under the provisions of the "Divided Parishes Act, 1882," East Yard and West Yard farms have been transferred from Highbray, in Barnstaple union, and by Local Government Board Order 16,348, that of part of Exmoor, in the county of Devon, added to this parish, March 24, 1884.

FLITTON, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-west; FYLDON, $3\frac{1}{2}$ north; HEASLEY, 2 north; UPCOTT, 1 east; WALSCOTT, 3 north-west; HUNSTON, $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-west, and BENTWITCHEN, 4 miles north, are hamlets of this parish.

SOUTH MOLTON.

SOUTH MOLTON is an ancient market town, municipal borough, parish, head of a petty sessional division, union and county court district, with a station one mile north of the town on the Devon and Somerset branch of the Great Western railway, and is at the junction of the roads from Bampton, Tiverton and Crediton to Barnstaple; 12 miles south-east from Barnstaple, 18 north-west from Tiverton, 20 north-west from Crediton, 27 north-north-west from the city of Exeter, 35 west from Taunton and 197 from London by railway, via Exeter, while the distance by road from London is only 182 miles; it is in the Northern division of the county, hundred and rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter.

The town is recorded as a borough as early as 1301; Queen Elizabeth granted it a charter in 1590, which was confirmed and enlarged by Charles II. whose charter remained in force until the passing of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835 (5 and 6 William IV. c. 76), and the Corporation now consists of sixteen members, viz.:—a mayor, four aldermen and twelve common councilmen. The borough has a commission of the peace and separate court of quarter sessions, and petty sessions are held here for the South Molton division.

South Molton derives its name from the river Mole, on the western bank of which it is situated: this considerable stream is utilised to propel the machinery of the shirt and collar factory in the town, and of the great number of corn mills on its banks, connected here by a substantial bridge of one arch, built in place of one destroyed by a storm in October, 1841; the stream eventually falls into the river Taw, about 8 miles from the town. Broad street, East street, South street and West street are the principal thoroughfares. It is well lighted with gas, from works purchased by the Corporation in 1896, for £3,300, and was completely drained in 1868, and in 1869 the council of the borough established a water supply at a cost of £6,000, one half of the amount being given from the Corporate funds: the reservoir is at Holywell, in North Molton parish, near Exmoor, 5 miles north of the town, and the water obtained is remarkably pure; the filter beds were given by the late Alderman Smyth.

The Devon and Somerset branch of the Great Western railway, 42½ miles in length, from Taunton to Barnstaple, passes through the parish: a viaduct, nearly a quarter of a mile in length and 100 feet high, carries it over the river Bray in Castle Hill park. The Municipal Charity Trustees have improved and widened the road leading from the town to the station, a sum of £750 having been expended for that purpose.

The church of St. Mary Magdalene is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, enlarged in 1829 and restored and repaired in the year 1865, at a cost of £3,300, when it was re-roofed and re-seated: it now consists of chancel with aisles, nave, aisles, shallow south transept, south porch, and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 8 bells; there are ten stained windows, some good monuments and a very fine carved stone pulpit: the north aisle of the chancel retains two piscinæ: a new organ was erected in 1900, choir stalls added, and the chancel paved with marble, at a total cost of £1,139: there are 1,060 sittings. The register dates from the year 1601. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £270, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Frederick King M.A. Trinity College, Cambridge, chaplain to S. Molton union, and surrogate. The inappropriate tithes, commuted at £910, are vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and there is also a considerable glebe, the freehold of which has been bought by the Town Council.

The Congregational chapel was erected in 1834, on the site of the old church of 1700. There are 450 sittings.

The Wesleyan Methodist chapel, at the top of Duke street, erected in 1882-3 at a cost of £1,800, on the site of the old chapel built in 1821, is a building of stone, with dressings of Hambdon and Doulton stone, in the Florid Gothic style, and has sittings for 350 persons; in the rear of the chapel are schoolrooms.

The Baptist chapel is of stone, and affords sittings for 250 persons; the Mission hall, formerly a Primitive Methodist chapel, built in 1889, has 300 sittings; there is also a Bible Christian chapel, seating 180 persons, and a chapel for the Brethren, holding about 200 persons.

The Cemetery, in Mill street, opened in 1856, and since enlarged, covers an area of nearly four acres; there are two chapels, and a lodge for the keeper was built in 1882; it is under the control of a burial board of nine members.

The Guildhall is a building of Portland stone in the Italian style, and includes a turret containing a clock with three dials; the Council chamber is built on arches, projecting into the street.

The municipal insignia include two maces, a mayor's chain and badge, a staff of office and a common seal. The maces, of silver gilt, and 2 feet 4 inches long, form a pair, and are similar in every respect; the shafts are divided into two parts by an ornamental knob, and the bases are enriched with leaf-work, the heads are ornamented with the national emblems and crowns and mitres, boldly executed, and have a cresting of crosses and fleure-de-lis, from which rise arched crowns, with the usual orb and cross; the mayor's chain consists of plain gold links; the badge is a gold medallion, bearing a portrait of Hugh Squier, merchant, of London, a great benefactor to the town; the staff of office, 6 feet 8 inches long, is of wood, and has a mitre-shaped silver head with the representation of a fleece surmounted by a royal crown; the borough seal, of silver, also exhibits a fleece, with a crown in chief and a mitre in base; around is a legend and the date 1716; the mayor wears a robe of scarlet and fur.

The Working Men's Reading Room, instituted by the daughters of the late Alderman Smyth, is governed by a committee of members and is supported by members' fees and voluntary contributions.

The Market-house was erected in 1863. The market days are Thursday and Saturday.

Cattle markets are held the first Thursday in every month. Fairs are held on the third Wednesday in June and the Wednesday after August 25th.

The early closing day is on Wednesday, at 3 p.m.

The Assembly Rooms, which occupy the upper storey of the New Market, are elegant and spacious, and will hold 400 persons; they are used for concerts, entertainments and public meetings, for which they are exceedingly well adapted.

There is a sawing mill near the Railway station; a shirt collar and blouse factory, a tannery and leather dressing establishment, in East street, coach building works, and the agricultural implement and engineering works of the Star Agricultural Engineering Co. Limited.

The South Molton Race Meeting, over the Kingsland course, is held on the Thursday after the old fair in August. The Kennels of the South Molton Subscription Harriers are situated here.

The County Police Station in South street, is a fine building, with spacious offices, and quarters for sergeants and constables, and was erected in 1894 at a cost of about £2,500.

The South Molton Municipal charities are under the control of the Municipal Charity Trustees, and include the Whittle, Gibbon, Bawden, and other gifts, consisting together of £764 os. 7d. Consols, producing an income of £21 os. 2d. which is distributed in money to the poor at Candlemas and Christmas yearly. The Acland, Webber, Palmer, Courtney, Brown, and other gifts, consisting unitedly of £273 5s. 5d. Consols and certain annuities, producing an income of £14 1s. 10d. are distributed to the poor in 42 twopenny loaves at the church after morning service on Sundays during the winter half of the year, and 13 twopenny-halfpenny loaves weekly during the year. Nott Hole and Palmer's gift of £53 15s. 11d. in Consols, producing £1 9s. 4d. yearly, is periodically distributed in money to such poor persons of the town and parish as are not in receipt of parochial relief. Harewood's gift of £164 10s. in Consols, producing £4 10s. 5d. yearly, is distributed to the poor. Rashleigh's gift consisted up to 1890 of one moiety of a freehold estate, called "Snapdown," in Warkleigh, Devon, let at the rent of about £41, but in that year a moiety of the estate was sold by public auction, and realised the sum of £305, which sum, together with £61 7s. 7d. being a moiety of the proceeds of the sale of timber sold from Snapdown Farm in 1896, and a sum of £193 15s. a moiety of the amounts received from the insurance company in respect of three fires at Snapdown Farm buildings, made together a sum of £560 2s. 7d. which has been invested by the Charity Trustees in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in the purchase of £166 16s. Bank of England stock, yielding an annual income of £17 8s. and the dividends arising from £761 1s. 11d. Consols, the yearly income amounting to £20 18s. which, pursuant to an order of the Charity Commissioners, obtained in 1882, is applied either to the payment of the tuition fees of a limited number of children at the South Molton United Schools, or to the payment of exhibitions, called "The Rashleigh Exhibitions," of such yearly value as shall from time to time be determined by the Charity Trustees, tenable either at the said schools or at any place of education higher than elementary, or of technical, professional, or industrial instruction, approved by the trustees. Hugh Squier's gift consisted up to Michaelmas, 1882, of a moiety of the clear surplus income arising from the rectory of Northam and freehold estate in the parish of Swimbridge, producing an income of £220 a year, but the lease of the rectory having expired, the income now consists of a moiety of the surplus income of the freehold estate called Upcott in Swimbridge, Devon, and the dividends of a sum of £2315 6s. 8d. Consols, which sum is made up of accumulations of income by the trustees; the yearly income, now (1901) amounting to £63 13s. 5d. pursuant to an order of the Charity Commissioners, obtained in Jan. 1893, is applicable to the maintenance and repairs of the highways, streets, bridges, foot and causeways, in South Molton, or in making grants of a moderate amount in aid of the cost of any suitable public works in the town. John Vanner, late of South Molton, china dealer, by his will, dated 14th January, 1889, gave to the Charity Trustees £10, but without any directions as to how the same, or the income thereof should be applied: the whole sum (less duty) was invested on deposit receipt in the South Molton branch of the National Provincial Bank of England, the amount so invested, with the accumulations, amounting together to £10 13s. 6d. was in 1898 applied towards the cost of re-pointing the church tower. The Blue Coat Schools, up to a few years ago, were possessed of £2,465 and £900 Consols, which sums, with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, were amalgamated with the funds of the South Molton United Schools. (See under Schools).

The manor of South Molton was formerly part of the demesnes of Edward the Confessor; and Risdon informs us it was held by William Lord Martyn, on condition of his providing a man with a bow and three arrows to attend Hugh (Audley) Earl of Gloucester when hunting in the neighbourhood: it was subsequently held by Lord Audley; on the death of his male heir, in the reign of Richard II. it reverted to the Crown, "since when," says Risdon, "the burgesses have bought the borough, which has a mayor for its chief magistrate."

The Recreation Ground, near the Barnstaple road, contains over 5 acres.

The area is 5,806 acres of land and 34 of water; rateable value, £13,057; the population in 1891 was 3,126, and in 1901, 2,848, including 77 officers and inmates in the workhouse.

CLAPPERY MILL (or Clapworthy Mill) is 3 miles south, partly in this parish and partly in Chittlehampton. The chapel of ease here is a building of stone, consisting of nave, south porch and western turret containing one bell, and has roof sittings; it is served by the vicar of Chittlehampton.

Close to Honiton Barton farm house are the ruins of a chapel, erected in 1730 and dedicated to the Holy Trinity.

The detached portion of the borough lying 1½ miles south was made a civil parish March 8th, 1900, and called QUEENSNYMPTON, and is given under a separate heading.

MONKLEIGH is a parish and village on the high road from Bideford to Holsworthy, 2 miles north-west from Torrington terminal station of a branch of the London and South Western railway, and 4 south from Bideford, in the North Western division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Bideford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Hartland, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. George is an ancient building of stone of Perpendicular character, restored in 1862, and consists of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch, and an embattled western tower 70 feet in height, containing 6 bells, dated (2) 1711; tenor, 1734; (1) 1771; and (4) 1833; the third is inscribed in Old English characters:—"Misteriis sacris repleat nos d'ca Johannis;" weight of tenor 9 cwt.; in the Annery (or south) aisle is a canopied altar-tomb with a cusped arch and rich cornice; the upper slab bears matrices of brasses supposed to commemorate Sir William Hankford K.B. Chief Justice of the King's Bench from 1274 to 1222: in the north wall of the chancel is a brass effigy of a man in armour kneeling, formerly placed on a high tomb, now removed, and commemorating James Coffin esq. ob. Dec. 15, 1566: on a flat stone in the south aisle is a brass scroll, held by two angels, with inscription to Jas. Seyntleger esq. ob.

Feb. 8, 1509, and below a shield with St. Ledger impaling Boteler: some of the windows are stained: the Annery aisle also contains some finely-carved bench ends and portions of screen work of the 16th century, displaying the arms of St. Ledger, Butler Rochford, Hankford, Stapledon, Knyvett, Clifton and other families, as well as the emblems of the Passion and various heraldic badges; some new parclose screens have been erected: in the north or Venton aisle is a monument of marble, with effigies incised on slate of a man and his two wives kneeling facing each other at a desk, and behind them 6 children, and below an inscription to Henry Harding esq. of Long Breedy, Dorset, bur. Feb. 28, 1627, Gertrude (Bamfylde) his first wife, and Eliza (Snowe) his second wife: here also is a memorial, with incised figures, to Jane (Coffyn) wife of Hugh Prust, gent. and her infant, ob. 1646: near this is a monument with demi-effigies to William Gaye, of Hedd, ob. 1651, and Elizabeth (Coffyn) his wife: there are 200 sittings: in the churchyard are memorials to Rowland Denis, ob. 1685, and Richard Dennis, ob. 1783. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1567; marriages and burials, 1548. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £170, including 52 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1899 by the Rev. Louis Coutier Biggs M.A. of St. Edmund

Hall, Oxford. There is a Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapel. Annery House, the seat of Mrs. Somes, stands in a finely undulating park, richly timbered, and forms a striking object from the road leading from Bideford to Torrington; it was formerly the residence of Chief Justice Hankford, whose death (Dec. 20, 1422) is said to have been caused by his own gamekeeper, whom he had disturbed on a dark night, after issuing strict injunctions to him to shoot anyone who should not reply when accosted. Petticombe, the property of Capt. A. J. Saltren-Willett, is at present (1901) unoccupied; Mrs. Pine-Coffin, of Portledge, who is lady of the manor, Captain A. J. Saltren-Willett, and Mrs. Somes are the chief landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are cereals. The area is 2,163 acres of land, 8 of water, 9 of tidal water, and 2 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,849; the population in 1891 was 429.

MONKOKEHAMPTON is a parish and pleasant village to the east of the river Okement. 9 miles south-west from Eggesford station on the North Devon branch and about 7 north-west from Sampford Courtyard on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 3 east-by-north from Hatherleigh and 8 north from Okehampton, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Hatherleigh petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, vestry, south porch, and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 4 bells: in the church is a memorial to Mr. Robert Rolfe, d. 1735: the east window, shown in the Great Exhibition of 1851, was presented by the late Earl of Idlesleigh, and there are several others, including a memorial window to Mrs. Ruse, wife of a former rector, and one presented by Dr. Merriman, head master of Surrey County School, Cranley, near Guildford, in memory of William Northcote, nephew of the late Earl of Idlesleigh: the oak reredos, designed by Mr. R. Medley Falford, architect, and executed by Mr. Harry Hems, of Exeter, was presented by the first Earl of Idlesleigh in memory of his brother, the Rev. Moubay Northcote, a former rector: with the exception of the tower the whole church was rebuilt in 1855: there are 120 sittings. The churchyard is entered by a handsome lych-gate, erected in 1863 by the Rev. Moubay Northcote in memory of his children. The register dates from the year 1053.

MORCHARD BISHOP is a large parish and village on the old road from Exeter to Barnstaple, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east from Morchard Road station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, 7 south-east from Chulmleigh, 7 north-west from Crediton, 15 north-west from Exeter, 14 west-by-south from Tiverton, in the Northern division of the county, Crediton hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Cadbury and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch, and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 6 bells: in the south aisle are two mutilated recumbent effigies in freestone of a civilian and his wife of the 16th century, assumed to represent Sir John Eyston, of Eyston, or Easton in this parish, and Margaret (Arundel) his wife, there is also a monument, with arms, to Gabriel Greene gent. ob. Nov. 2, 1685, and Dorothy his wife, ob. 10 April, 1660, and some remains of oak screens also exist: the church was restored in 1889 at a cost of £1,928, and now affords 260 sittings. The register dates from the year 1660. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £654, including 178½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. R. Bartholomew, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Herbert Springett Watkins B.A. of Durham University. Here are Congregational and Bible Christian chapels. There are charities of £60 yearly value; and in addition one of £10 a year, left in 1733 by Mrs. Thomasine Tucker, for the education and clothing of eight girls and boys. A small charity payable out of the Rudge estate was revived in 1887 by William Henry Kelland esq. as a memorial to his mother, the maternal granddaughter of the late P. Kelland, of Rudge and Bowerthly in Lapford.

MOREBATH is a small village and parish on the Somersetshire border, and on the road from Bampton to Minehead, with a station on the Devon and Somerset branch of the Great Western railway, 18½ miles from London, and is 2 miles north from Bampton and 9 north from Tiverton, in the North Eastern division of the county, Bampton hundred, Cullompton petty sessional division, Dulverton union, Tiverton county court district, rural deanery of West Tiverton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. George is a plain building of stone in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, with organ chamber and vestry on the north side, nave of five bays, north aisle, south porch and a western tower with gable roof and containing 6 bells: there are several monuments to the Bere and Sayer families: the church was restored in 1874-5 at a cost of £2,338: the east window is a memorial to Montague Baker Bere, d. 1858: and in the aisle is a memorial window to the Rev. Richard Bere LL.B. 58 years rector of Skilgate, d. 1865; a stained west window has been placed in the tower to Philip Charles

A fair is held on the first Monday after the 9th September, yearly, for cattle. Beech Hill, the residence of Charles Comyns Tucker esq. J.P. is a pleasant mansion, originally built c. 1707, during the reign of Queen Anne; it was restored in 1810, and almost entirely rebuilt in 1896-7. Barton House, half a mile north-east, a handsome modern residence, is the residence of the Hon. John Fellowes Wallop. Aish House, the property of C. Mortimer esq. is at present (1901) unoccupied. The rector is lord of the manor. The Hon. John F. Wallop, who is lord of Barton Manor, Charles Comyn Tucker esq. J.P. William Tucker Arundel Radford, of Nymet Rowland, Frank Saunders and Charles Mortimer esqs. and the Messrs. Leach are the chief landowners. The soil is loam and clay, and the sub-soil is clay and shale. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 7,169 acres; rateable value, £6,728; the population in 1901 was 985.

Cavan, d. 1870: the church affords 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £165, with residence and 4 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Rev. Montague Acland Bere B.A. of St. Matthew's, Victoria Docks, London E., and held since 1895 by the Rev. Annesley Montague Voysey M.A. of Merton College, Oxford. A sum of £45, arising from land in the parish, left by an anonymous benefactor, is given to resident labourers; a school and almshouses were founded and endowed in 1688 by John Brooke, with £100 for building, £4 annually for repairs, £10 yearly for schoolmaster and 12s. per month for 2 poor persons: the almshouses were removed to an adjacent site in 1876. Timewell House, an ancient mansion, mentioned in the church records of the 14th century, commands very extensive views southwards, extending to the Blackdown hills and the Wellington monument, and is the residence of William Bradshaw Paulin esq. East Timewell is the residence of Col. Robert Anstice Prideaux. The Manor House is the residence of Charles Digby Harrod esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor. The soil is clayey; subsoil, clay, gravel and rock. The chief crops are wheat and barley, with extensive grass lands. The area is 3,464 acres of land and 10 of water; rateable value, £3,661; the population in 1901 was 224.

Exe Bridge is a hamlet in this parish, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles west, with a bridge crossing the river Exe into Somersetshire. Post Office.—Miss Ellen Vicary, sub-postmistress. Letters through Bampton R.S.O. received at 7.10 a.m.; dispatched at 6 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Bampton, 2 miles distant

MORETON HAMPSTEAD is a market town standing on a gentle eminence surrounded by hills and on the high road from Tavistock to Exeter, 4 miles from the eastern border of Dartmoor, and a terminus of a branch (opened in 1866) of the Great Western railway from Newton Abbot; it is 12 miles west-south-west from Exeter, 12 north from Newton Abbot, 12 south from Crediton and 226 by rail from London; the parish is in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge hundred, Crockernwell petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union and county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The town is a borough by prescription, and was formerly governed by a portreeve, and an annual court was held by the Earl of Devon, but this has been discontinued; it is lighted with gas by a local company, and supplied with water from works erected in 1893. The scenery near Fingle Mill, north of the parish, is justly celebrated, and attracts numerous visitors in the summer season. The church of St. Andrew is a building of granite in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock, chimies and 6 bells; the tenor bell was replaced in 1894 by a new one, presented by the Cuming family of Linscott, as a memorial to their father: there are three good stained windows: the rood screen was removed in 1857, part being taken, by order of the Earl of Devon, then patron, to Powderham Castle, and the rest to Whitchurch, near Tavistock: the church was restored in 1884-9, and further in 1890, at a cost of £600, and affords 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1603. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £500, including 60 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Hon. W. F. D. Smith M.P. and held since 1901 by the Rev. Stanley Daws Dewey M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge. The Calvinistic Baptist chapel in Fore street, erected about 1790, will seat 150; the Congregational chapel, in Station road, erected in 1868, has 200 sittings; there is also a Wesleyan chapel in Cross street, erected in 1817, with 160 sittings; and a Unitarian chapel, also in Cross street, erected in 1802, with sittings for 150 persons. A field of about 8 acres adjoining the church, called "The Sentry," is used by the inhabitants as a recreation ground. The Smethurst schoolhouse, in Fore street, was built from money left for that purpose by the Rev. J. Smethurst, a former Unitarian minister here; it is used for magistrates' meetings, concerts and lectures, and on Sundays as a school; it will hold about 500 people. A library and reading room, the gift of Thomas Benjamin Bowring esq. is now (1901) in course of erection. The market was formerly held on Saturday, the charter for which, and for two fairs held on the third Thursday in July and the third Thursday in November, was obtained by Hugh de Courtenay, in 1335; the market is now held on Tuesday, and in lieu of the above two fairs a great market for cattle is held on the fourth Tuesday in each month. The early closing day is on Thursday. On the north-western border of the parish are the remains of two ancient entrenchments, called Cranbrook and Wooston Castles, which overhang the valley of the Teign, and are objects of great interest to strangers and antiquaries. In the town, near the church, there is an elm tree, said to be over 300 years old, and near it stands an ancient cross of the Tau shape, of which few now remain. The late Mr. George Parker Bidder, the celebrated calculator and engineer, a friend of George Stephenson and president of the Institution of Civil Engineers, 1860-1, was born here in 1806. The G Co. 5th (the Hay Tor) Volunteer Battalion Devonshire Regiment, which has its head quarters here, was formed May, 1896; the drill hall is in Station road. There is a convalescent home here, established by the Misses Phillips, and supported by voluntary contributions: there are beds for 23 patients; the average number admitted annually is 162: the home is open for the reception of patients from April 1st to December 21st. A Cottage Hospital, situate on the Chagford road, was erected in 1900, the entire cost of the building and furniture being defrayed by the Hon. W. F. D. Smith J.P., M.P. and endowed by him with £2,000, invested in Consols: the hospital contains 5 free beds and a separate bed for paying patients, and is further supported by voluntary subscriptions. The medical officers give their services gratuitously. There is house property here producing about £45 yearly, which, after deducting amounts for repairs, is applied to the beautifying and adorning of the church. The Almshouse charity, consisting of 4 cottages, producing a rental of £18, is administered by trustees and distributed amongst the poor. Hill's charity, of £10 yearly, is vested in trustees for educational purposes connected with the Board Schools. The Hon. William Frederick Danvers Smith M.P. of Hayne House, who is lord of the manor, John Baldwin Gregory esq. lord of the manor of Docombe, Robert William Crump esq. George Wills esq. Messrs. Cuming Brothers, and the Corporation of Torquay, are the principal landowners. The soil and subsoil are granite. The area is 7,893 acres of land and 17 of water; rateable value, £8,898; the population in 1901 was 1,541, and 1,540 in the ecclesiastical parish in 1891.

Sexton, William Parker.

DOCCOMBE is a hamlet $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east. There is a mission chapel here in connection with the parish church.

SLONCOMBE, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles west, and HOWTON, 1 mile north-west, are also hamlets. In 1885, by Local Government Board Order 16,337, Pepperdown, a detached part of Lustleigh, was amalgamated with this parish for civil purposes.

MORLEIGH is a parish and small village, near the river Avon, and on the road from Dartmouth to Modbury and Plymouth, 2½ miles east from Garah Bridge station on the Kingsbridge and Brent branch line of the Great Western railway, and 6 south-west from Totnes, in the Southern division of the county, Stanborough hundred, Stanborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Totnes union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells, with legends in Old English characters, the last two being invocations to S. Peter and S. Thomas: there is a fine old Norman font, and portions of a mural painting still exist: the church was restored in 1877, and is said to have been built by Sir Peter Fitzacre, who having killed the parson of Woodleigh, to which parish Morleigh belonged, in a quarrel, was ordered by the Pope to build the present church as a penance: there are 70 sittings. The register dates from the year 1659. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £120, with 17 acres of glebe, and residence, in the gift of Henry Minshall Stockdale esq. of Mears Ashby Hall, Northampton, and held since 1901 by the Rev. William John Woodward M.A. Oxford. Here are the remains of an old Roman road, extending from Garah bridge to this village. Henry Dawson esq. who is lord of the manor, John Tayleur esq. of Buntingsdale Hall, near Market Drayton, Salop, and Lord Ashcombe P.C. are chief landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil, clay slate. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,185 acres; rateable value, £764; the population in 1891 was 102 in the civil parish, and 113 in the ecclesiastical parish.

MORTEHOE (or Morte, as it is generally called) is a parish and village on the sea coast, with a station about 2 miles east of the village, on the Ilfracombe branch of the London and South Western railway, and 5 miles south-west from Ilfracombe, in the North Western division of the county, Braunton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Barnstaple and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south transept, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock, placed in 1887, and 6 bells: the oldest portions of the existing structure are the nave and chancel; the latter, built in the 13th century, has a Transitional chancel arch; the north transept dates from the 15th century, or later; the tower, of the 14th century, has a north doorway, possibly Norman: the oak seats, curiously carved with shields and initial letters, were restored in 1857: in the south transept is a slab, supposed to mark the burial place of the founder, and here also is an altar-tomb with the incised effigy of a priest, vested, and holding a chalice, and on the sides figures of St. Catherine and St. Mary Magdalene, and three shields of arms, showing the alliances of the Tracy family; the upper slab also bears, in Norman-French, an invocatory inscription for Sir William Tracy, rector of this parish, ob. 1321, who founded a chantry in the church, and dedicated it to these saints; the north side of the tomb is adorned with tracery of the Early Decorated period, and the east end bears a representation of the Crucifixion: on a tombstone near the doorway of the church the name of Tracy again appears: in the west wall of the south transept is a fine sculptured cenotaph, erected in 1890 from the design of Mr. A. Lauder, architect, of Barnstaple, as a memorial to the late Miss Haddon, and executed by Mr. Harry Hema, of Exeter: in the south transept is a curious angle window, now filled with stained glass; the east window and one on the north side are also stained: the altar frontals were worked by Mrs. G. B. Longstaffe, from designs by Mr. Selwyn Image: the church was restored in 1857 at the expense of the Rev. John Derby Ness B.A. late rector, in memory of his eldest son, and has 200 sittings: in the churchyard is a lych gate, designed by Mr. Edward Burgess. By Order in Council, dated December, 1806, burials were discontinued in the churchyard from May 31, 1897. The register dates from the year 1721. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £145, including 25 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Thos. Wemyss Pigot, of Christ's College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The Working Men's club consists of billiard and reading rooms &c. The North Devon Convalescent Home here was erected and endowed in 1888 by the late Mr. Rock, of Blackheath. The Seaside Home for ministers of all denominations and their wives was founded by the Rev. U. B. Thomas, of Bristol. On Morte Point is a cromlech, consisting of a rude slab, supported on two upright stones. Bull Point Lighthouse, about 1 mile from the village, built in 1879 at a cost of about £7,000, has a triple-flashing half-minute white light, placed at an elevation of 154 feet above high water mark, and shows every 18 seconds three successive flashes of about two seconds' duration: it has a fixed red light to mark the position of "Morte Stone," a dangerous rock off the Point, and here also is a powerful fog-horn, worked by a pair of caloric engines, each of 2-horse power, and rocket life-saving apparatus with telephonic communication between Bull Point Lighthouse, Ilfracombe and Croyde. By arrangement with the Government telegraph department, casualties at sea can be telegraphed to owners of vessels and others from Bull Point. Miss Chichester, who is lady of the manor, and Earl Fortescue are the principal landowners. The soil is sandy; subsoil, rock. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 3,798 acres of land and 440 of foreshore; rateable value, £5,831; the population in 1891 was 678 in the civil and 625 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order 15,900, a detached part of Morte-hoe was transferred, for civil purposes, to Georgeham, March 24, 1884.

WOOLACOMBE BAY, about 1 mile south, and now a favourite seaside resort, is famous for its firm and broad sands, which extend about 3 miles along the shore. The fine hotel here was enlarged in 1897 so as to afford accommodation for over 150 visitors. It stands in its own pleasure grounds of 5 acres, adjoining golf links, and commands a pleasant view seaward. Several villa residences and lodging houses have also been built. Here is a chapel of ease to the parish church, with 220 sittings, and a Bible Christian chapel. The Working Men's club has the use of the Parish room from October to April, which contains reading, smoking and billiard rooms. The Royal Meteorological Society maintains a station here of the second order; observations are regularly made by E. Henshall esq. C.E., F.R.M.S.

MUSBURY is a parish and village on the road from Axminster to Seaton, and near the river Axe, 2 miles north-east from Colyton station on the Seaton branch of the London and South Western railway, 3 south from Axminster and 9 south-east from Honiton, in the Eastern division of the county, Axminster hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Duneswell and Honiton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael is an ancient building of stone, of mixed styles, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: at the east end of the south aisle is a fine table tomb in the Renaissance style, to members of the Drake family; the base is divided by short pilasters into three compartments, each of which is filled with ornamental scroll work inclosing a shield of arms of the Drakes of Ashe; and immediately above these runs a frieze, similarly divided by plaques, and bearing three inscriptions; the upper portion of the monument is also in three compartments, separated by screens, pierced with coupled circular-headed openings; each compartment contains a pair of effigies, male and female, kneeling at a desk, the knights in full armour, with ruffs and chains, and their wives in black gowns and wearing caps and chains; the first pair represent John Drake of Ashe esq. ob. 4th October, 1558, and Amy (Grayfield), his wife, ob. 18th February, 1557; the next, Sir Bernard Drake kt. ob. 10th April, 1586, and Gertrude (Fortescue), his wife, ob. c. 12th February, 1601, and the last, John Drake esq. his son, bur. 11th April, 1628, and Dorothy (Button), his wife, bur. 13th December, 1631; and there is, in continuation, an inscription to Mary, wife of Sir Hugh Rosewell kt. bur. 4th November, 1643; there are other memorials to the Drake family, including Sir Wm. Drake kt. and bart. d. 28th February, 1715, and Sir John Drake bart. d. 4th September, 1724, besides inscriptions of earlier date, from 1648 to 1690: the spiral north and south stairs to the roof loft still remain: the church, with the exception of the south aisle and tower, has been rebuilt, reseteated and paved, and a new organ, costing 250 guineas, built, at a total cost of about £1,500: the reredos, of Venetian mosaic, was given by Sir William

Drake, of Oatlands, Surrey; the stained east window is a memorial to William Farley Lethbridge and his wife, and was erected by their children; there are also two stained windows in the south aisle to various parishioners: the church affords 235 sittings. The register dates from the year 1622. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £260, without residence, in the gift of the Rev. John Vaughan Payne M.A. and held since 1863 by the Rev. Horace William Thrupp M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. Here is a Baptist chapel. Musbury Castle, a British or Roman camp, is in this parish. A fair was formerly held on the first Monday after Michaelmas day, for the sale of cattle, but has fallen into disuse. Ashe House, now a farm house, was anciently the seat of the Drake family, and here, 31st August, 1660, Sir John Drake kt. was created a baronet; his sister Elizabeth, who married Sir Winston Churchill kt. was the mother of John Churchill, the great Duke of Marlborough, who was born here 24th

NEWTON ABBOT, WITH WOLBOROUGH AND HIGHWEEK.

NEWTON ABBOT, which includes Newton Bushel, is a market town in the parishes of Wolborough and Highweek, in the Mid division of the county, head of a union and with Torquay the head of a county court district, in Haytor and Teignbridge hundreds, petty sessional division of Teignbridge, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter, 16 miles south-west from Exeter (by rail 20), 6 north-west from Torquay, $5\frac{1}{2}$ south-west-by-west from Teignmouth, 29 east-north-east from Plymouth (by rail 32 $\frac{1}{2}$), 188 from London (by rail 214).

The town is connected by rail with Plymouth, Torquay, Ashburton, Teignmouth, Brixham, Dartmouth, Bovey Tracey, Moreton Hampstead and Exeter, and from the latter city by the Great Western and London and South Western railways, with London and all parts; it is situated at the head of the navigable portion of the Teign, from which there is a canal, extending two miles, to Teign-grace, and connected by this river with the seaport of Teignmouth.

The neighbourhood of Newton Abbot possesses some fine sites for houses; and owing to the beauty of its scenery, the salubrity of its air and its convenient distance from the neighbouring watering places on the coast, there is a great demand for residences. There is much in the locality to interest the geologist and the botanist. Bradley woods are frequented during the summer months by picnic parties from all parts of South Devon. The small river Lemon separates the parishes of Wolborough and Highweek, flowing through the town, which is well supplied with water by the Torquay Corporation, and lighted with gas by the Newton Gas and Coke Co. Limited.

The town is now (1901) about to be lighted by electricity, at an estimated cost of about £15,000.

The parish of Wolborough was placed under the operation of the "Local Government Act of 1858," January 8, 1864, but, under the provisions of the Act of 1894 (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), it is now governed by an Urban District Council.

The Confirming Order of the Local Government Board, for the extension of Newton Abbot Urban District, was made on Feb. 25, 1901, by the inclusion of the parish of Highweek, and part of the parish of Hacombe-with-Coombe, now known as the parish of Milber. At the same date the number of members of the Council was increased to eighteen and the District divided into six wards, viz.: Forde, College, Market, St. Leonards, Bushell and Bradley.

The parish church of St. Mary, Wolborough, standing on an elevated position, more than half a mile south from the town, is an ancient building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles separated from the nave by arcades of six arches, small transept, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 4 bells, three of which have Latin inscriptions in Old English characters, the initial letter of each word being crowned: the chancel retains a piscina, under an ogee arch, and has a priest's doorway and an ambury: the reredos, a work in the Perpendicular style, was erected in 1833 at a cost of £70: the stained east window of five lights, a memorial to Henry Beckley, d. 1875, contains ancient glass displaying the arms of Godolphin, and Neville quartering Montague and impaling Monthermer; on the south side of the chancel is a window with an invocatory inscription; on the north side, within an arch supported on columns of the Corinthian order, is an altar tomb of marble and alabaster, with full-sized effigies of Sir Richard Reynell, of Forde, knighted at Theobalds, July 23, 1622, ob. Jan. 24, 1633, and Lucy (Brandon), his wife, ob. April 18, 1653; the inscription also includes Jane, his daughter, wife of Sir William Waller kt. ob. 18 May, 1633, and John Reynell Waller, their son, ob. 1634; below the principal figures, on a marble slab, is a recumbent effigy of Lady Waller, and on the basement a figure of her infant son; the front of the arch displays the impaled coats of Reynell and Brandon, and there are other rhyming inscriptions: the eastern portions of the aisles form north and south chancel chapels, inclosed by parclose screens: in the south chapel, under an obtuse recessed arch, is a tomb with an invocatory inscription in Latin to William Ba(Icu)l, ob. 6 August, 1518; the aisle, as appears from the date on the external wall, was built in 1516: the fine rood screen, which extends across both nave and aisles, has been carefully restored, and is richly decorated with gold and colour; the lower portion of the screen is panelled in thirty-six compartments, containing as many figures of saints and bishops; the cornice is carved with vine foliage and grapes, and there are four crocketed tabernacles; other screens of like character inclose the transepts; that of the north transept has sixteen divisions in the lower portion, exhibiting figures of apostles, saints and bishops as originally painted; the south transept screen has fifteen panels, three of which are occupied with a representation of the "Annunciation," and the remainder contain figures of saints and others: in the church are also four paintings on panel of the Evangelists: the font, of fine red gritstone, is Norman, and ornamented with cable and chevron moulding: the brass eagle lectern is said to have been dug up at Bovey Heathfield, where it had been buried for safety during the Civil war: in the south wall of the nave is a window, carefully restored in 1878, and containing ancient heraldic glass commemorative of founders and benefactors; it displays the coats of Arundell, Beaumont, Bruere, Courtenay, De Vere, L'Ercedekne (Archdeacon), Lucy and Scrope; in an adjoining window are the arms of Ferrers and Yarde and numerous fragments of inscriptions and figures of saints; there are memorial windows to Francis Henemann, 1867; Charlotte, wife of W. J. Watts esq. J.P. of Forde House; Aurora, wife of the Rev. Harry Tudor M.A. late rector; to the daughter of Richard Gernon esq. and to various members of the Bearne family, and inscribed stones to the Beardon family, 1604-38; the Rev. John Reynell, rector, 1698; the Rev. William Buckland, rector, 1760, and to the families of Chappell, 1699, Colcott, 1650, Mawry, 1605, Matthew, 1688, Moore, 1663, and Pellington, 1702: in the south aisle are mural tablets to Lieut.-Col. Thomas Babb, Haytor Volunteers, d. 12 Dec. 1810, and others of that family: some ancient oak benches remain in the north chapel: the Communion plate comprises a silver flagon and paten, two chalices, obtained by exchange in 1838, and a silver basin and covered chalice purchased in 1753 for private use: the church was renovated in 1710 at the cost of the feoffees, and in 1881 was restored and an organ chamber and vestry built on the south side, at a cost of £2,491; in the course of the work a hagioscope was discovered and re-opened: there are 550 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, with the chapelries of Newton Abbot and St. Paul's, net yearly value £200, with 3½ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Earl of Devon, and held since 1866 by the Rev. William Edward Durham M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, chaplain of Newton Abbot union and surrogate. William Yeo M.A. instituted in 1648, was ejected in 1662 for Nonconformity.

St. Leonard's chapel of ease, in Wolborough street, erected in 1834-5, at a cost of £2,614, and consecrated 24 Nov. 1836, is a building of limestone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, organ and an embattled tower on the north side, containing one bell: the chancel was built about 1874, at a cost of £1,700: there are sedilia in the chancel: the centre light of the east window is a memorial to Frances Drake Parker, who died in 1876: above the communion table is a painting of "Christ bearing the Cross," painted by the late Rev. R. Bradford, after the original in Magdalen College chapel, Oxford, and presented by him: the chapel has been re-seated since 1874, at a cost of £970, and affords 800 sittings.

St. Paul's district church, in Devon square, erected at the expense of the late Earl of Devon, is a cruciform building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, transepts, vestries, organ chamber, south porch and a central turret containing one bell: the vestries &c. were added about 1874, at a cost of £625: the centre window of the apse was erected by the tenants of the Wolborough estate, to William, 10th Earl of Devon, d. 19 March, 1859; the west window is also stained: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1861. The living is a chapelry, annexed to St. Mary's, joint net yearly value £150.

The embattled tower of the old chapel of St. Leonard, demolished in 1836, a work of the Decorated period, about 60 feet high, now standing at the east end of Wolborough street, was restored about 1874, at a cost of £650, contains a carillon of 8 bells and a clock, placed in 1887, in commemoration of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria's Jubilee.

The church of All Saints, Highweek, stands on an eminence, nearly a mile north-west from the town and is an edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, separated from the nave by arcades of four arches, south porch with parvise and an embattled western tower, with angle turrets, containing 6 bells, all cast in 1781, except the 4th, which dates from 1784: the chancel retains a piscina; on the nave roof are the arms of Court Endy, and a representation of St. George and the Dragon: the font has an octagonal basin, adorned with the arms of Anglishville, Ferrers, Yarde and Laci, and was restored by the Rev. Thomas Whigham D.D. vicar, from 1812, of Kingsteignton: the east window and four others are stained and contain some remains of ancient glass: in the south aisle are several memorials to the Yardes, of Bradley, from 1557: the church underwent some alterations in 1786, and in 1892 the chancel and south aisle were lengthened and other improvements effected, including the erection of a new organ at a cost of £1,200: the west gallery and belfry were taken down at the same time; the bells are now rung, as anciently, from the ground floor of the tower: the church will seat 300 persons. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1653; marriages, 1654. The living, formerly a chapelry annexed to Kingsteignton, was separated therefrom April 3, 1864, and made a distinct benefice, by Order in Council: it was then endowed with the rectorial tithe rent-charge, in addition to the vicarial, and consequently came under the provisions of the District Church Tithes Act of 1865, by which it was constituted a rectory, April 3, 1866: net yearly income £253, with residence and 13½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1864 by the Rev. Samuel George Harris M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford.

St. Mary's chapel of ease, in Highweek street, is an edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of nave, north aisle and a massive western tower, 51 feet in height, and containing one bell: the east window is stained and adorned with four crocketed niches; in the vestry is a holy water stoup, and over the entrance to the tower are two tabernacles for images; the church was enlarged in 1826 and repaired and re-seated in 1870, and now affords 400 sittings.

Newton College chapel was built in 1876 at a cost of £760: the Rev. George Rogerson M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford, is chaplain.

The Catholic church, in Queen street, dedicated to St. Joseph, was erected in 1871, at a cost of £360, and is a plain building of limestone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of nave only, and has 130 sittings: there is a house for the priest and a school adjoining.

The Congregational church, in Queen street, is a building of limestone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early Decorated style, erected at a cost of £3,000, and will seat 850 persons.

The Baptist chapel, in East street, is the oldest Dissenting place of worship in the town, having been in existence since 1697: it will hold 200 persons.

There is another Baptist chapel, erected near to this in 1862, at a cost of £1,500, with sittings for 500 persons.

The Wesleyan chapel, in Courtenay street, is a spacious edifice of stone, in the Early English style, erected in 1869-70, at a cost of about £3,700, from designs by Mr. J. W. Rowell, and will hold over 700 people: the font of marble and Bath stone was presented by the ladies of the congregation, and the western windows are stained: at the north-west angle is a tower.

The Bible Christian chapel, in Queen street, is a building of stone, in the Early English style, erected in 1865, at a cost, inclusive of the minister's house adjoining, of £1,700: there are about 500 sittings: schools, for 200 children, were added in 1899 at a cost of £450.

The Railway Mission Hall, in Queen-street, is a plain building of stone, and will hold 130 persons.

The Free Methodist chapel, in Courtenay street, was erected in 1854, and has sittings for 400 persons.

The Town Hall is a plain building in Courtenay street, and besides containing the County Court offices, has a large room for concerts, holding 600 people.

The Public Rooms, in Queen street, were erected in 1857, as a Unitarian chapel, but are now let for various purposes, and will seat 200 persons.

The C Squadron of the Royal 1st Devon Imperial Yeomanry is stationed in the town. Newton Abbot is the head quarters of the 5th (The Hay Tor) Volunteer Battalion Devonshire Regiment, and of the B and D Companies.

A portion of the F division of County Police is stationed here: the Police station is in Union street.

Devon Lodge, in Devon square, is a structure of worked limestone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Gothic style, and is used for the meetings of the Freemasons' lodges.

The Market and Corn Exchange, erected by the Wolborough Local Board, in 1871, forms a fine and commodious block of buildings, from designs by Mr. John Chudleigh, and constructed of dressed limestone. The Alexandra Hall, placed at the west end of the general market, is 60 feet long and 40 broad, and is used for entertainments &c. and will hold 800 persons. On the opposite side of the road are the vegetable and fish markets. The late Local Board expended on the markets, including the purchase of the property, about £18,000.

A weekly market for cattle and agricultural produce is held on Wednesday, and is also well supplied with meat, butter, poultry, cattle and various merchandise. There is also a good corn market and a considerable trade in coal, culm, timber and slate, for the loading and unloading of which there are several convenient wharves. A large cattle market is held on the last Wednesday in February; and there are three annual fairs, viz.:—Mid-summer fair, for horses, cattle and general merchandise, on the first Wednesday after the 24th of June; the great September fair, for horses, cattle, cheese, onions and general merchandise, on the first Wednesday after the 11th; and St. Leonard's fair, on the first Wednesday after the 6th of November. The early closing day is on Thursday, at 4 p.m.

The Great Western Railway Co.'s Locomotive and Carriage Building workshops, for the South Devon line, employ about 370 men. Connected with the works is a reading room and library, containing over 1,700 volumes.

Here also is an important tannery, belonging to Messrs. John Vicary and Sons, and employing nearly 250 hands.

There are an iron foundry, breweries, malt houses and saw mills, in the parish of Wolborough; also clay mines.

The Newton Bushel Flour Mill, carried on by Messrs. Stockman Brothers, also employs a considerable number of hands, where grinding by the roller process is carried on.

There are four banks and several good hotels and inns, the principal of which are the Globe hotel, a large building in Courtenay street, built by the late Earl of Devon and containing a spacious hall and assembly rooms; Fair-weather's Commercial hotel, in Queen street and The Queen's hotel.

The Mid Devon Constitutional Club, in Union street, opened by the late Earl of Devon, Oct. 19, 1888, contains news, reading, lecture and billiard rooms and a good library.

The Mid Devon or Ashburton Division Liberal Club is also in Union street.

Newton Hospital and Dispensary, on the south side of East street, was erected in 1897, on a site given by Daniel Robert Scrutton esq. of Ogwell, at a cost of £5,000, of which £1,000 was given by the late Edward Fisher esq. of Abbotsbury, and a further sum of £4,000, by Mrs. Emeline Fisher. The building consists of east and west wings, constructed of stone and brick, from designs by Mr. Samuel Segar F.I.A.S. architect, Newton Abbot. The building contains a convalescent room, matron's and nurses' apartments, kitchen and offices, and has 29 beds (male and female), with a private ward on either side for two beds each; there are also bath and lavatory fittings, an operating room and a board room.

The charities are as follows:—Wolborough Parish, lands left at a remote period, and now let for more than £350 yearly, are for the relief of the poor and other charitable purposes. Four almshouses, for widows of clergymen, left by Lady Reynell, in 1640; and 29 acres of land, at Paignton, and land at Wolborough, by the same lady, are devoted to yearly stipends. John Sloman, in 1789, left £100 stock for the poor. In 1788, Hannah Maria Bearn, left £2,450, the interest to be applied to the support of a Free School for the poor children of Highweek and Wolborough, after deducting £30 yearly for the minister. This charity now realizes £100 a year. Mackrill's Charity consists of £5,000, 2½ per Cent. Consols, given by Thomas Mackrill esq. of Barnstaple, in connection with which a row of good almshouses was erected in 1877. The inmates are elected from the poor of Wolborough and must be over 50 years of age.

The Widows' Houses are four residences, on the Torquay road, bequeathed in the year 1640 by Lady Lucy Reynell, for the use of four widows of clergymen, in the county of Devon: each occupant receives an annuity of £12 from the same bounty.

In 1871, a society of Augustinian nuns was established on an estate purchased for them in this neighbourhood, and a magnificent pile of buildings, called St. Augustine's Priory, was erected for their residence: this community was originally settled at Louvain, in Belgium, whence they were driven in 1794 by the revolutionists, and obtained shelter at Amesbury Abbey, in Wiltshire, until 1800, when they removed to Spettisbury, in Dorsetshire, where they remained until 1861. The community consists of 45 members of the Order of Canonesses Regular of the Lateran Congregation (St. Augustine). A Catholic church in connection with the Priory was consecrated in 1863.

At the east end of Wolborough street is an octagonal pedestal of granite, surmounted by a handsome lamp; the pedestal formed the base of the Market Cross, from which it is said the declaration of the Prince of Orange to the people of England was first read, after his landing at Torbay, on the 5th Nov. 1688, and it bears an inscription commemorating the event.

Races are held on Teignbridge marshes, in the immediate neighbourhood of the town.

Courtenay Park, opposite the railway station, occupies about 20 acres and is tastefully laid out. Forde Park adjoins it, and both are surrounded with handsome villa residences.

Forde House, a fine old Jacobean mansion outside the town on the Torquay road, was in the 17th century the seat of the Reynell family, and Charles I. was on two occasions (Sept. 15 and 24, 1625) entertained here by Sir Richard Reynell, who at the first of these visits received from the king the honour of knighthood: William, Prince of Orange, also lodged at this house Nov. 7, 1688, when on his way from Torbay to Exeter: it was at that time the seat and property of Sir William Courtenay bart. who, however, declined to be present and receive the Prince: it now belongs to the Rev. the Earl of Devon, but is at present the residence of William John Watts esq. D.L., J.P.

Bradley House, an ancient manor house, about half a mile west from the town, was erected in the early part of the 15th century, and its buildings originally surrounded an open court, but the north and west sides of the quadrangle were removed about 1750, and only one side with the hall and chapel now remains: the hall and a room adjoining it are of earlier date than the rest of the work: the chapel retains a piscina and has a groined roof, displaying various shields of arms: at the west end is an opening affording a view from the chamber beyond: the bedrooms also afford features of considerable interest: on the principal front are three good oriels: this house formerly belonged to the Yarde family, who held property here from 1391 to 1751, but now belongs to Miss Wall, who lives at a more modern residence, called Bradley Wood House, a large mansion in the Gothic style, pleasantly situated in 5½ acres of garden and grounds, on the same estate, about half a mile further west.

Sandford Orleigh, a mansion about a mile north from the town, is the seat of Lady Baker, widow of the celebrated traveller, Sir Samuel W. Baker (d. 1893).

Abbotsbury, a mansion occupying a lofty position on Knowles hill, is now occupied by George Fortescue Webb esq. M.R.C.S.

White Hill, the residence of the Misses Wild, is a modern mansion, about a mile north from the town, on an eminence overlooking the Teign valley; it is approached by a fine avenue of oak trees and stands in about 30 acres of park land.

The Rev. the Earl of Devon is lord of the manor of Wolborough; Miss Wall, of Bradley Wood, is lady of the manor of Highweek; and William Vicary esq. is lord of the manors of Newton Abbot and Newton Bushel.

A portreeve and some other officers are chosen at the courts leet and baron of the manors of Newton Abbot and Newton Bushel; their offices are, however, almost nominal.

The Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty, Messrs. Vicary, Miss Wall, and Richard Harold St. Maur esq. D.L., J.P. of Stover, Teigngrace, are the principal landowners.

HIGHWEEK is an ancient parish and village, pleasantly situated on a hill about 1 mile from the centre of the town, and commands magnificent prospects: it is much frequented by invalids who require a change of air. NEWTON BUSHEL forms the town portion of the parish of Highweek.

In the village is a Dissenting chapel.

The income from the parish lands, about £40 yearly, is devoted to the National schools and to providing clothing for poor people. In 1538 John Gibberd left four cottages and an acre of land, with £4 a year for the poor, who have also 20s. yearly left by John Peter, and £2 yearly left by Robert Hayman, in 1632.

NEWTON FERRERS is a parish and village, pleasantly seated on an eminence on the north of a navigable creek which runs into the river Yealm and nearly 2 miles from the sea coast, 3 south from Yealton station on the new line from Plymouth to Yealton, 8 south from Plympton station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 7½ south-east from Plymouth and 9 south-west from Ivybridge, in the Southern division of the county, Ermington County Council division, hundred of Ermington, petty sessional division of Ermington and Plympton, union of Plympton St. Mary, county court district of East Stonehouse, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of the Holy Cross is an edifice of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch with carved wagon roof and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and 6 bells: there are several monuments in the church to the Potter and Yonge families, and memorial windows to the Rev. John Yonge B.A. rector from 1812, and to the Rev. Duke Yonge M.A. rector, 1877-82, to whom also a marble and alabaster reredos has been erected as a memorial: the new oak parclose screens, and a font of veined alabaster were executed by Mr. Harry Hems, of Exeter: the church was restored in 1886, at a cost of £4,400, and affords 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £306, including 88 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of John Yonge esq. B.A., J.P. and held since 1891 by the Rev. Charles Burrell Yonge M.A. of Keble College, Oxford. St. Mary's chapel, a private chapel attached to Gnaton Hall, the property of John Charles Williams esq. M.A., J.P. was built in 1886 by the owner at a cost of about £3,500, and is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style, from designs by G. H. F. Prynn, architect, consisting of chancel, nave and north and south porches;

a dado of coloured Devonshire marble runs round the interior: the altar and triptych are of carved oak; the screen, pulpit and the lectern are of brass, beautifully wrought: the font is of Caen stone with marble shafts: on the walls of the nave and in the south porch are paintings on oak of scriptural subjects, by Mr. E. A. F. Prynn, let into the walls: the chapel affords 74 sittings: the public are admitted to the services, which are held once on Sundays by the clergy of the parish. There is a lifeboat station. Puslinch House, the property and residence of John Yonge esq. B.A., J.P. is beautifully seated. Messrs. T. & Vaughan Holberton and Michael Williams esq. are lords of the manor of Newton, and John Yonge esq. is lord of the manor of Puslinch. John Charles Williams esq. of Caerhays Castle, Cornwall, Messrs. T. and V. Holberton, Baldwin John Pollexfen Bastard esq. of Kitley, William Cresswell Gray, of Seaton Carew, Durham, and John Yonge esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is light sandy; subsoil, rocks. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 3,326 acres of land, 1 of water, 37 of tidal water and 133 of foreshore; rateable value, £4,524; the population in 1891 was 710.

county court district, rural deanery of Aylesbeare, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Luke is a small and plain building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle and a western tower containing a clock, erected in 1897, at a cost of about £120: it was originally a chantry, founded in 1331, and after the Reformation was used, until 1751, as a chapel of ease to the mother church of Aylesbeare, when it was separated as a parochial chapel, and afterwards endowed with successive grants from Queen Anne's bounty in the years 1762, 1787 and 1791: the old building was restored and a south aisle added in 1826, by the late Lord Rolle and the Rev. Henry William Marker, late vicar, and it was again restored in 1875, at a cost of £659, and now affords 300 sittings. The registers are included in those of Aylesbeare, which date from the year 1580; the church has registers of its own only from 1862. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £130, with residence, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Holled Darrell Cave Smith Horlock D.D. of Hertford College, Oxford. Here is a chapel for the Brethren, and a small iron Wesleyan chapel erected in 1895, and seating about 100. A fair is held here on the third Wednesday in April, and on the Wednesday on or after October 17th. The Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is sandy; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are barley, peas and roots. The area is 515 acres; rateable value, £1,189; the population in 1901 was 441.

NEWTON ST. CYRES is a parish and village on the road from Exeter to Barnstaple, with a station about 1 mile north of the church, on the main line of the London and South Western railway, and is $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-west from Exeter, $3\frac{1}{2}$ south-east from Crediton and $17\frac{1}{2}$ from London, in the Northern division of the county, Crediton hundred, Crediton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Cadbury, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of SS. Cyr and Julitta (mother of St. Cyr) is an ancient building of stone in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 5 bells, all cast in 1733: in the church is a monument to John Northcote esq. with a full-length effigy standing under a canopy, the right hand grasping a staff and the left resting upon the hilt of a sword: on either side are medallion portraits of his two wives, Elizabeth and Susanna; and underneath are figures of his son and wife, with their three children, all kneeling; the monument is undated: there are other memorials to the Quicke family: a new organ was erected in 1884 at a cost of £120: there are 250 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1554; marriages, 1555. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £269, with residence and 25 acres of glebe, in the gift of the trustees of the late John Quicke esq. and held since 1894 by the Rev. John Argyle Welsh Collins B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. There are charities of £2 10s. yearly value. Silver ore was found here in the time of Queen Anne, and manganese, a rich lode of which has lately been worked. The Rev. Hugh Downman M.A., M.D. physician and poet, was born here in 1740, and died at Exeter, 23 September, 1809. The trustees of the late John Quicke esq. are lords of the manor, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, the Earl of Idlesleigh C.B. and William Coombe and Francis Henderson esqs. are the chief landowners. The soil is clay and partly red sandstone; the subsoil is schistons. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 4,355 acres of land and 20 of water; rateable value, £7,630; the population in 1891 was 757 in the civil, and 762 in the ecclesiastical parish.

NEWTON ST. PETROCK is a parish and village on the river Torridge, here crossed by a bridge of three arches, to Milton Damerel, 6 miles from Bude canal, 7 south-west from Torrington terminal station of a branch from Barnstaple of the London and South Western railway and 11 south from Bideford, in the North Western division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Bideford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Torrington, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Patrick is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, 51 feet in height, and containing 3 bells, of which the first is dated 1671; the second and third are respectively inscribed, in Old English characters:—“Est michi collatum J.D.S. istud nomen amatum”; “Me melior vere non est campana sub ere”; the latter, which is the tenor bell, weighs 9 cwt. 2 qrs.: the church contains some very ancient carved oak benches, bearing the shields of Prideaux, Hatch, Grenville and others; the church was restored and enlarged in 1887, under the direction of Mr. Samuel Hooper, architect, of Hatherleigh, at a total cost of £618, when the chancel was extended eastwards 3 feet: the former pews were removed and the church reseated with benches, in which the ancient woodwork as well as a quantity of carved oak discovered beneath the flooring was incorporated; some of this was used in the construction of a new pulpit, the panels of which display the emblems of the Passion; the rood loft stairs and the doorway leading thereto now form the entrance to the pulpit: the roofs and most of the windows

NEWTON TRACEY is a parish and village, on the old road leading from Torrington to Barnstaple, and adjoining Fremington, 3½ miles from Instow station on the Torrington branch of the North Devon section of the London and South Western railway and 4½ south-west from Barnstaple, in the North Western division of the county, Fremington hundred, Brantton petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, and in the rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Thomas à Becket is a small but ancient building in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells; the two first bear legends in Old English characters; the tenor, a beautiful recasting, has the name “Gabriel” and an invocation to the Virgin in Lombardic type: the church was restored in 1868 and a north aisle added, when some curious and ancient wall paintings were found in the chancel, but owing to the insecure condition of the walls, they were destroyed; there are 94 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1566; marriages, 1570;

NORTHAM is a parish and village standing on an eminence commanding a beautiful view of Barnstaple and Bideford Bay and of Lundy Island, 1½ miles north from Bideford station on the Torrington branch of the London and South Western railway, in the North Western division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Bideford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Hartland, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter.

The parish is governed by an Urban District Council of twelve members, constituted under the provisions of the “Local Government Act, 1894” (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73).

The church of St. Margaret is a very fine building of stone in the Decorated or Early Perpendicular style, completely restored between 1849 and 1865, and consists of chancel and nave, each with a north aisle, south transept, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles and containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast in 1770 by Thomas Bilbie, of Collumpton: there are several fine modern stained windows: the church affords 600 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1538; marriages, 1606; burials, 1541. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Westward Ho! annexed, are new: new pinnacles have been placed on the tower and its western arch opened to the nave: there are 150 sittings. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1578; burials, 1737. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £175, including 77 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of and held since 1895 by the Rev. Francis Walter Hobbs B.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. There is a Baptist chapel, built in 1862. The Rev. F. W. Hobbs M.A. who is lord of the manor, John Curzon Moore-Stevens esq. of Winscott, and Mrs. C. Tucker, of Holworthy, are the chief landowners. The soil is clayey; the subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,981 acres; rateable value, £1,034; the population in 1891 was 234 in the civil and 219 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order 14,831, a detached part of Fritthelstock parish, in Torrington union, known as Great and Little Cleave and Dovies, was transferred to this parish, March 25, 1885, for civil purposes.

Letters received by foot post from Torrington at 12 noon & from Brandis Corner R.S.O. at 9.30 a.m. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Shebbear, 3 miles distant

Letter Box cleared at 12.50 p.m. daily, sundays excepted This place is included in the United School Board district of Shebbear and Newton St. Petrock, formed Sept. 8, 1874, consisting of 5 members; W. W. Daniel, Backway, Shebbear, clerk to the board

Board School (mixed), built, with residence for the master, in 1875, at a cost of £700, for 65 children; average attendance, 42; Walter Cann, master burials, 1562. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £77, with 36 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1870 by the Rev. John Dene B.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, who is also rector of and resides at Horwood. Newton House is the property and seat of James Paton esq. lord of the manor; J. Paton esq. and the Rev. Thomas Poltimore Dimond Hogg M.A. vicar of Saltney, Chester, are the principal landowners. The soil is good loam; the subsoil is clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 338 acres; assessable value, £418; the population in 1901 was 126.

Parish Clerk, William Pickard.
Post Office.—William Symons, sub-postmaster. Letters received from Barnstaple at 8.35 a.m.; dispatched at 4.50 p.m. No arrival or dispatch on sundays. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. yearly value £290, with 2 acres of glebe, and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1870 by the Rev. Marcus Dimond Dimond-Churchward M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, rural dean of Hartland and prebendary of Exeter cathedral. There is a mission room on the Torridge bank, erected in 1885, and seating 150. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels at Northam and a Wesleyan chapel at Northam Ridge. The charities are of about £100 yearly value, and there are almshouses for four old maids and four old widows. The Unionist Club, in Fore street, was erected in 1896, from designs by Mr. G. Malam Wilson M.S.A. architect, of Bideford, and contains a reading or lecture room, which can be divided at pleasure, and ladies' apartment. The Pebble or “Boulder Ridge,” at the mouth of the Taw and Torridge, about 2 miles distant, is a great natural curiosity. From Northam a steep hill descends to Northam Burrows, contiguous to Westward Ho! where there is a level plain of turf of 1,000 acres, formed by the sandy deposit from the sea and rivers, and now protected from the waves by the Pebble Ridge; this remarkable barrier extends about 2 miles in a straight line, like an artificial embankment; it is about 50 feet wide and 20 feet high, and consists of rolled slate-stones, or pebbles, which vary in size from half a foot to 2 feet in diameter; it is singularly uniform and compact, on the one side sloping steeply to the turf of the Burrows; on the other, at a less inclination, to a broad area of sand, but scarcely a pebble is to be found on the turf or the shore beyond the base of the ridge. In this form it stretches from the distant cliffs to a point opposite the bar of the rivers, but once within the influence of this obstruction, it loses its character of a ridge and lies heaped upon sloping sandhills. The shore scene is exceedingly wild, and the view of the coast, of Lundy Island, and the estuary of the Taw and Torridge, most interesting; at low water the dangerous bar is seen stretching athwart the entrance of the rivers, and on the Braunton Burrows opposite is a lighthouse: on the sea-coast is a remarkable and interesting common called "The Burrows," fenced on two sides for a space of 3 miles by a vast barrier of boulders, surrounded and smoothed by the waves, and described in the Rev. Charles Kingsley's "Westward Ho!" A revel is held yearly on Whit Monday. The neighbourhood abounds in antiquities. At Kenwith Castle are the remains of ancient fortifications, in the attack on which, in A.D. 877-8, the Danes, under Hubba, were defeated by the Saxons, under Alfred, and their Raven standard captured; a spot, still known as "Bloody Corner," is traditionally regarded as the scene of a duel between two of the chieftains. Hallsannery House, now occupied by Richard Boucher James esq. is a modern mansion, pleasantly situated on the south side of Bideford and commanding magnificent sea and land views. The approach to Northam from the Bideford road is highly picturesque on account of the numerous villas and country houses scattered over the hilly grounds; among these the principal are Port Hill, the residence of Capt. Thomas Edward Gordon; Raleigh, a finely-seated mansion, occupied by George Downton Leman esq.; Wellesbourne, the residence of George Brayley-Brayley esq.; Lenwood, the seat of the Misses Wren; Durrants, occupied by George Waddington esq.; Conybeare, by Joseph Bower Siddall M.D., D.P.H.; Woodville, by Col. Dawson Townley; Cleveland, by Claud C. B. S. Carnegie esq.; and Elm Field, by Mrs. Thrupp. Lieut.-Col. J. F. M. Winterscale J.P. of Westward Ho! Major M. E. Archdale and the vicar, are lords of the manor, and G. Gorton esq. is steward. The principal landowners are Captain George Mill Frederick Molesworth, of Westward Ho! Wilson Hoare esq. J.P. George J. Taylor esq. of Abbotsham Court, R. B. James esq. C. C. R. S. Carnegie esq. J.P. the trustees of the late William Yeo, the Misses Wren and the trustees of the late Mrs. Pynsent. The soil is light and sandy; subsoil, gravel and rock. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 3,034 acres of land, 8 of water, 0.3 of tidal water and 1,423 of foreshore; rateable value, £15,861; the population in 1901 was (including Westward Ho! & Appledore) 5,357.

APPLEDORE is an ecclesiastical district, formed 26 Aug. 1844, out of the parish of Northam, and is given under a separate heading.

The church of St. Giles is a building of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave and north aisle, north porch and an embattled western tower, with a turret at the north-west angle, and containing 4 bells, rehung in 1897: the chancel, rebuilt about 1858, is separated from the nave by a handsomely-carved screen: in 1869 the church was new roofed and the nave and tower restored; the latter at the cost of the late Sir Edmund S. Prideaux bart.; there is a memorial window to the Rev. H. P. Daniell, a former rector, erected by his daughter, Miss M. F. Daniell, and a marble tablet in the north aisle to Robert Underdown esq. formerly of this parish, d. 2 April, 1811: the font is Norman. There are 150 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1700; marriages, 1708; burials, 1697. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £140, including 45 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1806 by the Rev. Walter Champernowne M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The Parsonage House has been rebuilt of flint and rag stone, with freestone dressings, in the Jacobean style. There are charities consisting of 8 acres of land in the parish, producing £11 yearly, which is distributed amongst the industrious poor; the Rev. James How also gave by will £200 Consols for ever, the interest of £100 for the establishment and support of a Sunday school, and the interest of the other £100 to be distributed in bread and

OAKFORD (or Okeford) is a parish and village near the river Exe, which is crossed by a bridge to Bampton, and is 3½ miles west-by-south from Bampton station on the Exe Valley branch, 4 south from Dulverton station on the Devon and Somerset branch, of the Great Western railway, and 9 north-north-west from Tiverton, in the North Eastern division of the county, Witheridge hundred, Oulmpton petty sessional division, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of West Tiverton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Peter, rebuilt, with the exception of the 15th century tower, in 1839, is an edifice in the Early Pointed style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 8 bells: the east window is a memorial to the Rev. James Parkin, rector from 1814, who died 1871, and there is another to the younger son of the rector, who died in 1898, aged 10 years: the church was restored, during the period 1873-83, at a cost of £512, and affords 340 sittings. The churchyard was enlarged, in 1900, by a quarter of an acre of land given by the rector; the cost of enclosure was met by gifts and a voluntary rate. The register dates from the year 1568. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £766, including 90 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the trustees of Sir J. W. H. Anson bart. (d. 1873), and held since 1893 by the Rev. Donald Campbell M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, rural dean of West Tiverton. At Oakford is an iron church, in which divine service is held on Sunday evenings. There is a chapel for Bible Christians, erected in 1888. The reading room, opened in 1885, is supplied with daily and weekly papers and contains a small library. The Dame Pyncombe charity, dating from 1780, provides annually £25, which is paid to the master and mistress of the school. There are also parochial charities left by the Rev. James Parkin, a former rector, who died in 1871; these amount to £82 yearly, and of this sum £17 is for the poor, and £31 for the school money to the poor on Christmas day. The Rev. William Henry Baptist Proby M.A. of Colyton, is lord of the manor. The Rev. Alfred Marwood Elton B.A. of Widworthy; Charles Glyn Prideaux-Brune esq. of 10 Grosvenor gardens, London S.W., and the Misses Outwaite are the chief landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, red marl. The crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 1,172 acres; rateable value, £1,208; the population in 1891 was 190 in the civil and 180 in the ecclesiastical parish, and 172 in the civil parish in 1901.

By Local Government Board Order 16,349, Coombe and Smallcombe Farms were transferred from Ottwell to Northleigh, March 24, 1884, for civil purposes.

OGWELL is a parish formed under an Order of the County Council, by the amalgamation of East and West Ogwell parishes, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. East Ogwell village is 2 miles south-west from Newton Abbot station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway. The church of St. Bartholomew is a building of stone, of mixed styles and various dates, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells, of which the first is plain but ancient; the second bears the words "Ave Maria," in Lombardic characters, beautifully cast; the third has, in very clearly moulded characters, the legend "Vox mea viva becllo cuncta nociva;" an unconsecrated south aisle or transept, built by the family of Reynell over their vault, is called the "Gotha": there are some ancient gravestones in the pavement and several monuments to the Reynell family: there is an early font and some remains of a screen, and on the piers are the arms of the Holbeame family: the church was restored in 1884-5, at a cost of £1,691, and affords 400 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1674; marriages, 1675. The living is a rectory, with West Ogwell annexed, joint net yearly value £355, including 26 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Daniel Robert Scrutton esq. and held since 1896 by the Rev. Oliver Brighton M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. There are charities of £12 15s. yearly value, including the rent of 4 acres of land left by Sir Richard Reynell in 1735, and devoted to school purposes. In the parish is a quarry of madrepore marble. Bradley Vale is a beautiful spot often visited by lovers of fine scenery. Daniel Robert Scrutton esq. J.P., D.L. of Ogwell House, is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is chiefly light red loam; the subsoil is chiefly limestone, but there are also small slate or skillett and some dunstones. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 2,087 acres; rateable value, £2,641; the population in 1901 was 250.

Holbeame is a small hamlet $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-west. In 1885, by Local Government Board Order, 16,367, Rydon, a detached part of Wolborough, was amalgamated with this parish.

OKEHAMPTON (or Oakhampton) is an ancient municipal borough, market and union town and the head of a county court district, on the East and West Oke-ment rivers, on the high road from Exeter into Cornwall, adjoining Dartmoor, with a station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, and is 22 miles west-by-north from Exeter, 30 north-by-east from Plymouth, 16 north-north-east from Tavistock, 19½ north-east from Launceston, 22 east-by-south from Holsworthy and 107½ by rail, via Exeter, from London, in the Western division of the county, partly in the Lifton and partly in the Black Torrington hundred, Hatherleigh petty sessional division, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The town, incorporated by charters granted by James I. in 1623 and Charles II. in 1684, was formerly governed by a mayor, recorder, eight principal and eight assistant burgesses; but under the provisions of Schedule I. of the Municipal Corporation Act, 1882 (45 and 46 Vict. c. 50) the then Corporation became extinct, and the inhabitants petitioned for a new charter, which was granted 24 June, 1885, and the Corporation now consists of a mayor, four aldermen and twelve councillors. Under Section 1, subsection 3, of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), the parish was divided, namely:—Okehampton Borough and Okehampton Hamlets, or rural. The town is well lighted with gas by a company formed in 1858 with a capital of £1,200. The electric light was also adopted in 1885, and additional plant laid down in 1889 and in 1896. The inhabitants are supplied with water by high pressure from a reservoir dependent on springs on the Okehampton Park estate, adjoining the town on the south, and in 1893 the Local Government Board granted the sum of £800 for the purpose of increasing the supply. A complete system of drainage was carried out in 1886-7 by the new Corporation, under the superintendence of Edward Appleton C.E. of Torquay, at a cost of £2,300. In 1887 the east bridge was widened 10 feet and about two-thirds of the town repaved, at a cost of £1,850; the Local Government Board also sanctioned a further loan of £400 for paving the footpath between the town and the railway station, but the town is now paved throughout. The church of All Saints, originally built in 1261, was rebuilt in the 15th century and again in 1844, under the direction of Mr. Hayward, architect, of Exeter, the old church, with the exception of the tower, having been destroyed by fire in 1842: it is now an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with vestry on the north side, nave of five bays, aisles, north and south porches and an embattled western tower, with crocketed pinnacles, containing 6 bells, cast in the churchyard in 1750: there is a good octagonal panelled font: the tower is Transitional and Late Decorated: the stained east window was added at the restoration, and there are several other stained windows, three of which, as well as the eagle lectern and carved oak pulpit, are memorials to John Downall M.A. archdeacon of Totnes and vicar of this church, who died in April, 1872: in 1891 a beautiful reredos, by Hems, of Exeter, was erected by the parishioners; and in May, 1892, brass gas standards and altar rails were erected, the chancel enlarged and fitted with new choir seats, the tower opened and the organ removed to the north side of the church, at a total cost of about £700, under the direction of Messrs. Fulford and Harvey, of Exeter, as a memorial to the Rev. C. W. H. Holley M.A. vicar 1872-92: in 1894 choir stalls of oak, raised upon a platform of the same material were placed in the chancel at the cost of an anonymous donor, a lady; the fronts of the desks are pierced with tracery, containing 3 bells, all apparently cast in 1633: there are three sedilia and an oaken pulpit with emblazoned arms upon it: the screen, existing here at the beginning of the present century, has now disappeared: there are 80 sittings. The register dates from the year 1681. The living is a rectory, united to that of East Ogwell. Ogwell House, the residence of Daniel Robert Scratton esq. D.L., J.P. lord of the manor and principal landowner, was originally erected by Sir Thomas Reynell in 1589: of this building only the offices remain: the present residence dates from 1790, and is a handsome building of stone, standing in about 6 acres of gardens and meadow.

and the stall ends terminate in carved fleurs-de-lis: there are 600 sittings: in the churchyard, entered by lych gates through avenues of elms, on the south and east, are gravestones with French inscriptions to prisoners of war who died here in 1811-15: the avenue on the south is almost entirely paved with gravestones of the 17th century: in 1888 half an acre was added to the churchyard for burial purposes. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1716; burials, 1678. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £366, including 232s. 2r. 22p. of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Charles Holley, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Arthur Linzee Giles M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, and surrogate. The ancient episcopal chapel of St. James, formerly belonging to the Corporation, but now in the hands of the Charity Trustees, consists of nave, and an embattled western tower with pinnacles of Early Perpendicular date, and containing a clock and 2 bells: the east window is Decorated, and in the nave, rebuilt in 1862, are some plain windows of the Early English period. There are two small iron mission churches in connection with the parish church, St. Luke's at Meldon, erected in 1894, and seating 60 persons, and St. Paul's, Brightley, erected in 1897, with 60 sittings; Divine service is conducted in each every Sunday afternoon. The Congregational chapel, in North street, built in 1800, will seat 350 persons. The Baptist chapel, in Fore street, erected in 1889, has sittings for 200 persons. The Wesleyan chapel, in West street, erected in 1841, has 220 sittings; there is also a small Wesleyan chapel at Kigbeare, erected in 1863. The Bible Christian chapel, East street, erected in 1868, will seat 250. The Town Hall, in Fore street, is a plain but ancient building, used for magisterial and other local meetings, and will hold 300 persons: the ground floor contains a small library and reading rooms belonging to the Literary Institution. The Corporation insignia consists of two maces and two borough seals; the maces, which form a pair, exactly alike in every particular, are of silver, 3ft. 1in. in length; the heads, surmounted by open arched crowns, are adorned with the royal arms of George III. those of the Duke of Bedford, and the arms of the borough; both maces, which have the hall marks of 1761-2, were presented by John, 4th Duke of Bedford K.G. and recorder of Okehampton, the Rev. John Vickery being then mayor: one of the seals is that of the portreeve, which exhibits a triple-towered castle, a legend around it and the date 1788, the whole within a wreath of oak leaves and acorns; the other seal displays the borough arms, "checky or and az. two bars arg." and a battlemented tower as a crest: the Corporation also possess a loving-cup of massive silver, with the hall marks of 1672-3, the initials "T. K." and a shield charged with three crescents. The Market, at the back of the Town Hall, forms an extensive range of spacious buildings, with ample conveniences. A butter and poultry hall was erected in 1880, at a cost of £1,000; and further improvements, including a room for technical instruction, were carried out in 1893 at a cost of £400, of which amount £200 was contributed by the County Council. The principal support of the town arises from its market, large quantities of agricultural produce being forwarded to all parts. Saturday is the market day, and a great cattle market is held on the first Saturday in every month. The market tolls are let for £358. A fair for cattle is held within the borough on the second Tuesday after March 11th, and a horse fair in October. The Workmen's Club, in St. James' street, contains reading and recreation rooms; there are about 60 members. A swimming bath, 100 feet by 30 feet, was erected by a company in 1890 in the Western Park, opposite the castle; the water, obtained from the hillside, is kept fresh by the maintenance of a constant flow through the bath. In 1895 a drinking fountain of granite was erected in Station road, as a memorial to William Trevor-Roper and Marion Luxmoore, by Mrs. E. C. Trevor-Roper, his widow, and sister of M. Luxmoore. Only two flour mills and one small bone manure factory are at work here. The cabinet making works of Mr. Geen employ a number of hands. An Agricultural Association was formed here in 1890 and 1891, meetings being held at the Town Hall. The White Hart hotel, on the Parade, has spacious coffee and dining rooms and private sitting and billiard rooms, together with very extensive stabling. There are also substantial and comfortable inns, including "The Red Lion," the "Plume of Feathers," "London," and the Temperance hotel. The "Okehampton United Charities," by a scheme of the Charity Commissioners in 1873, were vested in the lord of the manor, the mayor, ex-mayor, vicar, the borough overseers and 8 elected trustees, two of whom retire annually by rotation; the gross annual income, derived principally from land and houses, amounts to £700, which sum is chiefly applied to public uses. Okehampton Park, consisting of 1,050 acres, belongs jointly to Mrs. Trevor-Roper and Mrs. Lees, the daughters of the late Rev. John Luxmoore, having been purchased in 1780 by Charles Luxmoore esq. of Kingston-on-Thames, from the Earl of Devon: ninety acres have been leased for a term of 999 years, for the use of the Royal Horse and Field Artillery, who encamp and practise here for about five months annually: there are permanent stables and other buildings. In the Meldon valley is a vein of granulate, suitable for glass-making and stone ware. On the slope opposite the castle are the remains of an ancient British village, and the route of the old Roman road or King's way from Cornwall to Exeter can also be traced. About half a mile south-west of the town are the remains of the ancient castle of the Courtenays, once lords of Okehampton: these ruins stand on a rocky mound surrounded by trees, with the West Okement winding at its base: there are considerable remains of the chapel, still retaining a piscina, and of the banquetting hall, with a huge chimney, and the heralds' tower and other parts still remain: the keep, a small quadrangular structure, is possibly Norman, but the lower portions of the castle belong to the transition period between the Decorated and Perpendicular: a wall near the keep has a singular recess, perhaps for an oratory: the castle was traditionally built in the year 1058, by Baldwin, a Norman Earl of Devon, and after being held by the Redvers and Courtenay families, was dismantled in 1539 by Henry VIII. and in the reign of Charles I. descended by marriage to the Mohuns, Barons Mohun of Okehampton: it is now the property of John Reddaway esq. of Curworthy, Inwardleigh: a small charge is made for admission to the ruin. Oaklands, half a mile north of the town, the seat of Major-Gen. Edmund Hunt Holley R.A., J.P. was erected in 1820 in the Greek Ionic style: the river Okement runs through the estate, which is extensive and abounds in picturesque scenery. The ancient custom of tolling the curfew bell is still observed here. The Charity Trustees, Maj.-Gen. E. H. Holley, who is lord of the manor, William Augustus Francken, Mrs. Lees, William Chave Nainby-Luxmoore esq. of Thorngaby Hall, near Great Grimby, Lincolnshire, Simon P. Brendon Newcombe, Edmund Pearse Northery, and Thomas Westcott esqrs. are the chief landowners. The area of Okehampton Urban parish is 503 acres; rateable value, £7,349; the population in 1901 was 2,568; the area of Okehampton Rural parish is 9,049 acres; rateable value, £7,456; the population in 1901 was 654. OLDRIDGE CHAPEL is a detached chapelry of St. Thomas parish, nearly 3 miles south from Crediton station on the London and South Western railway and 6½ west from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, petty sessional division of Wonford, union of St. Thomas, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Christianity and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The hamlet and chapelry for civil purposes only has been annexed to Whitestone by Local Government Board Order 26,545, March 25, 1884. A chapel existed here previous to the Reformation and formed part of the property granted by Henry VIII. to John, Lord Russell K.G. but appears to have been destroyed in the latter half of the 18th century by George Trowbridge esq. The present church, erected on the site of the ancient structure in 1789, by James Buller esq. M.P. of Downes and Giles Yarde esq. is a small building of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, south transept and a turret containing one bell: there are several stained windows, one being a memorial to the wife of the Rev. John Medley D.D. incumbent of this chapelry 1838-45 and Bishop of Fredericton 1845-52: the roof is open-timbered, the pulpit of stone: the basin of the ancient font, exhumed during the restoration in 1842, was then replaced, and a suitable inscription added: the church was restored and lengthened by the addition of a chancel in 1842-3, at the joint expense of the late James Wentworth Buller esq. M.P. and Dr. Medley; at the same time a new roof was put on, a stone pulpit erected and stained windows inserted, including one to Mrs. Medley sen. mother of Dr. Medley, who was killed in a carriage accident at the foot of Whitestone hill in 1843: the arms of the Buller and Yarde families are emblazoned on wooden tablets within the church: the communion plate was given by James Buller esq. in 1789. There is no churchyard. The living is a perpetual curacy and was (previous to 1732) a peculiar of the dean and chapled of Exeter, net yearly value £52, in the gift of (for the time being) and held since 1874 by the Rev. Maurice Swaby M.A. of King's College, Windsor, Nova Scotia, and vicar of St. Thomas's, Exeter, to which benefice the chapelry has been certainly attached since 1616, if not earlier. This chapelry or district, now comprising five estates, covering together 820 acres, was granted by Henry VIII. in 1539, together with the abbey of Tavistock, to John Baron Russell K.G. afterwards 1st Earl of Bedford and ancestor of the present Duke of Bedford; it is now the property of Gen. the Right Hon. Sir Redvers H. Buller P.C., V.O., G.C.B., G.O.M.G. of Downes, Crediton, who is lord of the manor, and Mr. John Dadd.

The nearest post offices are Whitestone or Tedburn St. Mary, Exeter. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Crediton, 3 miles distant. Letters through Whitestone, Tues. Thurs. & Sat. arrive about 10 a.m.

OTTERTON is a parish and village on the eastern bank of the river Otter, near the English Channel and the road from Sidmouth to Topsham, with a station called East Budleigh on the branch line of the London and South Western railway from Tipton St. John to Budleigh Salterton; it is 3½ miles south-west-by-west from Sidmouth and 12 south-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, East Budleigh hundred, petty sessional division of Woodbury, union of St. Thomas, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael was rebuilt, with the exception of the ancient tower, in 1871 by Lady Rolle, at a cost of about £12,000, under the direction of the late Mr. Benjamin Ferrey F.S.A. and is an edifice of stone in the Decorated style and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, north and south porches and a tower with low spire at the east end of the south aisle, containing a clock with chimes and 6 bells: the very fine carved stone reredos, the pulpit and other carved work in the church was executed by Hems, of Exeter, and there are brasses to the Duke family, to whom the manor was granted by Henry VIII.; these include one to Richard Duke esq. ob. 1641, with 5 sons and 2 daughters, and another to Sarah (Reynell), wife of Robert Duke esq. ob. 1641, with 3 sons and 5 daughters: the piers of the nave arcade are formed of single shafts of marble: there are 800 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559.

The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £230, including 24 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Hon. Mark Rolle, and held since 1807 by the Rev. Harold Arthur Brownlow B.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1894 and seating about 100 persons. There are charities of about £30 yearly, chiefly arising from the interest of £500, recently given by the Rev. James Boucher M.A. now (1901) of Budleigh Salterton, to be applied for the benefit of the poor of this parish at the discretion of the vicar and churchwardens. Here was anciently a Benedictine priory, which, in the reign of King John, was a cell to the Abbey of Mount St. Michael, in Normandy; at the Dissolution the revenues were estimated at £87. Fairs were customarily held on Easter Wednesday and the Wednesday after October 10th. The Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is partly heavy and partly light loam; subsoil is chiefly red sand. The crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 3,148 acres of land, 23 of water, 4 of tidal water and 122 of foreshore; rateable value, £4,148; the population in 1901 was 622, including Dotton farm and mill.

NORTHMOSTOWN, 3½ miles north; PASSAFORD, 2 north; PITSON, 2½ north, and PINN, 2 north-east, are hamlets in this parish.

OTTERY ST. MARY is a market town and an extensive parish, forming a hundred in itself, and is head of a petty sessional division, with a station on the Sidmouth branch of the London and South Western railway and 1½ south from the main road from London to Exeter, and is 168 miles by road and 162 by rail from London, 12 east from Exeter, 6 north from Sidmouth, 13 north-by-east from Exmouth and 5 south-west from Honiton, in the Eastern division of the county, union and county court district of Honiton, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The town is seated in a beautiful and fertile valley on the eastern bank of the river Otter, from which it takes its name; it is irregularly built, but has some good houses and shops; a complete system of drainage has been introduced; the water supply is obtained from springs on the adjoining land and conveyed to a reservoir holding 143,875 gallons; it is lighted with gas.

The town is governed by an Urban District Council of 9 members, formed December, 1894, under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Viet. c. 76), which supersedes the Local Board formed July 15, 1850. Cromwell is said to have held a convention in a room near the churchyard, for the purpose of raising men and money from the town and neighbourhood. Fairfax also had his head quarters here from November 15 to December 6, 1645. On May 25, 1866, a disastrous fire broke out in the town about mid-day and destroyed 111 houses, rendering homeless about 500 persons, for whose relief no less a sum than £3,530 was subscribed in 12 days: no lives were lost on the day of the fire, but a tall chimney, left standing in the ruins, fell on Sunday, the 2nd September following, amidst a number of persons who were listening to a woman preaching, and killed 8, severely injuring 14 others. The first mention of a church here occurs in the register of Bishop Bronescombe, who consecrated one in 1260. The church of St. Mary, formerly collegiate, is a large and curious building of stone in the Early English and Later styles, consisting of lady chapel, choir of five bays, with aisles, and a large Perpendicular chapel on the north side, transepts, formed, as at Exeter cathedral, by north and south towers, south porch and a western porch or narthex; the whole of the western half of the structure is embattled; each tower is also battlemented and has pinnacles at the angles; the north tower is surmounted by a low octagonal spire, and the south tower contains a clock with chimes and a peal of 8 bells; these towers are conjectured to be a portion of the earlier edifice, which survived the extensive alterations and additions made by Bishop Grandison, when the church was made collegiate in 1337: the choir and lady chapel are Early English, and the former opens on either side to aisles or chapels of the same period, dedicated respectively to St. Lawrence and St. Stephen: the reredos was restored under the direction of Mr. E. Blore, architect, from the original work, discovered, in a much mutilated condition, behind some wainscoting: there is a piscina and triple sedilia; and an elegant stone screen with loft or gallery between the lady chapel and choir, as well as another and also remarkable stone screen; and two fair parclose screens of wood; the Dorset aisle, or chapel, on the north side of the nave, is the only important addition made to the fabric since 1335, and is believed to have been added by Cicely, Marchioness of Dorset and Countess of Wiltshire, between 1504 and 1530; it has a highly enriched fan-traceried roof, ornamented with pendants and the arms of Oldham and Veysey, bishops of Exeter, and over the entrance are the heraldic bearings of the countess, with crest and supporters, but much mutilated: the exterior cornice is ornamented with the Harington and Stafford knots: on the north side of the nave is a monumental arch, with hanging tracery and a crocketed ogee canopy, beneath which, on a plain altar tomb, is a recumbent effigy of a knight in full armour, and on the south side a similar tomb, with the effigy of a lady, supposed to represent Sir Otho de Grandison, ob. 1364, and Beatrix Malmayns, his wife; both have been restored: in the north aisle is a tomb, with effigy, to John Coke, of Thorne, ob. 1632; and on the north side of the chancel is an altar-tomb, with inscription, to John Haydon esq. of Cadhay, one of the first governors of the Corporation of Ottery St. Mary, ob. 9th March, 1587, and to Joan, his wife, ob. 9th December, 1592; the south porch, erected by him, also bears an inscription to his memory and the date 1618, and on the iron handle are the initials "J. H. 1575"; over the doorway are the royal arms and the inscription, "He that no ill will do, do nothing yt lang yto. J.H.": on the floor of the north aisle are brasses with effigies and inscriptions to John Sherman, gent. 1542; William, his son, 1583; and Richard, his grandson, c. 1620; there are also inscribed stones to Oliver Smith, warden of the college, ob. 4th April, 1543, and to John Guderling, prebendary, ob. 20th December, 1532: the whole of the ancient stained glass was destroyed by the Parliamentary forces in 1645, but many fine modern windows have been inserted, several of which were erected by the Coleridge family: the magnificent font of Devon and Cornish marbles, presented by the late Right Hon. A. J. B. Beresford-Hope P.C., M.P. at the time of the restoration, is supported by a central shaft, with four smaller ones at the corners, and was designed by Mr. Butterfield: the south transept has been adorned with mosaic work by the Lord Chief Justice Coleridge, in memory of his parents, and contains a tomb with recumbent figure in marble, by Thrupp, to Jane Fortescue (Seymour), Baroness Coleridge, d. 6th February, 1878: on the north side are brasses to John Marker, d. 1873, Commander Frederick Abraham Smith R.N. d. 1880 and Lieut. Clement George Whitby, 17th Regiment, killed at the battle of Maiwand, Afghanistan, 27th July, 1880: the church was restored in 1849-50, principally by the influence and liberality of the late Right Hon. Sir John Taylor Coleridge P.C., D.C.L. Justice of the Queen's Bench, his family and friends, Mr. W. Butterfield being the architect: the restoration of the lady chapel was carried out under the supervision of Mr. Woodyear, architect: there are 1,000 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1601; marriages, 1648. The living is a vicarage; the great tithes, value £995 15s. were granted by Henry VIII. to the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and the small tithes and oblations, £250 12s. 10d. are vested in the governors of the goods and hereditaments of the church, for the repairs of the church, vicarage and school house, the maintenance of a chaplain priest, and certain payments to the vicar and schoolmaster; the chief revenues of the church are thus diverted from their proper purpose: the living was in the gift of the Lord Chancellor till 1869, when it was sold under Lord Westbury's Act to William Metcalfe esq.; the gross value is £288 yearly, net £179, with residence, and held since 1900 by the Rev. William Emmanuel Pryke M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, and rural dean of Ottery: the chaplaincy, in the gift of four governors, net yearly value £70, has been held since 1900 by the Rev. William Webber Presdy M.A. of Keble College, Oxford. The chapel of ease, opened in March, 1893, at a cost of £400, for the use of residents in the hamlet and neighbourhood of Wiggaton, has a small vestry, and will seat 100 persons. The Baptist chapel, Batts lane, is a plain edifice of brick with stone dressings, and will seat 350 persons. The Congregational chapel, Jesu street, originally founded in 1662, is a plain structure of brick with 650 sittings. The Wesleyan chapel in Mill street is of red brick and was erected in 1829. The Brethren have a meeting place in Sandhill street. The Salvation Army barracks are behind Sandhill street. The Town Hall was opened in 1853; the F Co. of the 3rd Volunteer Batt. Devonshire Regiment occupy part of the building. The Church Institute, Yonder street, erected in 1896, is a structure of red brick in the Queen Anne style, and comprises class, reading and bagatelle rooms, lavatory &c. In 1897 a large hall for public meetings, entertainments &c. was added, at a total cost of about £1,800, and will seat 250 persons, exclusive of a movable platform. An extensive factory in the town, formerly devoted to the manufacture of ribbons and handkerchiefs of superior quality, is now used for various purposes. There are branches here of the London and South Western Bank and the Devon and Cornwall Banking Company Limited. The weekly market, held on Thursdays, has almost fallen into disuse; great markets are held on the first Thursday in December and the first Thursday in August; a cattle market on the third Tuesday in every month; and fairs on the Tuesday before Palm Sunday, the second Tuesday after Whit Sunday and August 15th.

The Provident Dispensary, established in 1860, is supported by 576 members and voluntary contributions; the average yearly number of patients is now 440. The Ottery St. Mary District Cottage Hospital was established in 1870, at the sole cost of a lady, who resided in the old building; a new building, erected by the same lady in 1881, is available for 13 patients; the freehold of the property has been purchased, and is vested in trustees for the benefit of the neighbourhood, the general management being in the hands of a committee elected by the subscribers; during the year 1900, 61 patients were treated. There are twelve almshouses, and some ancient bequests of considerable amount for the benefit of the poor: certain lands and a sum of £5,812 Consols are vested in twelve feoffees, and produce together about £800 yearly, which is divided among aged and necessitous resident parishioners not receiving parochial relief. In 1869 John Read Taylor esq. left by will £300 Consols vested in the vicar, chaplain and churchwardens, the interest to be expended annually in blankets or other warm clothing, to be given to the destitute poor of the town. In 1897 a square column was erected to commemorate the sixtieth year of the reign of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria. Near here is an excavation known as "Pixies' Parlour," a favourite resort of Samuel Taylor Coleridge, the poet. Chanters House, formerly known as Heath Court, was restored and enlarged in 1883, and is the seat of Lord Coleridge K.C., J.P.; Salston, a beautiful residence, is the seat of William Bennell Coleridge esq. D.L., J.P. The Manor House, adjoining the churchyard, on the north side, retains traces of the original building and is the residence of the Rev. Fredk. Binley Dickinson M.A., J.P. The Right Hon. Sir John Henry Kennaway bart. P.O., M.P. of Escot, is lord of the manor, and holds a court leet in November. The soil is sandy upon a subsoil of gravel. The area is 9,977 acres of land and 31 of water; rateable value, £17,323; and the population in 1891 of the civil parish and urban district was 3,855 and of the ecclesiastical parish 2,626, and of the civil parish and Urban District in 1901, 3,495.

Parish Clerk, William Sladen Wallis.
Sexton, George White.

WIGGATON, 1 mile south, is a hamlet. ALFINGTON, ESCOT, TIPTON ST. JOHN and WEST HILL, hamlets in this civil parish, have been formed into ecclesiastical parishes, and will be found under separate headings.

PAIGNTON is a watering-place, town and parish, and the head of a petty sessional division with a station on the Dartmouth and Torbay branch of the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, constructed in 1859, and is delightfully situated along the shore of Torbay, midway between Torquay and Brixham, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-south-west from Torquay, $5\frac{1}{2}$ north-west from Brixham, 6 east from Totnes and 228 from London, in the Torquay division of the county, hundred of Haytor, union and county court district of Totnes, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The town has risen into notice as a place of resort for invalids on account of the salubrity of its air and its adaptability as a watering-place, the beach affording a fine expanse of firm sand, 1 mile in extent, with an ample supply of bathing machines. There is a promenade pier, 780 feet in length, and at the head an oblong space 146 by 53 feet, on which are constructed a pavilion, refreshment, yacht club and other rooms; the pierhead is also provided with a landing stage: during the summer season concerts and other entertainments are given in the pavilion daily.

The "Local Government Act, 1858" (21 and 22 Vict. c. 98), was adopted July 28, 1863, but under the provisions of the Act of 1894 (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73) the parish is now governed by an Urban District Council of 12 members. The district abounds in extensive orchards, and is celebrated for its cider, of which great quantities are sent to the London, Bristol and other markets. Paignton is supplied with water of excellent quality by the Urban District Council by means of gravitation from the Blagdon valleys; the reservoirs have a capacity of eleven million gallons, but new water works are now (1901) in course of construction to supplement the present supply from Dartmoor, at an estimated cost of £70,000. The Paignton gas works are the property of a company formed in 1861; there are two gasometers, each capable of containing 50,000 feet of gas. The parish church of St. John the Baptist is a fine and ancient cruciform building of stone, chiefly Perpendicular, with remains of Norman and Early English work, including a fine Norman west door, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, two chapels with a piscina in each, transepts (formerly used as chapels), south porch, and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells; the 1st dates from 1737; the 2nd and 5th 1805; the 3rd and 4th were cast in 1748, and the 6th in 1641: the chancel has sedilia reconstructed from portions discovered during the restoration, and there is an ancient stone pulpit, elaborately adorned with carved foliage, the figure of our Lord on the Cross, other figures, and curious coloured devices: the font, an ancient work, is of Purbeck marble, and there is an organ, erected at a cost of £2,000 by Paris Singer esq.: the south transept, or Kirkham chapel, retains a very fine but mutilated stone screen of Perpendicular work, erected by the Kirkhams of Blagdon about 1530; it is richly adorned with tabernacle work and figures in canopied niches, and has a central doorway and two side arches with pendants, and on large canopies above them are angels holding shields; within the two compartments of the screen are four recumbent effigies, c. 1450-1550, supposed to represent members of the Kirkham family; one of these, a knight in armour, has round the neck a double chain with pendent cross; two others are ladies in flowing dresses and mantles; near this chapel were interred the heart and viscera of John Snellin, "rear admiral of Holland and West Friesland," ob. August 23, 1691, and on the wall is an inscription recording the fact, and a shield of arms: in the north aisle of the church is a monument with a cadaver, apparently of the 14th century, but without inscription: the doors and stair to the roof loft remain, but the screens have disappeared: there are memorial windows to the late Rev. R. Gee, formerly vicar, d. 1861; to Elizabeth and Robert Farwell; Rev. T. G. Hall, and members of his family; Diana Dudman; Bessie, the wife of D. J. Jenkins esq. late M.P. for Falmouth; Eleanor Holdsworth; Captain Dick R.N. d. 1871; to James Lyde, d. 1844, and Anne, his wife, d. 1860, and James, their son, d. 1877; and to Mary, wife of the Rev. F. W. Poland, late vicar: the chancel was restored by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners in 1864, since which date the whole structure has been restored under the direction of the late Mr. Ewan Christian, architect, of London: the roofs of the chancel and tower have been decorated: there are 900 sittings. The churchyard contains the steps and shaft of the ancient churchyard cross, the arms and head of which were restored in 1895 by the contributions of the children attending the church. The registers date from the year 1559, and a list of all the vicars from 1260 is preserved in the church. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Marldon annexed, joint net yearly value (nominally) £400, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Idlesleigh and J. G. E. Templer esq. the former having one turn and the latter two turns, and held since 1892 by the Rev. John Trelawny Ross D.D. of Trinity College, Dublin, rural dean of Ipplepen, and surrogate. St. Andrew's church in the Sands road, erected in 1893-7, at an estimated cost of about £8,000, is a building of local red rock, with Box ground stone dressings externally, and Hamhill stone dressings internally, in the French Gothic style of the 14th century, from designs by Messrs. Fulford, Tait and Harvey, architects, of Exeter, and consists of chancel, with side chapel and vestries, nave and tower: the flooring of the chancel is laid in marble mosaic, and that of the sanctuary in Devonshire marble: the pulpit of marble, richly carved, was executed by Hems, of Exeter: the roofs of the chancel and chapel are of oak, and that of the tower has groined stone vaulting.

Christ Church is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1889 from the civil parish of Paignton; the church, erected in 1886-8, at a cost of £7,088, is a cruciform building of sandstone in the Early English style, consisting at present only of apsidal chancel, transepts, nave and narthex porch: the lectern consists of a brass eagle, with hand-wrought plumage, perched on a block of rough-hewn Dartmoor granite, on a base of polished material of the same kind: there are sittings for 750 persons. The register dates from the year 1888. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £230, in the gift of the Peache trustees, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Theodore Cameron Wilson; Mrs. Disney Robinson, having given half the endowment, had the first right of presentation. The Bethel Congregational church, erected in 1875-6, from designs by G. S. Bridgman, at a cost of £2,475, is a building of stone with a tower, and has attached Sunday schools: the chapel affords 650 sittings. The Baptist chapel, erected in 1882, is in Winner street, and will seat 250 persons; the site, valued at £200, was presented by the late Miss Tozer. The Wesleyan Methodist chapel, in Palace avenue, was erected in 1895-6, and will seat 200 persons. The Brethren have a preaching room in Gerston place, erected in 1888, and seating 200 persons. The Salvation Army Barracks are in Princes street. The Cemetery, at Collyend, was formed in 1881, at a cost of £1,000; it has now an area of about 2 acres, an addition of 2 acres being made in 1901, at a further cost of £1,300: there are two chapels, and the cemetery is under the control of the Urban District Council, acting as the Burial Board. At St. Mary's Hill (late The Quarry) is the Novitiate of the Marist Fathers, established in 1881, for the training of missionary students for the Catholic Church missions in England, Ireland, America and New Zealand. The Catholic church of Our Lady of Immaculate Conception, erected in 1883-4, from designs by the Rev. Father de Rosier, is a building of red local stone with white brick dressings in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel and nave, and a porch at the north-east angle: at the east end is a statue of the Virgin. This is now used as a private church only, the church of "The Sacred Heart of Jesus," situated at Colley End, being the public church for the Catholics of Paignton.

The Town Hall, in New street, built in 1869-70, is a building of local stone, and comprises a court-room, in which petty sessions and the meetings of the Urban District Council are held; bi-monthly meetings of the County Court are now held here, instead of at Churston as formerly; here also are the Urban District Council offices. The Masonic Hall, in Courtland road, is a plain building of stone, erected in 1892. The police station, in Palace avenue, erected in 1897, at a cost of about £4,000, comprises court room for magistrates' meetings, cells, and apartments for the local staff. The Public Hall in Palace avenue, erected in 1890, is a building of local dressed stone with sittings for 800 persons, and is used for dramatic entertainments and concerts. The new buildings of the Young Men's Christian Association, in Palace avenue, erected in 1893 at a cost of about £2,000, comprise reading rooms, a gymnasium and other rooms, and are also used as a seaside home for young men recovering from illness. The School of Science and Art, in New-street, formerly the Temperance Hall, was built in 1882-3 at a cost of about £400, and subsequently enlarged. The principal hotels are the Esplanade hotel, which stands in its own grounds facing the sea, the Gerston hotel, adjoining the Railway station, and the Commercial hotel, Dartmouth road. At the Crown and Anchor hotel, now pulled down, Prince William of Orange-Nassau, afterwards William III. slept on the second night of his landing in Tor Bay, November 6, 1688. The Paignton Club, established in 1881, is a building in the Classic style, relieved in front by six columns supporting a balcony, from which is obtained an excellent view of Tor Bay: it is a social and non-political institution, to which visitors are admitted by introduction as temporary members. The early closing day on Wednesday. The Cottage Hospital in the "Crofts," erected and endowed by Messrs. A. M. and W. M. G. Singer, contains 11 beds. New recreation grounds, including a pavilion and grand stand, were completed in 1901 by the Urban District Council, at a cost of about £10,000; they adjoin the Torbay road, and are laid out for cricket, tennis, football and bowls. Among the charitable bequests are Peter's gift of 20s.; Kelly's gift of 6s. 8d. yearly for the poor; and Matthew Neck's of £4, left in 1709, to be divided at Christmas between 20 poor people; 20s. left by Thomas Butland in 1725, and 20s. left by John Gardner in 1751, are for the purpose of buying Bibles for poor children; William Furneaux, in 1720, bequeathed 20s. annually for poor persons having no parish pay; Moggridge's charity is of 27s. annually; the principal charity is Belfield's gift, left in 1800, and consisting of the proceeds arising from £1,000 Consols, formerly applied by trustees to the endowment of a school for 20 poor children, but now granted in the form of exhibitions to deserving children, who have attended the public elementary schools in the town. With the exception of Butland's bequest, administered by executors, and Gardner's and Moggridge's, administered by the vicar and churchwardens, these charities are consolidated and administered by feoffees.

Oldway, a mansion of white brick with Portland stone dressings, in the Classic style, standing in a small tastefully laid out park commanding a splendid view of Tor Bay and surrounding country, was erected at enormous expense by the late I. M. Singer esq. and comprises a large and richly-decorated drawing room, 86 feet by 30, and a theatre seating 300 guests: the entrance porch is inclosed by a conservatory reaching a height of over 60 feet; the house is now occupied by Paris E. Singer esq. Redcliff Towers, built by the late Col. R. Smith C.B. and now the property of P. E. Singer esq. is a mansion of singular appearance, principally in the Oriental style, and consists of a massive round tower, with two wings; it is situated on the shore of Tor Bay and commands a good view of the bay, Torquay, Berry Head and Brixham, at present (1901) unoccupied. Paignton was held at an early period by the Bishops of Exeter, who had a palace here, the remains of which are still standing near the church and are surrounded by a crenellated wall, which is a prominent object on approaching the town from the south: the chief feature is the south-east tower, a work of the 14th century, restored and made habitable a few years ago by Col. Ridgway, of Shepleigh Court, who then held the property, and commonly known as the "Bible Tower," from the fact that Bishop Myles Coverdale, consecrated in 1551, and whose translation of the Bible into English had been published in 1536, was the last Bishop to occupy the tower as a residence, previous to its being dismantled. Major John Harlowe-Turner J.P. is the present owner. H. Conway Belfield esq. Robert Butland esq. the Rev. J. W. Distin, the trustees of the late Arthur Hyde Dendy, George Hutchings esq. Washington G. M. Singer esq. John Trist Bailey esq. The Rev. James Lyde Hunt, of Dartmouth, Mrs. Jackson, and Mrs. Leaman, are the principal landowners. The parish contains 5,175 acres of land and 134 of foreshore; rateable value, £46,200; the population of the civil parish and urban district in 1881 was 4,610, and in 1891, 6,783, and of the ecclesiastical parishes: viz. Paignton, 5,961; Christ Church, 983.

PRESTON is a hamlet, three-quarters of a mile north from the parish church.

FERNHAM hamlet adjoins Paignton.

GOODRINGTON hamlet is $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south.

COLLATON is ecclesiastical, formed in 1864 from Paignton, and will be found under a separate heading.

PANCRASWEEK (or Wyke St. Pancras) is a parish on the borders of Cornwall, $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles west from Holsworthy station on a branch of the London and South Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Black Torrington, Holsworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Pancras is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, north transept, south porch and a lofty embattled western tower with crocketed pinnacles containing 5 bells, the first two dated 1721, the fourth 1634, and the fifth 1637; the third bears the legend, "Voce mea viva depello cuncta nociva": a hagioscope and rood loft stairs still remain, but the fine screen once here has disappeared, and is said to have been removed to a neighbouring church: in 1894 the church was entirely new roofed: there are 350 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1694; marriages, 1696. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the vicarage of Bradworthy, with 8 acres of glebe and a small cottage, and is in the gift of the Crown. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel, erected in 1838, seating 240 persons, with a Sunday school, and burial ground adjoining. Lieut.-Col. Sir William Lewis Stucley Stucley bart. Mrs. Vincent Calmady, of Hartland Abbey, Bideford, and Earl Stanhope F.S.A. are the chief landed proprietors. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and roots. The area is 4,613 acres of land and 26 of water; rateable value, £1,933; the population in 1901 was 347.

By Local Government Board Order 14,690, Little Sutcombe was transferred from Sutcombe to this parish, March 24, 1884.

PARKHAM is a parish and village on the small river Yeo, and is bounded on the north by Barnstaple Bay, 7 miles south-west from Bideford station on the Torrington branch of the London and South Western railway, in the North Western division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Bideford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Hartland, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. James is an edifice of stone of the 15th century, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, of Perpendicular date, with pinnacles and containing 6 bells, all cast in 1778: there are four stained windows, an enriched Norman door and a font of the same period: the north aisle was erected by the Risdon family, of Bableigh, in this parish, and in the aisle is a slab inscribed on one side to Giles Risdon, gent. ob. 21st April, 1583, æt. 90, and on the other to Grace, wife of Giles Risdon, of Bableigh, ob. 10th February, 1676, and Katherine, wife of the same, ob. 11th September, 1682: there are also various inscriptions from 1595 to 1712, to the ancient family of Giffard, of Halsbury, ancestors of present Lord Halsbury, Lord Chancellor, 1885-92; one of these is on a stone bearing on the proper obverse side an inscription to Katherine, wife of Thomas Moncke, of Pudderydye esq. ob. 2nd November, 1595: in the south aisle is a flat stone with an enriched margin and incised floriated cross, surrounded by an inscription in old English lettering to Richard—, ob. 14-6: the church was restored in 1875, and has 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £500, inclusive of 127 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1889 by the Rev. Robert William John Smart M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford. There are two Wesleyan chapels, one in the village and one at Holwell, and a Bible Christian chapel at Goldworthy, one mile distant. The Barton of Halsbury, from which the present Lord Chancellor derives his title, went from the family of that name to the Giffards by marriage in the reign of Edward I. Halsbury now belongs to T. Rogers esq. by purchase from the Lees, who bought it of the Davies family, to whom the Giffards sold it. Bableigh, once a residence of the Risdons, was sold in 1760 to Mr. Hiern. One-third of the manor belongs to the Hon. Mark G. K. Rolle, of Stevenstone; another third, once in the Molesworths, has been sold in parcels. The Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle, Trehawke Kekewich esq. of Peamore, Exeter; Major James Morrison Kirkwood, of Yeo Vale, Alvington, Bideford; Mrs. Pine-Coffin, of Portledge and Kenwith, Abbotsham, Bideford; and Thomas Rogers esq. of Orleigh Court, Buckland Brewer, Bideford, are the chief landowners. The soil is various; subsoil, clay. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area is 5,924 acres of land and 92 of foreshore; rateable value, 3,291; the population in the civil parish in 1901 was 797.

By Local Government Board Order 14,829, detached parts of Buckland Brewer, known as Howley and Green Hill, were added to this parish, March 25, 1885, for civil purposes.

PARRACOMBE is a village and parish among the hills, on the high road from Lynton to Barnstaple, with a station about a quarter of a mile south from the village, on the new line between Barnstaple and Lynton, and is 5 miles south-west from Lynton, 11 north-east from Barnstaple and 12 east-south-east from Ilfracombe, in the North Western division of the county, Sherwell hundred, Braunton petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwell, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. Christ Church, erected in 1878, at a cost of £4,000, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, 2 of which are ancient bells removed from the old church: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. John Pyke, a former rector; and there is another window in the chancel to Richard Dovell esq. of Middleton. The old church of St. Peter, an ancient structure in the Norman and Early English styles, was restored in 1892, and is now used as a mortuary chapel, and for occasional services in the summer months; it retains an ancient chancel screen, the rood beam of which was taken down in 1780, and used to make seat ends. The register dates from the year 1687. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £280, including 63 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of C. E. R. Chanter esq. of Broadmead, Barnstaple, and held since 1886 by the Rev. John Frederick Chanter M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1830. The common, which consisted of 900 acres, was inclosed in 1860. A fair was formerly held on the 18th of August, for the sale of cattle and sheep, and there are still monthly sales of stock at Blackmoor Gate and Martinhoe Cross. Paracombe anciently belonged to the Fitzmartins, and from them in the 11th century to the St. Albans, and remained in the hands of that family until 1840, when the manor having been gradually dismantled, the remaining portions were sold by Langley St. Aubyn esq. of Alfoxton, Somerset, to the late Rev. I. Pyke, rector of the parish. The principal landowners are I. N. Pyke-Nott esq. Mrs.

PAYHEMBURY is a parish and village, on the Tale, a tributary of the river Otter, 2 miles north from Sidmouth Junction station on the London and South Western railway, 5 north from Ottery St. Mary, 6 west from Honiton and 14 north-east from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Hayridge hundred, Culmpton petty sessional division, Honiton union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary, anciently belonging to Ford Abbey, is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave with four bays, north aisle, north porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells: the chancel was restored and a stained window erected in 1852, in memory of the Rev. Timothy Terry Jackson, vicar here from 1810, by Mrs. Catherine Messiter, in the chancel: in the spandrels of a window are the initials "T.C." and a pastoral staff with the letter "C," perhaps for Timothy Chard, last abbot of Ford; the arms of Courtenay appear on one of the pillars: a very fine wood screen, painted and gilt and bearing the Bouchier knot and the arms of Courtenay, Ferrers and Malherbe, divides the chancel from the nave, and there is another in the north aisle: the rood loft stairs also remain: there are monuments to Mrs. Dorothy Goswill and the Rev. Timothy Terry, 1745: the vestry was built in 1887 and contains a list of rectors and vicars from 1236: there are 280 sittings. In the churchyard is a yew tree, which appears to be several centuries old, the trunk of which has been split in four, apparently by lightning. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1559; burials, 1678. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £196, including 81 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the trustees, and held since 1864 by the Rev. George Terry Moulton Messiter-Terry M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The great tithes Beavis and Sir Charles T. Dyke Acland bart. of Killerton, and the representatives of the Park family, but many of the farms are held by small freeholders. The estate called East Middleton was formerly the property of Sir H. Bernefield, temp. Henry III. Richard Ferris, of Barnstaple, was owner in 1620, and by his will, dated 1646, he gave £10 per annum from it to a schoolmaster at Barnstaple and £20 per annum for binding apprentices in the town of Barnstaple. These annuities are still paid. There are several prehistoric remains in the parish, the most remarkable of which is the curious circular camp with double fosse called "Holwell Castle," also some very fine barrows on the hill called "Chapman Barrows," which is about 1,600 feet high, and the highest point on Western-le-Moor. The soil is gravelly loam; subsoil, slate and sandstone. The chief crops are pasture, oats and barley. The parish includes the hamlets of Heale, 2 miles north-west, and Bodley, a quarter mile north; the area is 4,450 acres; assessable value, £2,171; the population in 1901 was 318.

belong to Mrs. Campbell Bouverie Wyndham. The charities amount to £30 yearly. Edmund Frost in 1871 left £107 15s. 8d. in Consols, the interest to the poor in clothing or fuel. The view from the old Roman encampment of Hembury Fort is extensive. Leyhill is now the property of the vicar. Higher Leyhill is the property of E. Reginald Tweed M.D. The manor belonged in the reign of Henry III. to the family of Giffard, ancestors of Lord Halsbury, and the manor of Morden, together with the manor of Tale, once held by Ford Abbey, belongs to the Right Hon. Sir John H. Kennaway bart. P.C.; the latter, after the Dissolution, was successively in the families of Goodwin and Saunderson and of several others before it was purchased by its present owners. The Right Hon. Sir John Henry Kennaway bart. P.C., M.P., V.D., D.L., J.P. of Escot, Arthur Charles E. Locke esq. of The Grange, Honiton, William Warren esq. of Cokesputt, J. Hancock esq. of Exeter, Mrs. Campbell B. Wyndham and the vicar are chief landowners. The soil is sandy; subsoil, clay, sand and stonebrash. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, roots and pasturage. The area is 2,736 acres; rateable value, £3,346; the population in 1901 was 415.

PETERS MARLAND is a parish and village, on the high road from Torrington to Hatherleigh, 6 miles south from Torrington station of a branch of the London and South Western railway and 12½ south from Bideford, in the Northern division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Torrington petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Torrington, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Peter, rebuilt in 1865, at the sole expense of J. C. Moore-Stevens esq. is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 5 bells, of which the first is dated 1664; the 2nd, 1759; the 3rd has an inscription in Old English letters; the 4th a prayer to the Virgin in Lombardic capitals; the tenor was cast by Warner, of London, in 1865, when the whole peal was re-hung: some old brasses remain: the stained east window is a memorial to the Ven. J. Moore-Stevens, Archdeacon of Exeter, who died in 1865, and was placed by his son, J. O. Moore-Stevens esq. of Winscott, who also erected two other windows in memory of his children: the church was restored in 1875-91 at a cost of £920, and affords 150 sittings. There is a lych gate on the south side of the churchyard. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1696; marriages, 1697. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £46, with residence and 15 acres of glebe, in the gift of J. C. Moore-Stevens esq. A Bible Christian chapel was erected in 1870. Cleveland's charity amounts to £5 yearly and a farm producing about £31 yearly. Here are the works of the North Devon Clay Co. Limited, of Torrington; the products of these works are conveyed to Torrington by a tram line seven miles in length and in direct communication with the L. and S. W. railway. The manor was at an early period in the family of Marshall (ancestors of J. P. Sydenham Marshall esq. of Barnstaple), from which it passed to the Northcotes (Earls of Iddesleigh) and Arvingtons, who also owned Little Dunsford in this county. Twigg is the only manor now known here, and it belongs to E. J. Oldham esq. of Hatherleigh. John Curzon Moore-Stevens esq. D.L., J.P. is the owner of and resides at Winscott, and is also improprator of the great tithes, which formerly belonged to the priory of Frithelstock. The land is all freehold. E. J. Oldham esq. J. C. Moore-Stevens esq. The Misses Wren, of Lenwood, Bideford and Lord Clinton are chief landowners. The soil is various; the subsoil is clay and rock. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,538 acres; rateable value, £1,746; the population in 1901 was 297.

By Local Government Board Order, 14,971, Alscoth was transferred from Langtree to this parish, March 24, 1884.

PETER TAVY (or St. Peter Tavy) is a parish and village on the river Tavy and near the high road from Plymouth to Okehampton, 2½ miles south-east from Mary Tavy station on the Launceston branch of the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 17 north from Plymouth and 3 north-east from Tavistock, in the Western division of the county, Roborough hundred, Tavistock petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Cudliptown, formerly a detached part of Tavistock, was by Local Government Board Order 15,033, March 25, 1885, added to Peter tavy; Sortridge, formerly a detached portion of this parish, being at the same time amalgamated with that of Whitchurch. The church of St. Peter is an ancient building of stone in the Early English and Late Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south transept, south porch and an embattled western tower, with crocketed pinnacles, containing 6 bells: the font is of granite, with an octagonal basin ornamented with a carving of two keys in saltire: the stained east window is a memorial to Thomas Gibbons, late rector, and was presented in 1872 by his widow and son: in the chancel is a mural tablet with arms, to Thomas Pocock, 40 years rector, ob. 1722: some portions of the rood screen, now placed at the west end of the church, retains various figures of saints; the tower screen of oak, which has carved grotesques, is probably constructed from old wainscoting; the tower was struck by lightning, 2nd November, 1803, and the pinnacles much damaged; it was repaired in 1827: there are 200 sittings. The churchyard contains tombstones of the Drake and Cole families, and on the south side of the church is a massive slab on four rudely carved supports, inscribed to Walter Cole, ob. 1663. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1674; marriages and burials, 1679. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £235, with residence and 73 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Francis John Bryant D.D. of Wadham College, Oxford. Here is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. The Duke of Bedford is lord of the manor and chief landowner. There are also many small freeholders. The land is chiefly in pasture. The soil is loamy; subsoil, rock and gravel. The area is 9,435 acres of land and 25 of water; rateable value, £3,302; the population in 1891 was 350 in the civil and 279 in the ecclesiastical parish.

GODSWORTHY is 1 mile east-by-south.

NORTH PETHERWIN is a village and parish 3 miles north from Egloskerry station on the London and South Western railway and 5 north-west from Launceston, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Lifton petty sessional division, Launceston union and county court district, rural deanery of Trigg Major, archdeaconry of Bodmin and diocese of Truro. The church of St. Paternus is an ancient edifice in the Norman and later styles, consisting of chancel, with north aisle, separated from it by an arcade of 2 arches, clerestoried nave, north aisle with arcade of five arches, north and south porches and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, and containing 5 bells, all recast by John Pennington and Co. in 1779: the three piers of the north aisle of the nave are Norman work, with Pointed arches, over which are Early English clerestory windows: there are the remains of an original cruciform church: the chancel is Early English with inserted Perpendicular windows: the tower and north porch are of the 14th century; the chancel aisle, the south aisle of the nave, and the south porch with its original iron scroll work hinges are early 16th century work: one third of the lower part of the ancient screen and two parcloes exist, and date from about 1530: the pulpit and the screens of the organ chamber and vestry are very fine examples of modern oak carving: two of the windows are stained, and there are numerous mural ornaments to the Yeo and Seacombe families: the church was restored in 1876 by the 9th Duke of Bedford K.G. at a cost of over £3,000: in 1880 an organ was erected, at a cost of £233, and in 1890 a reredos and altar table of carved oak, painted and gilt, and executed by the present vicar, was also added: the church affords 180 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £180, including 159 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Duke of Bedford, and held since 1867 by the Rev. Thomas Braithwaite Trentham B.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. There is a Wesleyan chapel in the village and another at Brassacot; Bible Christian chapels at Navarino and at Maxworthy, and a Free Methodist chapel at Copthorne. There are charities of 10s. a year for a sermon to be preached on New Year's day, and 10s. for the poor. The Duke of Bedford, who is lord of the manor, Richard Hawke esq. and Mr. John Reed are the principal landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil, clay and slate rock. The chief crop is oats, and there is some pasture. The area is 8,195 acres of land and 13 of water; rateable value, £4,619; the population in 1901 was 682.

PETROCKSTOW (or Stow St. Petrock) is a parish and village, on the road from Hatherleigh to Torrington, 7½ miles south-by-east from Torrington station on a branch of the London and South Western railway and 4½ north-north west from Hatherleigh, and in the Northern division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Torrington petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Torrington, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Petrock is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 5 bells: there are several monuments to the Rolle and other families, including a brass to Henry, 4th son of George Rolle esq. of Stevenstone, and his wife, Margaret (Yeo), ob. 1591, with kneeling effigies of both and of their ten sons and nine daughters, shields of arms and inscriptions: the carved oak reredos, erected in 1866, is a memorial: in 1888 a window was placed to Mr. Moase, formerly of Petrockstow, who died in America; there is another erected in 1891 to Louis Woolcombe M.A. rector, 1845-83, d. 1889, and one to his widow and daughter, 1895; the font is Norman, but has a cover of Perpendicular date: in 1895 an organ was provided at a cost of £120: the church was entirely rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1879-80 at a cost of upwards of £2,000, and in 1887 the tower was re-roofed and repaired throughout, under the direction of Mr. Hooper, of Hatherleigh, at a cost of £600: the church has 250 sittings: the churchyard was laid out, fenced and planted in 1887. The register dates from the year 1597. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £174, including 45 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Lord Clinton, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Ernest Walter Field M.A. of Oriol College, Oxford, who is also rural dean of Torrington, and chaplain to Lord Clinton. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The ancient manor house was burnt down many years ago, and the present handsome mansion, called "Heanton Satchville," which stands in the adjoining parish of Huish is the seat of Lord Clinton M.A., J.P.; the old house was for some time the seat of the Rolles and the Walpoles, Earls of Oxford. Lord Clinton is lord of the manor and principal landowner; Wood house is the property of Samuel Bonifant esq. The soil is dun land; the subsoil is clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The acreage is 4,288, including

PILTON is a parish and village, partly included in the municipal borough of Barnstaple, and separated from Barnstaple by the river Yeo, over which is a bridge and causeway, 800 feet in length, in the North Western division of the county, Braunton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, anciently the church of the Benedictine priory here, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave (part of the ancient priory church), aisles, south porch and an embattled eastern tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and a fine peal of 8 bells, dating from 1712 to 1853: from an inscription over the porch it appears that a large portion of the tower was pulled down during the Civil War of 1646, and that it was restored in 1696. The church contains a handsomely carved stone pulpit, with an arm attached to it holding a stand for an hour-glass; in the church is a flat stone with an inscription in old English characters to Richard Chichester esq. ob. December, 1498, and in the south chapel is a large and massive tomb to Sir John Chichester kt. ob. November 30, 1569, and Gertrude (Courtenay), his wife, ob. April 30, 1566: on the north side of the chancel is an altar tomb, with effigies to Sir Robert Chichester K.B. ob. 1627: there are also brass inscriptions to Alexander Bret, ob. July 14, 1536, and Robert Bret, ob. September 12, 1540, and to Thomas Salmon, d. 1818: there is a finely carved chancel screen and an elaborate oak screen between the chancel and south chapel, both with panels bearing the linen pattern: the ancient octagonal font has a canopied cover of carved oak of the 15th century: the chancel retains a piscina and in the west wall of the nave is an aumbry: the porch has an ancient stoup: the church was restored in 1873-90 at a cost of £1,261, and affords 500 sittings. The registers date from the year 1569. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £208, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1802 by the Rev. William Henry Morris Bagley M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. There are several almshouses, and charities producing about £160 yearly. Here was anciently a Benedictine Priory, which in 1261 and previously was a cell to the Abbey of Malmsbury; at the Dissolution there were three monks, and revenues estimated at £6. Messrs. J. E. Baylis & Co.'s glove manufactory, employing about 150 hands, and the reservoir of the Barnstaple Water Works are in this parish. Pilton House, the property of Charles Henry Basset esq. D.L., J.P. is now in the occupation of Mrs. Hugh Chichester; Upcott, the property of Sir William Robert Williams bart. of Heanton Punchardon, is now (1901) occupied by Ernest Joseph Soares esq. LL.D., M.P. The Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolie is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is very rich on the hill slopes, and gravel with clay in the valleys; subsoil, slate.

The area of East Pilton is 477 acres; assessable value, £4,785; the population in 1891 was 1,617.

The area of West Pilton is 1,207 acres; assessable value, £2,684; the population in 1891 was 555.

PINHOE is a pleasant village and parish, with a station, about 1 mile south-east from the village, on the main line of the London and South Western railway, and is $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east from Exeter and 168 from London, in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred and petty ses- sional division of Wonford, union of St. Thomas, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Early Per- pendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch, and an embattled western tower, containing 6 bells: the first bears a legend in Latin, the two next are respectively dated 1691 and 1655: and the tenor has the admonition "Pres not thy self": two treble bells were added in 1894 and bear the inscriptions "Alleluia" and "Peace be unto you": the nave and chancel are separated by a fine carved oak screen, groined, and consisting of eight bays, and restored by Hems and Sons, of Exeter; the oaken alms-box bears the figure of a serving man, in the costume of the last century, and supporting him- self with a stick in one hand, the other being extended for alms: there is also a highly enriched wood pulpit: a new organ was erected in 1880 at a cost of £210: the church was thoroughly restored in 1880 at a cost of £1,700 and will seat 200 persons: in the churchyard, opposite the porch, is a large stone cross on a pedestal of the 14th century. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £180, with 13 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1863 by the Rev. Frederick William Pulling B.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners and the vicar are owners of the rec- torial tithes. There is a Mission Church in connection with the parish church, and a Baptist chapel erected in 1887. In 1655, £175, given by Grace Bampfied and others, was laid out in the purchase of a house and 13 acres of land at Broadclyst, now let for about 30 guineas yearly; five-ninths of the rent of this estate belong to the poor of Pinhoe, and the rest to the poor of Stoke Canon and Thorverton parishes. The poor of Pinhoe also have £4 10s. yearly, being the rent of two acres, left by Humphrey Wilcocks in 1686, and £6 6s. 8d. from £230 8s. £2 $\frac{1}{2}$ per Cent. Consols, purchased with £200 left by John Land in 1817; they have also two yearly rent-charges for educa- tional purposes, viz. £1 (and 3s. a year for bread), left by John Sanders in 1720 and £2 left by Sir John Elwill. John Reynolds or Rainolds D.D. a learned divine and emi- nent controversial writer, was born here about 1550; he was sometime Dean of Lincoln and subsequently president of Corpus Christi college, Oxford, and having greatly distinguished himself at the Hampton Court Conference in 1603, was selected by King James, with other learned men of his time, to translate the scriptures from the origi- nal Hebrew into the English language; he died 21st May, 1607. In 1001 King Ethelred was defeated here with great slaughter by the Danes, who burnt Pinhoe, Broadclyst and other neighbouring villages. In remembrance of this event, a pension of a mark (13s. 4d.) a year is still received by the vicar of the parish. On Beacon Hill, a commanding spot near the church, are several houses. The manor was part of the royal demesne, and is inscribed in Domesday Book as containing the farms of Monkerton, Pinpound, Langaton, Harrington and Wootton; it was successively held by the De Vallibus, Multon, Strech, Cheney, Wal- grove, Elwill, and other families. Lord Poltimore P.C. who is lord of the manor, Capt. Sir Frederick E. W. Hervey- Bathurst bart. of Somborne Park, Stockbridge, and Frederick William Arundel Sanders, Henry Wilcocks and Robert Dunsford esqrs. are the chief landowners. The soil is various; subsoil, red sandstone and clay. The chief crops are cereals and grass. The area is 1,757 acres; rateable value, £6,469; the population in 1901 was 952.

PLYMOUTH, STONEHOUSE AND DEVONPORT.

"THE THREE TOWNS."

THESE towns occupy a site, about $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles in length, on the shores of the Hamoaze and Plymouth Sound, between the estuaries of the Tamar and Plym, and form in appearance one large town; the streets of the two former are mutually continuous, and both are united to Devonport and its suburbs by bridges across the Stonehouse creek. From the ramparts of the Citadel of Plymouth, situated at the eastern end of the Hoe, commanding views of the whole, with the surrounding country and the harbour, may be obtained; to the east, across the Cattewater, the estuary of the Plym, is the promontory of Mount Batten, with its round embattled tower, a relic of the siege of 1623, and beyond it the high grounds of Plymstock, Hooe, Staddon and Bovisand, and the Mewstone rock: the Cattewater itself is a harbour sufficiently large to hold 1,000 vessels, and the northern portion of this estuary above the bridge, called "the Laira," has the aspect of a fine lake. Below the Citadel is the Barbican, an ancient portion of the harbour, and Sutton Pool; here was the old trading quarter, and the neighbouring waters are still alive with merchant shipping and fishing craft. To the north stretches the town, the towers of St. Andrew's church and the Municipal buildings, and the spire of Charles church, rising conspicuously from the mass of houses, beyond the fringe of which, northwards, are seen the buildings of H.M. Prison, the Plymouth Cemetery, and in the far distance the bold outline of Brent Tor. Immediately west of the Citadel is the Hoe, a noble and historically famous public promenade, laid out on the summit of a bold limestone cliff overlooking the Sound; further westward lies the harbour of Millbay and the Great Western Docks, on the high ground above which stand the extensive buildings of the Royal Naval Hospital: beyond these, on the western bank of Stonehouse lake, may be noticed the buildings and grounds of the Royal Military Hospital, and the tower of the old church of Stoke Damerel rising behind them: the peninsula south-west of Millbay is seen to be wholly covered by the great establishment known as the Royal William Victualling Yard, between which and Stonehouse bridge stands out the church of St. Paul, the Royal Marine barracks and St. George's church, almost next the bridge; on the other side the pool lies Devonport, encompassed by the fortifications and open space, called "the Lines"; the eastern quarter of the town includes the eminence and grounds of Mount Wise, the western portion, the Dockyard, and to the north lies the Keyham Steam yard, the Morice Town district, and the pleasant suburb of Stoke, while from out the expanse of houses and barracks rises boldly the tall Devonport column and the spires of various churches. Away to the westward is Hamoaze, the famous estuary of the Tamar, Lynher and Tavy, a splendid land-locked haven, where the great ships of the Royal Navy can ride safely at anchor at all states of the tide, and turning southward the eye ranges over the peninsula of the Cornish shore, which includes the beautiful park of Mount Edgcumbe; next the far-famed Plymouth Sound, with St. Nicholas' or Drake's Island, now strongly fortified; and in the distance, and directly fronting the town, is the Breakwater, the seaward boundary of the anchorage, and the Eddystone lighthouse, 14 miles south-west, may be seen in clear weather. Being the important Government station it is, the whole is strongly fortified both on the sea front and on sites some two miles inland.

The neighbouring country is very attractive, and includes a great variety of hill and dale, tor and ravine, wood and water, besides many charms peculiar to the locality. Being within easy distance of an important mining district, near the lovely banks of the river Tamar, the beautiful scenery of Mount Edgcumbe, and the wonderful Breakwater, and close to the extensive Government establishments, it offers many objects of interest to the tourist. After a visit to Mount Edgcumbe, and a stroll to the fine open bay beyond Rame Head, charming excursions may be made by steamboats up the Tamar and its tributary, the Tavy; the former is crossed at Saltash by the Royal Albert bridge of the Cornwall railway, one of Brunel's masterpieces of engineering; above Saltash the scenery of the winding river is varied and lovely in the extreme, and on its banks are Pentillie Castle, Cothele, a 15th century mansion of the Edgcumbes, with a small votive chapel by the river side, and the grand cliffs of Morwell 300 feet in height; the Tavy brings the tourist to the parks and mansions of Warleigh and Maristow, the interesting churches of Bear Ferrars and Tamerton Foliot, the ruins of Buckland Abbey, and the quiet town of Tavistock, 15 miles by rail, remains of the abbey of which still exist: the Plym, not less attractive, flows through the romantic scenery of the Bickleigh Valley, and from Shaugh bridge to Cadworthy, is a foaming torrent plunging through a wild and rock-strewn gorge; and here affording the strongest contrast to the desolate aspect of its source, in the sullen waters of Cranmere Pool, 2,000 feet above the sea level.

The three towns are served both by the Great Western and the London and South Western railways: each town maintains its own poor, and all are in the Western division of the county, Roborough hundred and petty sessional division, East Stonehouse county court district, rural deanery of the Three Towns, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter.

PLYMOUTH, one of the largest maritime towns in England, is beautifully situated in a valley at the mouth of the river Plym, from which it derives its name, and on the shore of a capacious bay in the estuary of the Plym and Tamar, known as Plymouth Sound, which is protected by the great breakwater. The town is distant from London by road, 216 miles; by London and South Western railway, 230 miles; by Great Western railway, 246 $\frac{1}{2}$; 44 south-west from Exeter, 74 $\frac{1}{2}$ south from Barnstaple, 83 $\frac{1}{2}$ south from Bideford, 52 south-west from Crediton, 15 $\frac{1}{2}$ south from Tavistock, 37 south-west from Teignmouth, 80 from Penzance, 54 from Truro, 129 from Bristol, 186 from Manchester, 197 from Liverpool and 141 from Bath.

Plymouth is a county, municipal and parliamentary borough, and in 1896 the municipal boundaries were extended so as to make them coterminous with the parliamentary boundaries.

Municipal Control.—There were mayors (præpositi) here as early as 1298, but the town was not regularly incorporated till 1439-40, the effect of the Act of Parliament being to free the town from its dependence on the priory of Plympton, and it thereupon assumed the name of "the King's towne of Plymothe." Under the Municipal Reform Act of 1835 the Corporation was re-modelled, and again in 1896, when Compton Gifford was incorporated, and now consists of a mayor, 14 aldermen, 42 councillors, a recorder, town clerk, chamberlain and other officers. The borough is divided for municipal purposes into 14 wards, viz.—Charles, Compton, Drakes, Frankfort, Friary, Greenbank, Hoe, Laira, Millbay, Mutley, St. Andrew's, St. Peter's, Sutton and Vintry. The Corporation has the sole control of the police and of the endowed Grammar School. Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1888," Plymouth has been constituted a county of itself, the Corporation acting as the County Council for certain purposes defined by the Act. The borough has a commission of the peace and a separate court of quarter sessions.

The care of the streets and lighting, paving and sewerage was formerly vested in commissioners empowered by an Act of Parliament of the 5th of George IV. but the functions discharged by them were superseded by the application to the borough of the Public Health Acts of 1848 and 1875, 11 and 12 Vict. c. 63, and 38 and 39 Vict. c. 55, and by the Local Government Act, 1858 (21 and 22 Vict. c. 98), confirmed as regards Plymouth by 24 and 25 Vict. c. 128, 26 and 27 Vict. c. 64, and 28 and 29 Vict. c. 108; under these Acts the town council is constituted the Urban Sanitary Authority, with a clerk, a surveyor and other officers, and great improvements have been effected. The borough is supplied with water from Dartmoor and originally brought into the town by Sir Francis Drake. Electric trams were introduced in 1901, and serve the districts of Compton Gifford and Prince Rock.

The town, under the name of Sutton, sent members to Parliament in the reign of Edward I.; but there was an intermission from the reign of Edward II. to that of Henry VI.; it now sends two members to Parliament.

History.—Plymouth, which formerly belonged to the priory of Plympton, is in Domesday called "Sutton" (i.e. the South Town), and was subsequently divided into Sutton Prior, part of the hamlet of Sutton Valletort, and the tithing of Sutton Ralph; but it had been occasionally called Plymouth as early as the year 1383, although this name did not supplant the older one till about 1439; Leland, who had the authority probably from some monastic record, says that in the reign of Henry II. this town was "a mene thing as an inhabitation for fishers." Before the year 1253, it had grown to be of so much importance that a market was established in it, and in 1287 a fleet of 325 vessels sailed from hence for Guienne. The petition of 1411 describes Plymouth as a great port for the harbour of vessels, and speaks of the town as defenceless, adding that it had been frequently destroyed by the enemy in the time of war. In 1338 the French attacked Plymouth and attempted to burn it, but the place was relieved and the enemy put to flight with great loss by Hugh Courtenay, Earl of Devon: in 1346 the town furnished ships and men for the siege of Calais. In 1350, the French, after burning Teignmouth, again attempted the destruction of Plymouth, but finding it then well defended, they contented themselves with devastating the farms and fair places in the neighbourhood; and in 1355, Edward the Black Prince embarked here on the expedition which ended in the great victory of Poitiers. The town was at length burnt by the French in 1377, plundered by them in 1400, and again plundered and burnt in 1403 by a host of Bretons under the Sieur de Chastel, when 600 houses are said to have been destroyed: after an interval of nearly 30 years, the townsmen obtained, among other privileges, the grant of a toll on all merchandise so as to enable them to build walls and towers and to fortify the town. In 1470 the Duke of Clarence, with the Earls of Pembroke, Warwick and Oxford, landed here with the object of enlisting popular sympathy for the cause of Henry VI. and in 1471-2 Margaret of Anjou came here just previous to the disastrous conflict at Tewkesbury; Catherine of Arragon, the affianced wife of Prince Arthur, but eventually of Henry VIII. arrived here from Spain in 1501 and was sumptuously entertained.

In 1512 an Act of Parliament was passed for fortifying Plymouth and other seaport towns in the west. Leland, who visited it in the reign of Henry VIII. says, "the mouth of the Gulph, where the shippers of Plymouth lyth, is wauld on eche side and chained over in tyme of necessitie"; Westcote says that the island of St. Nicholas (now Drake's Island) was a place of refuge to divers gentlemen in the insurrections of 1549, when it seems that the insurgents plundered and set fire to Plymouth, for he observes that the evidences of the borough were burnt. In 1572 Sir Francis Drake sailed from this port on his expedition to Nombre de Dios, South America, and returning in 1573, anchored on the 9th Aug. in the Sound; in 1582 he was chosen mayor of Plymouth, and to him the town is indebted for its splendid supply of water, a circumstance commemorated at the annual dinners of the Corporation by the toast, "May the descendants of him who gave us water never want wine." In 1579, Sept. 26, he again returned to Plymouth after another successful cruise, and after much other service sailed in Aug. 1595, with Hawkins, on the disastrous expedition which caused his death. From Plymouth also Sir Humphrey Gilbert embarked in 1583, on his ill-fated voyage to Newfoundland. Amongst other circumstances which render this town historically famous is its connection with the Spanish Armada, which appeared off Plymouth about 12 o'clock at noon on July 20th, 1588, under the command of the Duke of Medina Sidona, who, confident of victory, is said to have selected Mount Edgcumbe for his future residence. The port of Plymouth equipped against this formidable fleet 7 ships and 1 fly boat, being a greater number than was furnished by any port except London, and a total fleet of 190 ships, 34 only of which belonged to the Queen, were collected here to oppose the invader. Plymouth was also the grand rendezvous of the fleet previous to the successful expedition to Cadiz, in 1596, when 150 sail assembled in this port, the land forces being mustered and trained every day by their officers; and the united forces set sail on 3rd June, 1596. Plymouth again was one of the centres of activity in the projects for colonizing North America; and a "Plymouth Company" was incorporated for this purpose by James I. and on 6 Sept. 1620, the Pilgrim Fathers set sail in the "Mayflower" from Plymouth Sound. Charles I. visited the town in 1625, and during the whole period of the civil war it was in the hands of the Parliament, who retained it even at a time when every other portion of the west of England was in possession of the Royal forces. Soon after the commencement of the war, the Earl of Ruthven was appointed governor, and Sir Alexander Carew had the command of the fort and the island of St. Nicholas. Various attempts were made by the Royalists to gain possession of this important post. Sir Ralph Hopton appeared before it in the month of December, 1642, but was driven from his quarters by Henry (Grey) 1st Earl of Stamford: in the following September, Sir Alexander Carew, being convicted of a design to betray his trust, was sent a prisoner to London, and suffered death on Tower Hill in 1644. About the beginning of September, 1643, Colonel Digby was sent with a considerable force of horse and foot to blockade it, and fixing his head quarters at Plymstock, established batteries at Oreston and Mount Batten and a guard at Hcoe; early in October an attack was made on Mount Stamford, but the guard at Hcoe was defeated with much loss on the 8th by a sortie from the garrison, about which time Prince Maurice, having captured Dartmouth, advanced with his whole army to besiege Plymouth, his head quarters being at Widey House, and his army stationed at Plympton, Plymstock, Cawsand, Egg Buckland and Tamerton: on the 3rd December the Royalists captured a fort at Lory Point, but were repulsed by the garrison in a sally, and the fort was retaken: on the 18th of the same month an attempt was made to storm the town; the attacking force appears to have been repulsed with great loss, and the siege was raised on the 25th: amongst the Devonshire officers engaged in the siege were the Earl of Marlborough, Sir Thomas Hele, Sir Edmund Fortescue and Sir P. Courtenay. About the middle of April, 1644, Sir Richard Grenville advanced with his forces towards Plymouth, when Colonel Martin, then governor of the town, marching out with the greater part of the garrison, defeated him at St. Budeaux, and took two companies prisoners. Prince Maurice again attempted the capture of Plymouth, but not succeeding in his intentions, left Sir Richard Grenville with his forces to blockade the town. After the surrender of the army in Cornwall the king came before Plymouth in person on the 9th September, 1644, attended by Prince Maurice, and occupied Widey House, but on the 10th of January, 1646, the blockade of Plymouth was finally abandoned, but the siege had cost the inhabitants a loss approximating to 8,000 lives, a number greater than the whole population at that time. In 1815 H.M.S. "Bellerophon," with the Emperor Napoleon on board, anchored in the Sound.

Railways and Bridges.—Plymouth is served by the Great Western and London and South Western railways; the former has a terminus at Millbay now (1901) being rebuilt, and other stations at North Road and Mutley, the two latter being also used by the London and South Western railway, whose terminus is at Friary. By the incorporation of the South Devon railway between Plymouth and Exeter and of the Bristol and Exeter line, Plymouth has become the western terminus of the Great Western railway system, and Penzance the terminus of the West Cornwall line, which has been taken over from the Cornwall Railway Company, and by means of the loop line at North Road, through trains are run from Paddington to Penzance.

The London and South Western railway has hitherto reached Plymouth by running from Lidford Junction over a portion of the Great Western Company's branch line to Launceston, but a continuation of the South Western line from Lidford to Devonport and Plymouth was completed and opened in June, 1890, and an extension from Friary station to Plymstock was opened in July, 1892. On 1 Jan. 1897, a further extension was opened to Oreston and Turnchapel, for both goods and passenger traffic. A new line has also been made into the South Hams district, and is a continuation of the Plymstock line on to Yealmpton, with intermediate stations at Billacombe, Chittleburn and Steer Point.

The goods depôts of the Great Western railway are at Millbay and Sutton Road, and those of the London and South Western railway at Devonport and the Friary (Plymouth).

The Laira bridge, east of the town, which crosses the estuary of the Plym above the Cattewater, is a fine structure of stone and iron, 500 feet in length, erected in 1824-7 by John, 1st Earl of Morley; it consists of five elliptical arches of iron carried on stone piers and abutments, the centre arch being 100 feet span and 14½ feet above high-water mark; the roadway is 24 feet wide. Other bridges connect Plymouth on the west, through Stonehouse, with Devonport and Stoke Damerel.

Port Limits.—The Port of Plymouth extends from Looe on the west to the river Yealm on the east, with pilotage to Start Point; the maritime jurisdiction, however, rests with the mayor and free burgesses of the ancient borough of Saltash, in Cornwall, on the Tamar. By an Order in Council, gazetted 22 May, 1885, the limits of the Dockyard Port of Plymouth are defined on the south by a line drawn across the entrance of Plymouth Sound, from Penlee point on the west to Shagstone on the east, including all the waters of the Sound and Hamoaze and Devonport, and comprising all bays, rivers &c. reached by the tide within, or to the northward of, the above mentioned.

Harbours.—The Harbour of Sutton has been considerably improved, under the supervision of the Sutton Harbour Improvement Company, a substantial jetty having been erected for the use of the Channel Islands steamers, and a new quay constructed at Coxside; the harbour is also connected with the systems both of the Great Western and London and South Western railways.

The Victoria Wharves and Pier, Sutton road, were opened in 1900.

Cattewater harbour, which is controlled by a distinct body of commissioners, is connected with the London and South Western railway, branches of which extend almost entirely round the quays and wharves, and at the mouth of the harbour a breakwater has been constructed with a revolving light at the extremity; the northern portion of the Cattewater is crossed by Laira bridge, and the water of the estuary above the bridge is known as "The Laira."

Docks.—Millbay, situated between the Hoe and Stonehouse, is now the site of the Great Western docks, which are capable of accommodating vessels of the largest class, and there are several piers and jetties. The original pier was built under the powers of an Act of Parliament, obtained in 1840, by Thomas Gill esq. but the whole was afterwards purchased by the Plymouth Great Western Dock Company, who obtained an Act for the construction of the docks in 1846, and the works were carried out from the designs of the late I. K. Brunel esq. under the immediate superintendence of Mr. Samuel Power. The docks were opened for trading purposes in 1857, some portions having been completed and utilized previously. The floating basin covers an extent of over thirteen acres and is entered by gates 80 feet wide, and has a depth of water of about 22 feet at spring tides. Outside of this is the open dock or tidal harbour, on the western side of which an extension pier has been constructed, capable of accommodating at low water of ordinary spring tides ships drawing 24 feet of water. The Graving Dock measures 468 feet in length and 92 feet in width, the depth of water being the same as in the Floating Basin, and the entrance is 80 feet wide. The wharves and warehouses are of a very commodious kind and all the quays are connected by rail with the line of the Great Western Railway Company, to whom the docks, under special Parliamentary enactment, now belong. Passengers, mails and specie from the United States, the West Indies, Australia, India, China and the Cape of Good Hope are landed here and forwarded by rail to London and all parts of the kingdom. A new entrance to the floating basin is now (1901) being constructed, with double gates worked by hydraulic rams. The Trinity pier on the eastern side of the outer harbour is also being extended and widened, and the water deepened at its northern side to accommodate the coasting and continental trade.

The number of British sailing and steam vessels that entered the port, with cargoes, including their repeated voyages, in 1900, was 446 of 151,576 tons, and 219 foreign, of 82,709 tonnage. The number cleared was 405 British, 59,028 tons; and 160 foreign, 53,377 tonnage. In the general coasting trade the number of sailing and steam vessels that entered, including their repeated voyages, was 2,042 of 568,593 tonnage, and 2,172, cleared, of 655,812 tons. In the trade between Great Britain and Ireland 196 vessels entered, of 82,040 tonnage, and 156 cleared, 165,005 tons. The number of vessels registered, under Part I. of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, as belonging to the port, 31 December, 1900, is given at 323, of 55,357 tons. The number of fishing boats, registered as belonging to the port, under Part IV. of the same Act, at the same date, was 217, giving employment to 585 men and boys. Fishing boats and their implements are marked with the letters P.H. The total value of the imports in 1900 was £1,573,049, the principal amounts being corn, £565,435, refined sugar £131,772 and wood £287,444.

and of the exports, £154,993. The amount of Customs revenue collected being £39,049.

A considerable trade is carried on with America, Australia and New Zealand, the West Indies, the Mauritius, Africa and the Baltic, besides which there is an extensive coasting trade. The New Zealand and the Orient lines of steamers call at Plymouth fortnightly to embark and land passengers. Steamers ply regularly from hence to Southampton, Portsmouth, London, Falmouth, Dublin, Belfast, Waterford, Glasgow, Cork, Liverpool, Jersey and Guernsey, and vessels may always be found bound to almost any port in England or Wales. The principal portion of the coasting vessels come into Sutton Pool, as do also the numerous fishing vessels belonging to and using the port; but most of the heavy foreign vessels and the Irish and Channel steamers resort to the Great Western docks, Millbay. Goods traffic can also be forwarded from or to the Great Western docks in connection with the London and South Western railway.

There is a branch of the Royal National Life-boat Institution, with a crew of 13, and a life-boat station at the Great Western docks, Millbay.

Ecclesiastical.—Plymouth formed a single parish, with but one church, until 1640, when it was divided and the church of Charles, in contemporary records called the church of King Charles the Martyr, was built, and, more recently, parishes for ecclesiastical purposes have been formed under Sir R. Peel's (New Parishes) Act, 1843 (6 and 7 Vic. c. 37), both in the town and its suburbs, on the north, south-west and eastern sides of the town. Under the name of Sutton, Plymouth was anciently a prebend attached to the collegiate church of St. Mary Plympton, and its church afterwards belonged to the priory there. At the Reformation, the advowson and the impropriate tithes were vested in the corporation of the borough, who sold the same many years ago, and the advowson is now vested in the Church Patronage Society.

St. Andrew's church, standing in the centre of the town, at the corner of Bedford street, and dating from the 12th century, is a fine edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, erected about 1430, consisting of chancel and nave, aisles, extending the whole length of the building, transepts, north and south porches, and a lofty embattled western tower with pinnacles built about 1460, containing a clock with chimes and a fine peal of 10 bells, 7 of which were cast in 1749 by Thomas Bilbie, and one by Mears in 1840; the bells were rebung in 1897, by Messrs. Warner and Sons Limited, of London, at a cost of £400: the aisles are separated from the nave and chancel by a series of lofty pointed arches springing from clustered shafts, with curiously carved foliated capitals; the eastern portions of the aisles form chapels, and under the chancel is a crypt said to communicate with an ancient building in the south-west of the church called "The Abbey": the rood and other screens were taken down in 1826, under the advice of Mr. Foulston, architect, and together with other oak fittings were sold by auction for £134 15s.: the pulpit of Bath stone and local marbles was erected in 1871, from designs by Mr. J. Hine, architect, and was executed, as well as the massive oak stalls, parclose screens and seating, by Hems and Sons, of Exeter; among the many interesting monuments in the church is one to Charles Mathews, the elder, the comedian, who died in Plymouth, 28 June, 1835, and others to Sir John Skelton kt. Lieutenant-Governor of Plymouth, ob. 1672, one by Westmacott, to Dr. Woolcombe, d. 1822; a fine bust by Chantrey, to Dr. Zachary Mudge, some time vicar here, ob. 1769: here also was interred the heart of the celebrated admiral, Robert Blake, who died as he was entering Plymouth Sound, 17th August, 1657: during the restoration two effigies were discovered under the floor of the south aisle; one of these, on a slab of Purbeck marble, is a male figure in high relief wearing a long gown with straight folds; the other, which is much mutilated, appears to be a knight in armour, and exhibits traces of a camail and jupon: neither effigy has yet been identified: the church was restored in 1874-5 under the direction of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott F.S.A. at a cost of £8,000: the organ, originally built by James Parsons in 1737, was altered and enlarged in 1859, improved in 1870, and has recently been entirely rebuilt and further enlarged: the reredos, bishop's chair, lectern and chancel and clergy stalls are all new, and there are some good stained windows: the total length of the church is 184 feet; width, 69 feet, or at the transepts, 95 feet: there are sittings for 1,800 persons. The register dates from the year 1581. The living is a vicarage, with Pennycross annexed, net yearly value £408, with residence, in the gift of the Church Patronage Society.

Samuel Aldis esq. in 1741 gave £400, invested in the funds, for the support of an organist.

The church of King Charles the Martyr, commonly called "Charles' church," is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south and west porches, and a lofty western tower, with spire, containing 10 bells, cast in 1782, 1856 and 1898, six having been previously recast in 1709: the church was erected at various times between 1640 and 1657, the work, owing to civil commotions, being several times interrupted: the wooden spire of 1707-8 was replaced in 1766 by one of stone and various alterations were made in 1735 and 1739; in 1869 the structure was further altered and renovated, and in 1883 the walls surrounding the churchyard were lowered and railings substituted: in 1889 the north and south galleries were taken down and the church restored at a cost of £2,267: there are many interesting monuments, including one to Robert Hawker D.D. author of some religious biographies and works on divinity, and 43 years vicar here, who died 6th April, 1827, and many stained windows: the church has sittings for 900 persons. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value about £300, with residence, in the gift of the Church Patronage Society, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Nathaniel Vickers B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, and surrogate.

All Saints is an ecclesiastical parish, formed May 14, 1875, from that of St. Peter; the church, in Harwell street, erected in 1873-8, at a cost of £5,000, is a building of limestone in the Early English style, from designs by Mr. James Hine, architect, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a western porch: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1875. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £217, in the gift of local trustees, and held since 1899 by the Rev. Owen Evan Anwyl M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. In 1885 a clergy house was erected at a cost of about £1,900, of which £1,178 was given by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. A parish room and Sunday schools, with four class rooms, was erected in 1892, at a cost of about £1,200, defrayed by public subscription.

Christ Church is an ecclesiastical parish, formed August 14, 1847, from that of St. Andrew; the church, in Eton place, is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of clerestoried nave, aisles, west porch and a belfry containing one bell: the church was restored and a fine screen added in 1896: there are sittings for 1,085 persons. The register dates from the year 1845. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £165, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of St. Andrew's, and held since 1892 by the Rev. William Howard Coates.

Holy Trinity is an ecclesiastical parish, formed August 8, 1851, from that of St. Andrew; the church, in South-side street, built in 1842, is an edifice of stone, of the Doric order, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and a tower on the north-west side: there are sittings for 1,200 persons. The register dates from the year 1851. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £180, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of St. Andrew, and held since 1851 by the Rev. Francis Barnes M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, chaplain to the Plymouth Emigrant.

St. Augustine's church, in Lipson vale, erected in 1900 at a cost of £300, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, of which a portion only is at present built, with sittings for 500 persons. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £140, in the gift of the vicars of Emanuel, Charles and St. Matthias, and 3 trustees; the Rev. George James Jackson O'Shea is vicar designate.

St. James the Less is an ecclesiastical parish, formed March 5, 1847, from that of St. Andrew; the church, in Clarendon place, Citadel road, is a building of stone in the Early English style, from the designs of J. P. St. Aubyn esq. and was consecrated in 1861, when the chancel and one bay of the nave were built; the main portion of the nave and aisles, begun in 1868, was completed in 1880: the building now consists of apsidal chancel, nave and aisles, and an unfinished tower: three of the windows in the chancel and one in the south aisle are stained: in 1884 a memorial window was erected to Col. W. H. Adams, d. 20th December, 1883, and in 1888-91 the church was restored at a cost of £2,865: there are sittings for 800 persons. The register dates from the year 1848. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £225, with residence, in the gift of Keble College, Oxford, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Francis Wilfrid Osborn M.A. of Keble College, Oxford.

Sutton-on-Plym is an ecclesiastical parish, formed June 3, 1844, from the parish of King Charles the Martyr; the church of St. John the Evangelist, in Exeter street, is an edifice of stone, erected in 1855, at a cost of £3,000, from the designs of Mr. Benjamin Ferrey, architect, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, north chapel, north-west porch and a tower on the north side, with spire, containing one bell: an additional Lady chapel on the north side was erected in 1883 by Mr. C. Norrington, in memory of his son: there are several stained windows: the church was restored in 1878-82, at a cost of £600, and has 460 sittings. The register dates from the year 1860. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £135, in the gift of Keble College, Oxford, and held since 1894 by the Rev. Cecil Henry Salt.

St. Michael's, West Hoe, a chapel of ease to St. James the Less, was erected in 1891 at a cost of £1,500, and is a small building of stone, faced with polychrome and freestone, in the Gothic style, and consists of chancel and nave: there are sittings for 200 persons.

St. Jude's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed May 4, 1877, from the parish of King Charles the Martyr; the church, in Totihill lane, is a building of stone in the Early English style, erected in 1875-6, at a cost of £7,055, and consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, west porch and a tower with spire at the north-west angle, containing one bell; the tower and spire were added in 1882, at the expense of the Rev. Thomas Archer Bewes M.A. of Beaumont, who also had previously given the organ: there are 630 sittings. The register dates from the year 1876. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, in the gift of local trustees, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Prebendary Thomas Henry Howard M.A. of Queen's College, Cambridge.

St. Luke's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed March 20, 1874; the church, in Tavistock place, and formerly an proprietary chapel known as "Charles chapel," is a building of stone of the Doric order, erected in 1828, from designs by the late Mr. Ball, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, west porch and a turret containing one bell: at the east end is a memorial window to Capt. Hay, erected by his sister: and there are thirteen other stained windows: the church was restored in 1878-91, at a cost of £1,150, and affords 1,200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1874. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £135, in the gift of the vicar of Charles, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Hammond Butler Bisshopp M.A. of Caius College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge.

St. Matthias is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1887 from the parishes of St. Luke, Charles and Christ Church; the church, erected upon rising ground, in Tavistock road, in 1887, at a cost of £9,400, and consecrated by the Bishop of Exeter, is a building of limestone, in the Perpendicular style, from designs by Messrs. Hine and Odgers, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, west porch, and a massive embattled tower, 120 feet in height, with pinnacles: the organ was erected in 1889 at a cost of £800: the east window is stained, and there is a memorial window, placed by Councillor Joseph Willoughby in memory of his son Edgar: the handsome carved oak reredos, designed by Mr. G. H. F. Prynne F.R.I.B.A. and executed by Hems, of Exeter, was presented in 1891 by an anonymous donor: there are sittings for 600 persons. The register dates from the year 1888. The living is a vicarage, in the gift of trustees, net yearly value, derived chiefly from pew rents, £320, and held since 1898 by the Rev. William Bertram Russell Caley M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge.

St. Peter's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed March 5, 1847, from the parishes of St. Andrew, Plymouth, and St. George, Stonehouse; the church, in Wyndham square, occupies the site of a former church, originally a Dissenting place of worship called "Eldad chapel," but consecrated as a church in October, 1850, when a quasi-chancel was added from the designs of the late G. E. Street B.A.: the foundation stone of the new church, a building of native limestone, in the Early English style, from designs by Mr. G. H. F. Prynne F.R.I.B.A. of London and Plymouth, was laid by the Earl of Devon, April 1st, 1880, and the edifice, erected at a cost of £13,000, is cruciform in plan and consists at present of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, south porch and an incomplete western tower: the fine screen of wrought iron on a base of alabaster and Devonshire marble, designed by Mr. Prynne, and executed by Hems, of Exeter, was unveiled on Sunday, Dec. 24, 1882, and is adorned with figures in mosaic of angels holding scrolls: the upper portion is entirely of wrought iron, and is surmounted by a cross; the whole is now richly illuminated in gold and colour: the cost was about £450; choir stalls of oak and walnut have also been erected at a cost of £100; the pulpit, erected in 1898, at a cost of £200, to commemorate the 60th year of the reign of Queen Victoria, from the design of Mr. G. H. F. Prynne, has a base of Caen stone, with short columns of marble: there are 1,000 sittings. The register dates from the year 1848. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £409, without residence, in the gift of the trustees of Keble College, Oxford, and held since 1843 by the Rev. George Rundle Prynne M.A. of St. Catherine's College, Cambridge.

The Mission church of the Good Shepherd, in Octagon street, erected at a cost of £1,200, was opened early in 1862.

St. Saviour's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1883 from the parish of Holy Trinity; the church, at Lambhay Hill, near the Citadel, was built in 1870 on a site given by H.M. the Queen, as a chapel of ease to Holy Trinity, and enlarged in 1883 by the addition of a north aisle, at a cost of over £1,000; it is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a western tower, and has over 530 sittings. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £202, in the gift of the vicar of Holy Trinity, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Joseph Jones. A School and Mission Rooms were erected in 1886, close to the church, at a cost of about £1,200, towards which a grant of £100 was given by the National Society.

St. Catharine's church, in Lockyer street, originally a chapel of ease to St. Andrew's church, is a plain building of stone and granite in a modern Classic style, erected in 1823, at a cost of about £5,000, and consists of chancel and nave, with a belfry surmounted by a cross, and containing one bell; in 1879-80 the church was restored at a cost of £800, when a new organ chamber was built and enlarged, oak stalls, new carved pulpit and organ screen erected and the chancel repaired; in 1900 it was reseated and other improvements effected at a cost of over £600: there are 800 sittings. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value about £200, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of St. Andrews, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Nathaniel Nicholas Lewarne M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, and surrogate.

The Mission Hall, Notte street, opened in October, 1883, is a building of local limestone, erected by and at the cost of Mr. Isaac Foot, builder, of Plymouth, from designs by Mr. H. J. Snell, architect, and will hold, including the gallery, 700 persons.

The Catholic diocese of Plymouth comprises Devon, Cornwall and Dorset, with the Scilly Islands.

The Catholic cathedral, in Wyndham street west, dedicated to St. Mary and St. Boniface, was opened for public worship in March, 1858, but not consecrated till 22nd of September, 1880: it is a cruciform building in the Early English style, from designs by J. H. Hansom esq. of Clifton, built at a cost of £10,000, and consists of choir with aisles transepts with eastern chapels, nave, aisles, and a tower with spire, 205 feet in height, erected in 1866, and containing one bell: the sacristy forms a part of a separate building, which leads to the bishop's residence: the stained west window was presented by the diocese to commemorate the completion of the twenty-fifth year of consecration of Bishop Vaughan, September 16, 1880: the carved stone reredos was erected in 1889 by offerings presented to the bishop on the completion by him of fifty years of priesthood: there are sittings for 750 persons.

The Catholic church of the Holy Cross, in Beaumont road, and erected in 1882, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, and has 400 sittings. Attached to this church is a house of Sisters of Charity.

The Convent of Notre Dame, in Wyndham street, erected in 1865, has a chapel of stone in the Gothic style; it was enlarged and a marble altar added from designs by Mr. H. A. K. Gribble, architect, of London, to which a new sanctuary was added in 1885, at the cost of the sisterhood.

The Baptists have three chapels. George Street chapel was originally founded in 1640; the present building, erected in 1845, at a cost of £5,000, will seat 1,000 persons: the Sunday schools in connection with this chapel were enlarged in 1892. Mutley chapel, erected in 1869, at a cost of nearly £8,000, has sittings for about 1,000 persons. Trinity chapel, York street, was erected in 1828, and has 400 sittings. The Meeting House of the Brethren, in Park street, will seat 500 people. The Brethren also hold meetings at the Temperance hall, Raleigh street.

Bethel Union chapel, Barbican, erected in 1883, for the use of sailors, soldiers and fishermen, is served by ministers of different denominations, and has a Sunday school attached; there is another Bethel Union chapel at the Great Western docks.

The Bible Christian chapel in Zion street, erected in 1847, will seat 500 persons. The Bible Christian chapel, Greenbank road, is a handsome building of stone in the Romanesque style, erected in 1886, at a cost, including site, of £6,000: there are 700 sittings.

The Calvinistic chapel is in Portland villas.

The Catholic Apostolic chapel, in Princess street, was re-erected in 1867 to seat 400 persons.

There are four Congregational chapels and two Mission halls. The Sherwell Congregational chapel, Tavistock road, was erected by the congregation formerly attached to Norley Street chapel, founded in 1798, and is a structure in the Decorated style, completed in 1864 at a cost, including site, of £8,400, with a tower and spire at the north side rising to a height of 140 feet: there is a memorial window to Mr. David Derry, and sittings for 1,250 persons. Higher Batter Street chapel, originally Presbyterian, was erected in 1705 and has been restored: it will seat 500 persons. The Union Congregational chapel, in Courtenay street, erected in 1847 at a cost of £2,000, has sittings for 760 persons. Norley chapel, erected in 1798, will seat 800 persons. The old Tabernacle mission hall, Exeter street, was erected about 1744, and has about 400 sittings. Sherwell mission hall, in Mount street, erected in 1857, has sittings for 450 persons. The Evangelical Protestant church in Compton street, erected in 1847, is associated with the labours of the late Samuel Prideaux Tregelles LL.D. translator of the Greek Testament, and seats 658 persons.

The Jewish Synagogue, a plain building in Catherine street, was erected in 1762.

The Presbyterian church, Wyndham street west, erected in 1869 at a cost of £6,000, and destroyed by fire, with the exception of the walls, December 10, 1882, was rebuilt in 1883, in the Classic style, from designs by Mr. J. L. Hodge, architect, of Plymouth: there are 825 sittings.

The Primitive Methodist chapel in Ebrington street will seat 300 persons.

The Society of Friends' Meeting House in Treville street, founded in 1646 and rebuilt in 1883, will seat 300 persons.

The Unitarian chapel, Treville street, was erected in 1832, to seat 350 persons.

The United Methodist Free Church, Ebrington street, rebuilt in 1897 at a cost of nearly £6,000, has about 600 sittings.

There are five Wesleyan Methodist chapels. The King Street chapel, a large and substantial but plain building, was erected in 1864, at a cost, including schools, of £15,000, and has 1,000 sittings, of which 700 are free. Ebenezer chapel, Saltash street, was erected in 1836, at a cost of about £5,000, and in 1892 was renovated, a church parlour built and a mahogany pulpit and finely panelled ceiling erected: there are 1,000 sittings. Wesley chapel, Ebrington street, erected at a cost of about £12,600, and opened May 21st, 1879, is an edifice of brick with dressings of Portland stone, and has a stone facade with a massive hexastyle portico of the Corinthian order: it will seat 1,150 persons, and under the chapel are school-rooms for 600 scholars: additional rooms have since been provided, and there are now (1901) 1,100 scholars. Mutley chapel is a building of limestone with Portland stone dressings, in the Gothic style, erected at a cost of £7,000, and has a tower at the south-west angle: over the main entrance is a fine stained window: there are sittings for 950 persons, and in the basement are school rooms for 400 scholars.

The Cemetery is about three-quarters of a mile from the town, and is the property of the Plymouth, Devonport and Stonehouse Cemetery Co.: it was opened in 1849 and has two mortuary chapels, but part of the ground had been previously opened in 1848 for Dissenters. The whole comprises an area of about 70 acres.

The Jewish Cemetery, near Ford Park road, Mutley, was opened in 1873 and belongs to the Jewish congregation: it is 1½ acres in extent.

Public Buildings and Institutions.—The Guildhall, Law Courts and Municipal offices occupy two sides of a large open space, about 100 feet wide, leading from Catherine street to Westwell street, the municipal offices being on the north and the Guildhall and Law Courts on the south, the east side of the square being closed by the church of St. Andrew. The foundation stone was laid by William Luscombe esq. mayor, 28 July, 1870; the municipal offices opened in April, 1872, by John Kelly esq. mayor, and the whole pile of buildings was formally inaugurated in Aug. 1874, by H.M. King Edward VII. then the Prince of Wales, and high steward of the borough, and in the mayoralty of Alfred Booker esq. Both blocks are constructed of limestone and granite, with freestone dressings, in the Gothic style of the 13th century, from designs by Messrs. Norman and Hine, architects, of Plymouth, at a total cost, including decorative work, of £50,000. The Guildhall, placed between the Police Court and Law Courts, is a lofty structure, 146 feet in length and 58 feet wide, lighted on either side by a series of seven windows, with copuled lights and cinquefoil openings above; these windows form a species of clerestory, exhibiting on the exterior a succession of crocketed gables, divided by pinnacles: at the angles of the building are bold circular turrets, carried on corbels, and the principal or north front has a spacious lobby extending the whole length of the hall, with a wide porch in the centre and subordinate entrances at each end: at the west end of the hall rises a tall square tower, about 180 feet in height, with machicolated parapet and open-spined lantern, and above the crested ridge of the roof, the gables of which are adorned with statues, is an octagonal flèche, with graceful spirelet: the interior is divided into three aisles by arcades of seven arches on each side, consisting of columns of polished Penryn granite with capitals and arches of Portland stone. The 14 large windows of the hall are filled with stained glass illustrating memorable incidents in the history of Plymouth. The subjects of those on the south-side are:—1. The Embarkation of the Black Prince. 2. The Descent of the Bretons. 3. Sir F. Drake 'bringing in the Water.' 4. The Armada, and the famous Game of Bowls on the Hoe. 5. The Arrest of Sir Walter Raleigh. 6. Plymouth Pottery and its manufacture. 7. The Opening of the Guildhall. Those on the north side represent:—1. The Inquisition in the Priory Church of Plympton. 2. The Visit of Katharine of Aragon. 3. William of Orange proclaimed King in Plymouth Guildhall. 4. The Departure of the Pilgrim Fathers. 5. The Siege of Plymouth. 6. Napoleon Bonaparte on board the "Bellerophon" in Plymouth Sound. 7. Freemasonry. At the west end of the hall is a large orchestra, with an organ erected by subscription at a cost of about £2,500, and adjoining are ante-rooms for the convenience of performers. At the opposite end of the hall is a gallery, holding about 250 persons, and the hall will seat, as a whole, about 2,500 persons. The Police Court, which adjoins the Guildhall on the east, is 46 feet by 38 feet, and has attached rooms for the magistrates, magistrates' clerk, attorneys and witnesses, and in the rear a station-house and muster room, with drill yard. Adjoining the Guildhall on the west are the Law Courts, each 49 by 38 feet, with separate entrances and rooms for barristers, attorneys and witnesses, and galleries for the use of the public. The gables of the three courts are surmounted by statues of Edward I. the "English Justinian," Edward the Black Prince and the present King Edward VII. and at the north-west angle of the Law Courts, next Westwell street, is an octagonal tower, arcaded in the third stage, and finished with a machicolated parapet and spired lantern relieved by dormers. Adjoining are buildings occupied by the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, and the Plymouth Incorporated Mercantile Association, established in 1875.

The Municipal Offices comprise a council chamber, town clerk's offices, committee and ante-rooms, offices for the borough treasurer, borough engineer, the water engineer, medical officer of health and sanitary and port sanitary inspectors: the principal front is arcaded in the upper storey, and in the centre is a lofty projecting transeptal block, the gable of which, flanked by pinnacles, is pierced by two large windows, under triangular canopies, enriched with crocketing and finials: at the south-west angle is an octagonal tower, corresponding to that of the Law Courts.

The insignia of the Corporation include three maces and a mayor's chain and badge: in 1671 new maces were made, from which it appears that there were still earlier ones, of which there is no record. The present maces belong to the reign of Queen Anne, and bear the dates 1709 and 1711; the largest is 4 feet 3 inches long and the other two four feet each; all three are similar in design, with richly chased shafts divided into three portions by massive bands, which, as well as the base knobs, are elaborately foliated: the heads bear the usual national emblems, and are surrounded by a cresting of crosses and fleur-de-lis, from which rise open-arched crowns: on the flat top of the head are the royal arms and the motto "Semper Eadem." The largest mace, as appears from an inscription on the base, was presented to the Corporation by Joseph Jory, mayor in 1709; one of the smaller maces used to be carried before the mayoress. The mayor's chain, 16 feet 5 inches long, consists of simple links, and is worn fourfold; it was purchased in 1803 at a cost of £66, and attached to it as a pendant is a gold medal, bearing on one side the borough arms and on the other an inscription recording the recovery by the freemen of their right to elect a chief magistrate; the medal was presented, at a cost of £9, to William Lockyer, mayor in 1816. The early borough seal, two inches in diameter, exhibits a figure of St. Andrew, with figures of angels, one on either side, bearing shields of arms, and all under canopies; beneath are the town arms and supporters, and round the edge an inscription; the mayor's seal displays the borough arms, surmounted by a crown of fleurs-de-lis and trefoils, and surrounded by an inscription in old English characters; a smaller seal bears the town arms simply and the date 1595; there are also four modern seals, two loving cups, one given by Sir John Gayer, alderman of London, in 1648, and the other by John Whit, of London, haberdasher, in 1585, and a silver snuff box, dating from 1812. The mayor's robe is of scarlet trimmed with sable fur.

The Post Office, in Westwell street, is a building of Portland stone and Cornish granite, in the Gothic style, erected in 1884 from the designs of E. G. Rivers esq. surveyor to H.M. Commissioners of Works. The foundation stone was laid by P. S. MacIver esq. formerly M.P. for Plymouth, and the building has been planned with a view to extension if required. There are postal telegraph offices in Westwell street, Southside street, Stonehouse, Cattedown, Depford place, Durnford street, Ebrington street, Holborn place, Millbay, Mutley, North hill, Seymour avenue, Union street, Laura and Oreston.

His Majesty's Prison, at the north-east of the town, adjoining the Workhouse, erected in 1849, at a cost of about £12,500, is a building of blue limestone, with Caen stone dressings, in the Italian style, from designs by Messrs. Fuller and Gingell, architects, of Bristol; it contains apartments for officers, visiting cells, convalescent rooms, a bath room, cells for 81 prisoners (57 males and 24 females), day rooms, airing grounds and special cells.

The public clock tower, in George street, erected in 1862, is a rectangular structure, terminating in an open octangular-spined turret: the clock, presented by William Derry esq. an ex-mayor, has four dials, and at the base of the tower are large projecting lamps. In the Guildhall square is a full-length statue of Mr. Alfred Rooker, mayor in 1874, by the late Mr. Stephens, of Exeter, erected at a cost of £1,600, raised by public subscriptions.

The Theatre Royal, in George street, forms part of the large block of buildings comprising also the Royal hotel and Assembly Rooms: it is a large and well-arranged house, with a lofty pedimented portico supported by columns and pilasters of the Ionic order, and will seat 2,000 persons.

The Athenæum, in George and Athenæum streets, is the property of the Plymouth Institution and Devon and Cornwall Natural History Society; it was erected in 1818-19, and is a building in the Classic style, with a pedimented portico carried on columns of the Grecian Doric order; it contains a lecture hall, a valuable scientific library and a spacious museum, and a lending library and general reading room were added about 1901. The museum comprises large and valuable collections, chiefly illustrative of the antiquities and natural history and geology of the West of England. In the rooms are a number of portraits and casts from the antique. Lectures are delivered weekly by the members during the winter months.

The Plymouth Municipal Museum and Art Gallery is temporarily situated in Beaumont Park: the museum contains a collection of archaeological remains, presented by the Dartmoor Exploration Committee, practically comprising the whole results of recent explorations: there are also prehistoric remains from an ancient cemetery discovered at Harbyn Bay, Cornwall, and estimated to be 2,000 years old: there are also collections illustrating zoology and geology in general; others specially referring to the counties of Devon and Cornwall are in the course of formation, and much is already on exhibition: the art gallery includes a few choice oil paintings by Tuke, Binet and other artists, lent by W. A. Duncan esq.; there is a series of casts of Italian sculpture, obtained by aid of a grant from South Kensington; exhibits of china, minor arts, early printed books and illuminated manuscripts, and also a collection of objects of art, lent by the authorities of the South Kensington Museum, and renewed annually.

The Plymouth Proprietary and Cottonian Library, Cornwall street, erected in 1811 and enlarged in 1852, contains the collections presented to the town in 1852 by William Cotton esq. of Ivybridge, and besides an historical and general library of some 28,000 volumes, contains a very rare and valuable collection of original drawings by ancient French, Dutch, Italian, Lombard and other masters, and an extensive and carefully selected collection of engravings, illustrative of every school of art, together with many articles of vertu and artistic interest, including some portraits by Sir Joshua Reynolds: it has also a news room, well supplied with morning, evening and weekly papers: the works of art are open to the inspection of the public. The Incorporated Law Society of Plymouth, whose rooms are in Athenæum chambers, Athenæum lane, has a law library of nearly 2,500 volumes. The Plymouth Medical Society, instituted in 1794, also have a library in the same building.

The Free Public Library, in Whimble street, occupies the building formerly used as a guildhall, erected in 1800. The library was established in 1876, after the adoption of the Free Libraries Act in 1871, and now contains about 47,572 volumes of general literature; the institution comprises lending and reference departments, general news rooms, magazine room and ladies' reading room. Connected with the reference library is a special local collection called the "Devon and Cornwall library," in which are placed works relating to or written by natives of those counties, as well as others printed or published therein. During the years 1900-1901, 379,640 volumes were issued on the 279 days during which the library was open; and of this number 62,128 volumes were used in the reference library: the total issue of books since the opening of the library in 1876, to the end of March, 1901, amounted to 5,395,066 volumes. There are branch libraries in all the Board schools and at other places, and evening reading rooms in some of the outlying districts.

The Marine Biological Association of the United Kingdom, which has its head quarters here, was founded at a meeting called for the purpose in March, 1884, and held in the rooms of the Royal Society of London: the Laboratory, on Citadel hill, was completed in June, 1888 at a cost of some £12,000, and since that time investigations of various kinds have been constantly pursued: practical work, relating to matters connected with sea-fishing, are carried on under the direction of the council; in addition to which the Laboratory is used both by English and foreign naturalists for carrying on their own independent researches, and in this way have made valuable additions to zoological and botanical science. The results of investigations carried on at the Laboratory and elsewhere are regularly published by the association in a half-yearly journal. Naturalists desiring to engage in marine biological studies need not be members of the association, but if there is a greater number of applicants than vacant tables, members have the first claim. A steam launch is kept constantly employed in procuring specimens for workers and for museum and university laboratories. The association has, up to 1893, received some £20,000, of which £5,000 was granted by the Treasury: the annual revenue which can be at present counted on is about £1,820, of which £1,000 a year is granted by the Treasury and £400 from the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers, the remainder being made up in subscriptions. The purpose of the association is to aid at the same time both science and industry: it is national in character and constitution, and its affairs are conducted by a representative council, with honorary officers. The buildings are situated at the east side of the Hoe, between the south wall of the Citadel and the sea, on a site granted by the War Office, and comprise two blocks of three storeys, connected by a central portion of two storeys: the central portion has, on the ground floor, an aquarium, which is open daily to the public for a small charge, and on the first floor is the main working laboratory for the use of students only: in the west block is the library, chemical and physiological rooms and a caretaker's residence: the east block forms the residence of the director. The pumping and circulating apparatus is situated on the basement of the west block, and behind the building are two large reservoirs; president, Prof. E. Ray Lankester F.R.S.; hon. sec. and director of the Plymouth Laboratory, Edgar J. Allen esq. D.Sc.; hon. treasurer, J. A. Travers esq.

St. James's Hall, Union street, is a large building, now used for public assemblies, and will hold 1,200 persons.

The Freemasons' Hall and Club Co. Limited and the Plymouth Conservative Club Co. Limited have premises in Princess square.

The Plymouth Club Limited is in Windsor terrace, Citadel road.

The premises of the Plymouth and Western Counties Liberal Club are in Bedford street.

Balfour Hall, Princess place, the property of the Conservative Club Co. Limited, was erected in 1891, and is used for political meetings, smoking concerts &c.; it will hold about 200 persons.

There is a Parliamentary Debating Society, which meets at the Mechanics' Institute every Thursday, and various Mutual Improvement Societies. The Plymouth Vocal Association gives four concerts every season, and there is a choral class.

The Young Men's Christian Association occupies premises in Bedford street, and the Young Women's Christian Association has branches in Lockyer street, 44 Mutley plain and 18 Tothill road.

The Oddfellows' Hall, Morley street, was erected in 1889, at a cost of £3,000, and will seat 300 people.

Several blocks of model dwellings have been erected in different parts of the town, two of which were built by Sir Edward Bates, 1st bart. M.P. for Plymouth from 1871 to 1880 and from 1885-92, and who died 1896; a number of similar dwellings have been erected in the east end of the town by a company, and others in the centre of the town by Messrs. Harris, Bulteel and Co. the style adopted being chiefly Elizabethan. The Corporation have also erected Homes for the working classes at Prince Rock.

Markets and Fairs.—A market was first granted to Plymouth about the year 1253, to be held on Thursdays, with a fair of three days at the festival of St. John the Baptist; in the year 1257 a grant was made for a market at Sutton (as Plymouth was then called) on Wednesdays, with three days' fair at Ascension. In the last century the market days were Monday and Friday, and the markets were held under the old Guildhall. There was formerly a yarn market in St. Andrew's churchyard: this fell into disuse early in the 17th century, but was temporarily revived in 1651.

The early closing day is on Wednesday at 2 p.m.

The General market, erected in 1804, and partially rebuilt in 1893, occupies an area of about three acres in the centre of the town, and has entrances from Cornwall, East and Drake streets, and from the Market place: it contains covered vegetable, fish, poultry and butter markets, long ranges of butchers' shops, stalls for general merchandise, and a wholesale meat market. The market days are Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, but on other days there is generally a good supply of market commodities. The corn market is held on Thursdays. A new corn exchange was erected in 1893 at the East street entrance. The cattle market is held on a spacious inclosed piece of ground fitted with pens and stalls, adjoining the Tavistock road, with entrances from Rowe street and Granville street: the market days are Tuesday and Thursday, and there is a great market on the second Tuesday in every month. A large number of cattle, imported from Spain and France, as well as from Ireland, change hands in the Plymouth market. The market tolls are collected by the Corporation. There is also a fish market, and a wholesale fish market is maintained on the Barbican, Southside quay and on the margin of Sutton Pool, into which the fishing vessels and trawlers run when they have fish on board for sale. At Sutton harbour the new quay wall incloses a space on which a new fish market was erected in 1893-4, and the fish are now sold and packed under cover. The business sometimes done here, especially during the mackerel season, is very considerable, large quantities of fish being sent off by railway to the London, Bath, Bristol and Manchester markets; and since the opening of the Cornwall railway the quantity of fish dispatched is sometimes immense.

The fairs at Plymouth were formerly events of considerable importance, especially the October cloth fair, which was held in Old Town street, but these are now extinct. Various horticultural and other societies hold shows in the summer and autumn, chiefly in the Guildhall.

The general trade of the town is now chiefly concerned with imports for the supply of the population of the western peninsula; the exports, however, include Dartmoor wool, china clay, and tin and copper ore. The manufactures are of some importance; that of chemical manure is very considerable at Cattedown, the district bordering on the Cattewater harbour, and here are several large factories, in which over 500 persons are employed, i.e. those of Messrs. Burnard and Alger Limited, Messrs. J. Gibbs and Co. Limited, Messrs. C. Norrington and Co. and Mr. T. H. Harvey. The machinery is of a complex and costly character, and the latest mechanical appliances for increasing the output and facilitating the export of their produce have been adopted. In the summer of 1888 a new wharf and hydraulic cranes were completed on the Cattewater by Messrs. Burnard and Alger Limited. The import of nitrate of soda, from Chili, and of Peruvian guano, by the above firms, is also on a large scale. There are two soap factories, belonging to the Millbay Soap Co. and employing a number of hands; there are also very extensive saw mills, belonging to Messrs. R. and R. Bayly, of Sutton road, Plymouth, and Oreston; to Messrs. Fox; Elliott and Co. Limited and to Mr. E. M. Jewson, both of the Great Western docks, and all these are large importers of timber; there are also several ship and boat builders; in addition may be mentioned the large engineering and shipbuilding works of Messrs. Willoughby Brothers Lim. whose chief factory is in Rendle street, Plymouth, with a branch foundry in Phoenix street, Stonehouse, and a shipbuilding and repairing yard at the Great Western docks; the works of Messrs. Bickle and Co. Limited are also at the Great Western docks. The lead, paint and brass works of Messrs. James and Rosewall are in Octagon street. The important factory of Messrs. E. James and Sons, of Red Cross starch and Dome black lead fame, were established in 1840; the buildings cover a large area and are situated near the Great Western railway and Sutton harbour. There are also in Plymouth large tanneries and some flour mills, breweries and distilleries, amongst which the most noteworthy is the distillery of Messrs. Coates and Co. in Southside street, where the well-known "Plymouth gin" is manufactured.

In the town are several extensive printing offices: these include the offices of the "Western Morning News" Co. Limited, in George street, and those of the Western Newspaper Co. Limited, in Frankfort street. No daily papers being published in Cornwall, the Plymouth dailies have a wide circulation in that county: there are also weekly papers published at the same offices, viz. the "Western Weekly News" and the "Western Weekly Mercury"; the "Western Independent" is also extensively circulated in Devonshire and Cornwall, although published in Devonport. The "Naval and Military Record and Royal Dockyards Gazette" is published every Wednesday, by the "Western Morning News" Co. Limited, and is the only twopenny Service paper. The "Western Daily Mercury," "The Western Weekly Mercury," "Western Evening Herald" and "Football Herald" are published by the Western Newspaper Co. Limited. The "Western Figaro," a humorous illustrated weekly print, is the oldest established paper of its kind in the county, having been established in 1877. The "Church in the West," a weekly record and review of Church work in the West of England, is published at Sydney street, Plymouth.

The town is well supplied with hotels. Opposite the Millbay terminus (Great Western railway), at the west end of the town, is the Duke of Cornwall hotel, a very fine building in the Italian Gothic style, erected by a limited liability company, and having a spacious coffee room, billiard and smoking rooms, and is fitted up in the most comfortable and artistic manner. In Lockyer street, within easy distance of the same station, is the Royal hotel, which, with the Theatre and Assembly Rooms, forms a spacious and effective group of buildings in the Classic style; the hotel, entered through a lofty pedimented portico, with four Ionic columns, has a ladies' drawing room, spacious coffee-room and smoking and writing rooms. On the Hoe is the Grand hotel, which has an uninterrupted sea view. In addition to these are the Albion, the Globe, Central, Lockyer, Chubb's, Routly's Farley hotel, the Great Western hotel, and many others of lesser size and note.

The ancient portion of the town near the water-side is rapidly disappearing in consequence of the demand for improved dwellings and wide thoroughfares. One fine old double-gabled house, however, still remains in Notte street; it has a projecting canopy over the lower windows, on the first floor a long bay window extending across the whole front, and two smaller ones above; there are also several in St. Andrew's street, one or two in New street and Southside street, and a few others in Higher street. A small fragment of the ancient castle still remains, but the "Barbican" exists only as a name attached to one of the quays.

Charities and Charitable Institutions.—The most important is Kelway's, amounting to £6,137; 3-34ths of the income of this charity is directed to be distributed amongst the donor's relations, and the remainder to be applied in bringing up and apprenticing the children of such relations, or in default, children of Plymouth and Saltash. Other charities, producing about £110 yearly, are distributed in clothing, and there is also a sum of about £530 yearly for the support of almshouses and their inmates; the parish of St. Andrew has in addition £33 for distribution in bread, and the parish of Charles £64 for distribution in money and kind.

Joan Bennett Exhibitions.—Under a scheme for the management and regulation of Joan Bennett's Trust, directed by an Order in Council, dated the 17th day of November, 1888, exhibitions are open to boys of not more than nineteen years of age at the time of the award of such exhibition, being sons of residents in the Parliamentary Borough of Plymouth, and these exhibitions are awarded on the result of an examination held periodically at Plymouth to boys whose parents are, in the opinion of the governors, of limited means: each exhibition is of the annual value of £50, tenable for three years at any place of university education in the United Kingdom approved by the governors; Edmund Pridham, clerk and treasurer to the governors, Athenæum chambers, Plymouth.

The Female Penitentiary and Home, Ebrington street, established in 1833, is supported by voluntary contributions, and managed by separate committees of ladies and gentlemen: there are now (1901) 18 inmates.

The Friendless Girls' Help Association Office, Regent street, was established in 1880 for training friendless girls as servants; it is entirely dependent on voluntary contributions, and managed by an executive committee.

The Plymouth Girls' Friendly Society Lodge, 1 Hill Park villas, is intended for young women in business and servants who require temporary lodgings while passing from one situation to another, and for strangers in Plymouth, who, from adverse circumstances, require the protection and shelter of a temporary home.

The Girls' Industrial School is at 13 and 14 Portland villas.

The Devon and Cornwall Female Orphan Asylum, in Lockyer street, is a substantial building, erected in Feb. 1834, for educating and training female orphans and other poor children with a view to their employment as domestic servants; it is supported by voluntary contributions, and has generally about fifty inmates.

The Plymouth Mendicity Society was founded in 1870, for granting relief to the poor, to wayfarers and other indigent persons, and for the distribution of clothes and materials; but all cases proper to be dealt with under the Poor Law system are at once referred to the Board of Guardians and their relieving officers, and such as appear to come within the scope of any local charity are referred accordingly; the operations of the society are directed by a committee of thirteen persons, who meet every Thursday at the office, 1 Finewell street, at 3.30 p.m.

The South Devon and Cornwall Institution, in the Tavistock road, first founded in 1860, in Coburg street and afterwards removed to its present locality, is for the instruction and employment of the blind, and is supported by voluntary contributions. The present building was erected in 1876, from designs by Mr. H. J. Snell, and a new wing was added in 1892. The inmates, now about 50 in number, manufacture large quantities of basket work, door mats, brushes and similar articles, and the workshops are open daily for public inspection, from 10 to 5. The institution is managed by a committee of 22 members. There is also a certified school for blind children under the control of the Board of Education.

The Orphans' Aid Charity, 10 Regent street, was established in 1617, and has a yearly income of £40, derived from house property, and about £11,000 Consolidated Stock: the boys attend the Plymouth Public school; Mr. Edmund Pridham, Athenæum chambers, is clerk and treasurer.

Hospitals.—The South Devon and East Cornwall Hospital, pleasantly situated in Greenbank road, on rising ground, commanding good views of the Sound, was established in 1840; the present hospital, erected at a cost of about £40,000, is a building of native limestone, in the Renaissance style, from designs by Mr. H.E.Coe, architect, of London, consisting of five blocks united by covered corridors, porter's lodge, mortuary, post-mortem rooms and carriage shed. The administrative portion contains committee, consulting and operating rooms, surgery, dispensary, out-patients' waiting room, library &c. The east wing is assigned to women and children, the centre to men, and the west wing is reserved for cases of accident; and near the latter is an annexe for infectious cases. On the north side is the nurses' institute, occupied by trained nurses, who may be sent out to various parts of the counties as required. There are beds for 168 patients, and space is left for doubling the size of the west wing if necessary. The "John Hay wing" was added in 1897, from designs by Messrs. Hine and Odgers, architects, through the munificence of Miss Hains, of Alton terrace, a relative of the late Mr. John Hay, who gave the sum of £20,000 for its erection and endowment. The wing is built chiefly of limestone, with Portland stone dressings, two stories in height and comprises two large and two small wards, containing altogether 38 beds. In 1900 there were 1,282 in-patients and 2,654 out-patients who visited the hospital 9,178 times.

The Royal Eye Infirmary, first established in Dec. 1821, has been rebuilt on a new site near Mutley station, at a cost, including furnishing, of £16,568, and is of red brick in an Italianised style, from designs by Messrs. King and Lester, architects, and provide 30 beds; about 1,500 patients are treated annually. The institution is managed by a committee consisting of the officers, ex-officio, and 18 other members.

The Devon and Cornwall Ear and Throat Hospital, North street, established in 1866 for the reception and medical treatment of necessitous persons, both as in and out patients, is supported chiefly by voluntary contributions; about one-third of the total expenditure being met by contributions from the patients; the hospital is available for 3 male and 3 female in-patients, who are admitted on payment of ros. 6d. weekly, or on guarantee.

The Dental Hospital, Bank Street chambers, Bank street, was established in 1862; the average number of patients is about 2,500.

The Homoeopathic Dispensary is in Lockyer street.

The Plymouth, Devonport and Stonehouse Provident Medical Association was established in 1869.

The Public Dispensary, St. Catherine street, established in 1798, is a substantial building of stone in the Greek Classic style, and has consulting rooms for the medical officers, waiting rooms for patients and residence for the matron; it is chiefly supported by voluntary subscriptions, but there is also a Provident Department. During the year ending Aug. 31, 1900, 2,450 patients were discharged cured or relieved, 624 discharged for re-admission, 88 died, and 307 remained under care, 768 of the whole being visited at their own homes; there were also 667 members in the Provident department: the committee consists of a numerous body of ex-officio elected and subscribing members.

The Pearn Convalescent Home, Compton Leigh, opened 6 May, 1895, under the will of the late Mr. Edwin Alonzo Pearn, received during the year ending June 30, 1896, 176 male and 192 female patients. This institution provides means for the complete restoration of sick poor who have been under treatment in the hospitals, as well as a pleasant retreat for overworked nurses, and from July 1, 1899 to June 30, 1900, 262 nurses visited the Home for rest and refreshment, and 472 patients were admitted. The founder also conveyed to a body of six trustees securities, to the value of £24,005, for the endowment of the Home, and he died to Dec. 1893.

Eminent Natives.—Among distinguished natives of Plymouth may be mentioned the following: John Baron, nonconformist, divine and author, d. 1683; Jacob Bryant, classical mythologist (1715-1804); Noel Thomas Carrington, schoolmaster and poet (1777-1830); Capt. Cock, a commander in the engagement with the Spanish Armada; Thomas Crane, nonconformist divine and author, b. 1630; Sir Charles Lock Eastlake kt. P.R.A. (1793-1865); Sir Thomas Edmondes kt. diplomatist (1562-1639); Joseph Glanvil M.A. (Oxon), F.R.S. rector of Bath Abbey, prebendary of Worcester, and chaplain to Charles II. (1636-86); Sir William Snow Harris kt. surgeon, physician and electrician (1792-1867); Solomon Alexander Hart R.A. (1806-81); Sir John Hawkins kt. naval commander, rear-admiral in the fleet against the Armada (1520-95); Sir Richard Hawkins kt. son of preceding, naval commander (1560-1622); Benjamin Robert Haydon, historical painter (1786-1846); Jonathan Hearder, blind electrician (1810-76); John Kitto D.D. biblical writer (1804-54); William Eiford Leach, naturalist, and curator at the British Museum (1790-1836); James Northcote R.A. (1746-1831); Mrs. Parsons, novelist; Samuel Prout F.S.A. painter in water colours (1783-1852); John Quick, Puritan divine (1636-1700); William Wilford, naval commander, d. 1414; and Dr. James Yonge F.R.S. (1647-1721).

The Hoe Park, or that portion nearest the town, is a grassy lawn of considerable extent, with plantations of trees and shrubs. At the north-west corner is the principal entrance, and a lodge now used by the police. Near the centre of the promenade is a small octagonal "Camera Obscura," where, for a small charge, the panorama of the whole of the surrounding scenery may be witnessed in miniature. Outside this is a raised platform, and a flag-staff in front of which is a series of turfed galleries, with a wide arena beneath, called "The Bull Ring."

The Eastern Hoe extends from the site of the ancient Trinity obelisk (now occupied by the re-erected Smeaton Lighthouse) towards Lambay Point, taking in the ladies' bathing place, and includes the ground on which the citadel is built. The Western Hoe extends from the pebble beach, near the flag-staff, to the Millbay pier.

A spacious iron pier, intended to serve also as a promenade and landing-place, has, after many vicissitudes, been completed from designs by Mr. E. Birch, of London, at a cost of £45,000, and was opened to the public May 20, 1884: it is between 400 feet and 500 feet in length, and is built on iron columns embedded in the solid rock: at the entrance the width is 130 feet, narrowing gradually to 60 feet and again extending at its seaward extremity to 120 feet; here a handsome wind-screen has been erected, with a projecting roof, forming a verandah on either side and inclosing a space of 120 feet by 100 feet: on the pier are also refreshment rooms, a bookstall, reading-room, and a room occupied by the Promenade Pier Private club, besides lavatories; good landing accommodation for steamers is provided at any state of the tide, and landing piers have also been constructed: in 1891 a pavilion and promenade were added, and these are now managed by a limited company. The West Hoe pier, a stone structure, was formerly the starting place for passenger steamers, but these now start from the promenade pier. The site of the old quarry has been laid out for building purposes, in accordance with designs prepared by Mr. Herbert A. K. Gribble, architect, of London.

The Citadel of Plymouth, a fortification on the South Headland, which extends from the western side of Sutton Pool into the Sound at the entrance of Cattewater, was erected on the site of an older fort, by order of Charles II. who personally inspected it in 1670: it is built chiefly of limestone and granite, and consists of three regular and two irregular bastions, the curtains of the former being strengthened with ravelins and hornworks: the east, west and north sides are circumscribed by a deep ditch, counter-scarp and covered way, palisaded, and the south side is defended by a lower fort constructed upon rocks on the shore, and chiefly intended to defend the Sound: cannon are mounted both on this fort and the upper parapets, where there are embrasures for 120 pieces: two gateways, with drawbridges, form the entrance from the town; the inner gateway is a structure of two stages in the Italian style, relieved by pilasters of the Ionic order; the upper portion is finished with a frieze, bearing the date 1670, and a semicircular pediment, adorned with figures and ornament: in the centre of the Citadel is a spacious esplanade for the exercise of the troops, and around it are the officers' houses, a chapel, magazine and barracks: on the esplanade is a statue of George II. and from the ramparts, which are three-quarters of a mile in circuit, the views, seaward as well as inland, are extensive and beautiful. Fortifications covering fourteen miles of ground have been constructed around the Three Towns at a vast expense, with a view to secure the Government arsenals from attacks either by land or sea. The massive structure immediately opposite the end of the Breakwater is "Bovisand" fort, which, with one somewhat similar at Picklecombe, on the other side of the Sound, form the two outer extremities of the line of defence for the protection of the port, the Breakwater fort lying midway between. The Bovisand fort is for guns of the heaviest calibre, and the masonry is of immense thickness. Beyond the fort is Bovisand bay, possessing one of the finest beaches in the neighbourhood, and around it are groups of houses and cottages, a coast-guard station, and barrack accommodation for artillerymen. The government reservoir at Bovisand is of great utility in supplying the vessels of the navy with water, which is conveyed some distance in iron pipes to the pier at Staddon Point, where the tenders are moored. From the Bovisand, roads extend along the whole of the Staddon Heights to Mount Batten and Turn-chapel: these heights occupy a most commanding position, upon which the War Department has constructed a line of fortifications of considerable magnitude.

Plymouth Hoe, situated on the south or seaward side of the town, west of the citadel, is an elevated expanse of more than 18 acres, formed in the year 1817, the cost being defrayed by public subscription. The Hoe proper consists of a series of grassy slopes, surrounded by a spacious promenade nearly half-a-mile in length, extending from the citadel boundaries on the east to the West Hoe quarries on the west, and intersected by numerous paths leading to the lower grounds. At the foot of this eminence is a drive, and connected with it are paths leading to the rocks and the landing steps.

The Armada Memorial, erected at a cost of about £2,000, to commemorate the tercentenary of the defeat of the Spanish Armada, stands on the Hoe; the foundation stone was laid on Thursday, July 19, 1888, by H. J. Waring esq. mayor, in the presence of eleven mayors of towns in Devon and Cornwall, county and borough magistrates, and a great concourse of people; subsequently there was an historical pageant, with tableaux on the Hoe, and a banquet at the Guildhall, and a large and valuable collection of relics of the Armada and its period, portraits of distinguished men of that age, and coins and medals, was arranged in the Western Law Courts. The design was furnished by Mr. Herbert A. K. Gribble, architect, of London, and the sculptured work was executed by Mr. W. Charles May, of Hampstead: the figure of Britannia, which crowns the work, was unveiled by H.R.H. the late Duke of Edinburgh K.G. acting for the late Queen Victoria, on 21 October, 1890.

The Hoe is especially famous in the naval history of this country: it was the starting point of the daring enterprises led by Drake, Hawkins, Raleigh, Cavendish, Vancouver, Oxenham and Cook, and here assembled, on the 19th July, 1588, under Lord Howard of Effingham, that little fleet of 120 sail, which so signally defeated and dispersed the "Invincible Armada" of Spain. In 1620, the Pilgrim Fathers sailed from hence in the "May Flower." The Rev. Charles Kingsley, in his "Westward Ho!" has laid the scene of one of his finest passages on and near the Hoe. A fine statue of Sir Francis Drake, executed by the late Sir E. J. Boehm R.A. at the cost of Francis, 9th Duke of Bedford K.G. was placed on the Hoe, and unveiled on the 14th February, 1884: it represents the great navigator standing near a globe supported on a tripod frame, which he is lightly touching with a pair of compasses held in the left hand. Smeaton's lighthouse, removed from the Eddystone reef, and presented to the Corporation by the Trinity Board, has been re-erected here, on the site of the former obelisk. In the Hoe Park is a memorial fountain, presented by Mr. Charles Norrington J.P. and a stand, erected by the Corporation for the use of the military bands performing here. The principal approach is by the lodge entrance at the top of Lockyer street, and there are other entrances for foot passengers: at the east end of the promenade is a fine pillared gateway, built by Mr. Edmund Lockyer, during his mayoralty in 1821.

Plymouth Breakwater, situated about $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the Hoe, was commenced on the 12th of April, 1812, from plans furnished to the Admiralty by Messrs. Rennie and Whidbey, the former an eminent engineer, and the latter a master in the navy, and is mainly constructed of native limestone, the cost up to the present time being variously estimated at from £1,500,000 to £2,000,000. In the original design it was contemplated to have a lighthouse at each extremity, but the erection of a beacon at the eastern end has up to the present time been deemed sufficient. The lighthouse at the south-western entrance, erected in 1843, is 68 feet high from the surface of the breakwater, and is divided into five floors, and its light can be seen seawards on most occasions for about 10 miles; the entrance from the Channel is 3 miles wide, and is bounded by a part of Cornwall, including Mount Edgcumbe, on the west, and by the coast of Devonshire on the north and north-east. The centre line of the breakwater is 3,000 feet long, from either extremity of which an arm or cant, 1,050 feet in length, runs off towards the shore at an angle of 120 degrees. Three faces are thus presented to the sea, which has the effect of promoting the regular flow of currents, and preventing the eddies which would naturally be caused by one straight unbroken line, while the force of the waves is correspondingly weakened. Being placed in the centre of the passage, it admits of two entrances for vessels, from the east as well as the south, and the total length is about a mile: above 200 sail have taken refuge under its lee in the Sound at one time. It is estimated that at least 4,000,000 tons of stone have been deposited here, and in addition to this enormous bulk, some two and a half millions cubic feet of granite and other stone have been employed in the paving and facings, all of which came from the immediate neighbourhood of Plymouth.

The Royal Western Yacht Club of England was established in 1827; the club house, a fine building situated on the Hoe, commands a magnificent view of the sea, and contains reading, writing, card, smoking and coffee rooms; also a very good library and two billiard rooms: the annual regatta of the club generally takes place in or about the month of August. Commodore, vice-commodore, Rear-Admiral J. H. Bainbridge; rear-commodore, E. B. Beauchamp esq.; Capt. H. Houlditch, secretary; entrance fee, £7 7s.; yearly subscription, £5.

The Royal South-Western Yacht Club, which has its headquarters at Plymouth, was established in 1890, and the club house is in the West Hoe road. Capt. J. H. Bainbridge R.N. commodore; E. B. Beauchamp esq. vice-commodore; Lieut.-Col. E. G. Wilkinson R.M.L.I. rear-commodore; Bernard Townshend esq. hon. sec.; entrance fee, £1 1s.; yearly subscription, £2 2s.

Promenade Pier Private Club was opened in 1898. Horse races take place on "Chelson Meadow," a spacious turfied area, belonging to the Earl of Morley, and adjacent to Saltram, his lordship's seat, on the margin of the Laira, on the outskirts of the borough, and reached by the Laira bridge. The meeting is usually held in August or September.

The Eddystone Lighthouse, standing on a dangerous reef about 14 miles distant from Plymouth, dates from 1696, the first structure having been begun in that year by Mr. Henry Winstanley, a mercer and country gentleman of Littlebury, Essex; this was a hexagonal tower of wood of six stages, and the light was first shown on the 14th November, 1698, but the structure was totally destroyed in a great storm during the night of the 26th November, 1703, and with it perished its ingenious constructor. In 1706 the Trinity House obtained an Act of Parliament for the erection of a new lighthouse, under the direction of John Rudyerd, a Cornish man, and also a mercer, but possessed of considerable genius; this building consisted of a circular wooden tower, tapering upwards, with a base of 23 feet 4 inches, and a height of 92 feet from the lowest side to the top of the lantern, and stood until 2nd December, 1755, when it was burnt down. The third lighthouse, built from the designs of John Smeaton, the famous engineer, was begun on the 3rd August, 1756, and on the 17th August, 1759, Smeaton fixed with his own hands the gilt ball on its summit, and the light was first exhibited on 16th October, 1759: this edifice, constructed of stone, successfully withstood the most violent tempests known to the south-western coasts, and in particular the terrific storm of 11th and 12th January, 1762, by which more than £80,000 worth of damage was done in Plymouth Harbour and Sound: the tower of Smeaton's lighthouse terminated in a gallery within which rose the lantern, the whole being 72 feet above high-water mark. For some years previous to 1877 the lighthouse keepers had experienced alarming tremors and oscillations in the building, and on careful inspection it was found that not the lighthouse, but the rock on which it stood, had at length become insecure. It was therefore determined to erect another lighthouse on a fresh site at a distance of 40 yards from the old one in a S.S.E. direction, for which designs were prepared by Mr. J. N. Douglass, engineer-in-chief of the Trinity House; the first landing on the rock was made on the 17th July, 1878, but the construction of the coffer-dam was a work of great danger and trouble, so that the work had often to be suspended, especially and entirely during the winter of 1878; the first landing in the next year took place on the 24th February, 1879, and the coffer-dam was completed by the ensuing July. On the 21st of that month, H.M. King Edward VII. then the Prince of Wales and H.R.H. the late Duke of Edinburgh came to Plymouth to lay the foundation stone of the new building, but the weather being very stormy, the attempt could not be made; on the 10th August in the same year, their Royal Highnesses again visited the town, accompanied by the Elder Brethren of the Trinity Corporation, and, attended by the Corporations of Plymouth and Devonport, proceeded to the Eddystone and successfully performed the ceremony; on the 1st of June, 1881, H.R.H. the late Duke of Edinburgh laid the top stone of the tower, and on the 18th May, 1882, formally lighted the lantern; the tower of the new structure consists of 2,171 granite blocks, containing 63,020 cubic feet, or 4,668 tons of masonry; the total height above high-water mark is 133 feet, the base to a height of 25½ feet being solid, with the exception of a large water tank let into it; above this is the entrance, and then follow in order oil room, store and coal room, crane and store room, living room, low light room, bedroom, service room, and lastly the lantern; all the rooms, nine in number, have domed ceilings, the height of each one from the floor to the apex of the ceiling being 9 feet 9 inches, and the diameter of each is 14 feet, with the exception of the lower oil room, which is 12 feet 9 inches, and the entrance room, which is 11 feet 6 inches; the windows have gun-metal framings; three men are constantly kept at the lighthouse, each (during the night) taking a watch of four hours alternately; the light is a white double flashing half-minute light, showing two successive flashes of about 2½ seconds' duration divided by an eclipse of about four seconds, the second flash being followed by an eclipse of about 21 seconds. A fixed white subsidiary light from a window below the flashing light shows the Hand Deeps and extends over a sector of 16 degrees, from S. 32 E. to S. 48 E. During thick and foggy weather a large bell is sounded twice in quick succession every half-minute, assimilating the character of the sound signal to that of the light. The range of visibility of the new light is 17½ miles, as compared with Smeaton's of 14 miles. With the consent of the Trinity Corporation and the Municipality of Plymouth, Smeaton's lighthouse has been rebuilt on the Hoe, on the site of the obelisk, the former body undertaking the labour and cost of removal at an almost nominal charge; and the first stone was re-laid on the Hoe on the 20th October, 1882, by H.R.H. the late Duke of Edinburgh, who was accompanied by the Duchess, the Corporations of Plymouth, Devonport and Exeter being also present; a small charge is made for its inspection. An excellent model of the new lighthouse was made out of a piece of the rock the new lighthouse now stands on, and presented to H.R.H. the Duchess of Edinburgh by Mr. J. Goad, of the firm of Messrs. J. and E. Goad, marble merchants, Plymouth.

The area of the borough (including the 1866-7-8 extensions) is now 2,533 acres; the rateable value in 1901 was £456,357. The population of the Municipal borough in 1871 was 68,758, in 1881 73,794, in 1891 84,252, in 1896 98,121, and in 1901 was 107,509, which is co-extensive with the Parliamentary borough. Included in the 1891 population were 16 officers and 565 in the Workhouse, 143 in the South Devon and East Cornwall Hospital, 70 in H.M. Prison, 89 in the Military Fortress, Drake's Island, 348 in Millbay Barracks, 612 in the Citadel Barracks, and 796 on four of H.M. ships.

The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1891 was:—St. Andrew (parish church), 10,900; King Charles the Martyr, 11,795; All Saints, 6,778; Christ Church, 6,276; Holy Trinity, 4,822; St. James the Less, 5,978; St. John the Evangelist, Sutton-on-Plym, 7,206; St. Jude, 7,827; St. Luke, 3,342; St. Matthias, 4,456; St. Peter, 11,785; St. Saviour, 2,777.

The number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1901 was 13,877.

Chelson Meadow, on the margin of the Laira, contains the race-course.

EAST STONEHOUSE (known as Stonehouse) is a continuation of Plymouth proper on the west and separated by the Stonehouse pool from Devonport; and is a parish and township, forming part of the Parliamentary borough of Devonport, and head of a county court district.

Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73) it is governed by an Urban District Council of 15 members, taking the place of the Local Board established 3 Dec. 1872, and is in part supplied with water from Plymouth; but water works have also been constructed under an Act of Parliament, obtained in 1851, the expenses of the commissioners under this Act being paid by rates on the property of the parish.

The parish was formerly called "Hepeston," and in the reign of Henry III. contained only the house of the owner of the manor, Joel de Stonehouse. From the Stonehouse family it passed to that of the Durnfords, and from them, by marriage, to the noble family of Edgcumbe, by whom it is now held. The greater part of the parish is let on leases subject to perpetual renewal on the payment of small fines; and the place owes its prosperity chiefly to its convenient situation as a naval and military depot, and to the large Government establishments maintained here in connection with the public victualling, sanitary and medical services. Many vessels belonging to Stonehouse are engaged in the coal and timber trade.

The Pool, as it is called, is an arm of Plymouth harbour, of sufficient depth to admit vessels of heavy burthen, and is much resorted to, especially by ships in the timber trade. There are many extensive stores on its margin, and several boat-building yards. A considerable extent of water frontage in Stonehouse is occupied by the docks and works of the Plymouth Great Western Dock Company. Quays have been constructed along the Devonport side of Stonehouse Pool, opposite the Royal Naval Ordnance Depot, and others are connected by a branch line with the Devonport station of the London and South Western railway. Extensive fortifications command the entrance to the Hamoaze.

Edgcumbe and Union streets, Stonehouse, and Union street, Plymouth, form one continuous street, extending for more than a mile in a straight line from Stonehouse bridge to near the Royal hotel, Plymouth.

The communication between Stonehouse and Devonport is ensured by means of a bridge over the Stonehouse Pool, built in 1773, by the proprietors of the two manors, the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe and Sir John St. Aubyn bart.: the tolls, let by the proprietors, have increased in value for many years, and now amount to about £5,000 yearly. The Mill bridge, which spans the creek higher up, connects Stonehouse with Stoke Damerel.

Ferry and horse boats ply between the Admiral's Hard, approached from Durnford street, and Cremyll Beach, at Mount Edgcumbe, from which a rather hilly road conducts to Looe, Fowey, and other parts of Cornwall.

The regulation of the hackney coaches, boats plying for hire, and porters for Plymouth, Devonport, and Stonehouse, is vested in commissioners, acting under an Act of Parliament, 6th and 7th Vic. cap. 61: very good boats can always be hired at rates fixed by the commissioners, and easily ascertained.

The nearest railway stations are those on the Great Western line at North road and Millbay, the latter being the terminus.

There are three churches in Stonehouse: that of St. George, St. Paul's and St. Matthew's.

St. George's church, in Chapel street, is a plain building of stone in the Doric style, erected in 1879, on the site of an ancient chapel, and consists of chancel, nave, porch and a tower, with pinnacles, containing 8 bells: it was entirely renovated in 1882-3, with the addition of a new chancel, at a cost of £2,500, and has 1,100 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1757; marriages, 1754. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, including 19 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the vicar for the time being of St. Andrew's, Plymouth, and held since 1891 by the Rev. Boulton Brander Liptrott M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford. A mission hall for this parish was erected in 1890-91, at a cost of £1,000.

St. Matthew's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed July 25, 1876; the church, situated opposite the Royal Naval Hospital, was erected in 1875, at a cost of £4,500, and consecrated December 16, 1875, and is an edifice of stone in the Geometrical or Early Decorated style, from designs by Mr. J. Snell, architect, of Plymouth, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, organ chamber and the lower stage of an unfinished tower, which forms a porch on the north side: the east window is stained, and there are about 730 sittings. The register dates from the year 1876. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £190, in the gift of four trustees, and held since 1896 by the Rev. William Robinson, of St. Aidan's.

St. Paul's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed Dec. 21, 1883. The church, at the end of Durnford street, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, erected in 1830, at a cost of about £2,700, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, west porch and a turret containing one bell: in 1885-6 the church was restored at a cost of £600, and in 1891 a chancel was added, at a further cost of £1,160, and the church now affords sittings for 450 persons. The register dates from the year 1873. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1896 by the Rev. Charles Ernest Treadwell.

The Bible Christian chapel is in East street and the Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels in Union street. There is a Congregational chapel in Emma place, and a Wesleyan chapel in Edgcumbe street.

East Stonehouse Town Hall (late St. George's Hall), at the east end of Emma place, was erected in 1849-50 by a company, from designs by Messrs. Fuller and Gingell, architects, of Bristol, is a fine building in the Italian style, with a façade of two orders, the lower being Doric, with bold rustications, and the upper Corinthian, on a continuous moulded base, and finished with a cornice and balustrading: in the lower stage is a projecting portico, formed by eight coupled Doric columns, supporting a cornice with balustrade over: on the ground floor is an entrance hall, the walls of which are decorated with Ionic columns and pilasters, and the ceilings being deeply coffered: on the left is the county court and town hall, with retiring rooms, and on the right the offices of the District Registrar of the High Court of Bankruptcy and the County Court combined, as well as the Registrar's chambers; and above these are the offices of the High Bailiff: the assembly-room, 84 feet by 44 feet, and 30 feet high, has an orchestra at the end, with a very good organ, and adjoining are retiring and dressing rooms. A wing has since been added, containing a large room. The stone for the building was given by the late Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, and the present Earl generously gave up his reversionary interest in the site; the cost of erection, £4,500, was raised in shares.

The early closing day is on Wednesday.

The Grand Theatre, in Union street, erected in 1889, is a substantial building, well and completely fitted and effectively decorated, and will seat 2,200 persons. The County Theatres and Hotels Limited are the proprietors.

A Constitutional Club, in Edgcumbe street, was opened by the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe on May 18th, 1893, and there is a Liberal Club in Union street.

The charities amount to £16 yearly.

The Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe is lord of the manor; his seat, Mount-Edgcumbe Park, in the adjoining county of Cornwall, is open to the public on Wednesdays, and to strangers at other times on application at the manor office, Emma place, Stonehouse.

The area of the parish and urban district is 190 acres of land, 3 of water, 35 of tidal water and 42 of foreshore; rateable value, £54,070; and the population in 1871 was 14,585, in 1881, 15,125, in 1891, 15,398, and in 1901, 15,111 including 605 in the Royal Naval Hospital and 905 in the Royal Marine Barracks.

The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1891 was:—St. George, 8,047; St. Matthew, 4,900; St. Paul, 2,454.

DEVONPORT, the most westerly of the three towns, situated at the mouth of the Tamar, is a parliamentary, county and municipal borough, a market and important garrison town, government arsenal, and a Royal Naval port of considerable extent and importance, having stations on the Great Western and London and South Western railways, 1 mile west of Plymouth, half a mile west of Stonehouse, 23½ miles from London, 67½ south from Barnstaple, 140 from Bristol, 52 south-west from Crediton, 59½ south-west from Exeter, 17 south from Tavistock and 38½ west from Torquay; it is bounded on the west and south by the harbour of Hamoaze (formed by the confluence of the rivers Tamar and Lynher), an anchorage sufficiently capacious to moor in safety the entire British navy. The town is of modern date, having originated with and sprung up around the Royal Dockyard, begun under the auspices of King William III. soon after the Revolution in 1688: the yard was first, and for many years, called the Plymouth Yard, and the town Plymouth Dock; but in 1820 the name of the town was changed by royal charter to Devonport.

The town of Devonport consists of the "old town," inclosed by fortified lines on the north and east, and Stoke Damerel, now forming a northern suburb, and including Morice Town, a populous district adjoining Keyham steam yard. Houses began to be erected here about 1700, and by 1733 there was a population of 3,361; by 1783 it equalled that of Plymouth, and in 1800 had largely exceeded it; but the later commercial activity of Plymouth has enabled that town to re-assert its former superiority.

The main road from Plymouth to Cornwall passes through Devonport, and the traffic is continued across the Hamoaze by a steam floating bridge, which crosses every half-hour from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. from the beach at Morice Town to Torpoint, in Cornwall.

Devonport is connected with Stonehouse by a bridge crossing Stonehouse pool to Edgcumbe street, Stonehouse, and thence directly through Union street to Plymouth.

Steamers leave the quay at the end of Cornwall street, Devonport, for Saltash, every hour; and other steamers ply daily to various towns and places up the river Tamar, and to St. German's. During the summer months several of the river steamers make daily trips up the Tamar to the Weir Head, some 30 miles from Devonport, a route affording picturesque and charming river excursions.

The town was incorporated as a municipal borough in 1837, and by the Reform Act of 1832 was formed, together with the township of Stonehouse, into a parliamentary borough, returning two members. The "Local Government Act, 1858" (21 and 22 Vict. c. 98), was adopted here 11th May, 1866. In the municipal borough there were twelve wards, the first five within the "lines." The extension of the borough by the inclusion of part of St. Budeaux under the "Devonport Extension Act, 1898," the number of wards was made fifteen. The Corporation consists of a mayor, fifteen aldermen, forty-five councillors, a town clerk, recorder and other officers. Devonport is now a parish, absorbing the old parish of Stoke Damerel. Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1888," Devonport has been constituted a county of itself; the Corporation acting as the county council, for certain purposes defined by the Act. It has a commission of the peace and a separate court of quarter sessions and a borough police force. The control of the streets and sewerage is now intrusted to the Town Council as the Urban Sanitary Authority.

The churches within the fortifications or town proper of Devonport are as follows:—

The consolidated chapelry of St. Aubyn was formed December 5th, 1882, out of Stoke Damerel and St. Paul's, Devonport. St. Aubyn's church, in Chapel street, erected in 1771 as a proprietary chapel at a cost of £7,000, is a building of stone, in the Classic style, consisting of nave, aisles, west porch and a tower containing a clock and one bell: a new chancel was erected in 1885, at a cost of £863: there are 800 sittings. The register dates from the year 1883. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £222, with residence, in the gift of the rector of Stoke Damerel, and held since 1896 by the Rev. Hugh Robert Coulthard M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge.

The church of St. John the Baptist, in Duke street, erected in 1797, at a cost of about £8,000, and until 1887 a proprietary chapel, is a plain building of stone, with sittings for about 1,150 persons. The register dates from the year 1887. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £234, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Richard Mildren M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge.

St. Mary's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed September 22nd, 1846, from the civil parish of Stoke Damerel; the church, in James street, is a building of stone, in the Middle Pointed style, erected in 1850, from the designs of Mr. J. Piers St. Aubyn, at a cost of £10,000, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a tower with spire, at the south-west angle, 150 feet in height, and containing one bell; the nave is separated from the aisles by an arcade, supported on shafts of black marble from the Levant; the west window is a memorial to the Rev. Alfred Swain, second vicar of this church: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1851. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £295, with residence, in the gift of the Crown and the Bishop of Exeter alternately, and held since 1879 by the Rev. William Henry Allin B.D. of Durham University, and surrogate.

St. Paul's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed September 22nd, 1846, from the civil parish of Stoke Damerel; the church, on the east side of Morice square, is a building of stone, in the Middle Pointed style, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles and a tower containing one bell: the chancel comprises two bays, and is separated from the aisles by a low screen; there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1851. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £310, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Andrew John Hamlyn, who is also a surrogate. A mission chapel for this parish was erected in 1883, at a cost of £600.

St. Stephen's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed September 22, 1846, from the civil parish of Stoke Damerel: the church, situated in George street, and erected in 1852, is a building of stone in the Middle Pointed style, erected from the designs of Mr. J. Piers St. Aubyn, architect, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, and a central tower with lofty spire containing one bell: there are 380 sittings. The register dates from the year 1851. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £252, in the gift of the Warden and Council of Keble College, Oxford, and held since 1896 by the Rev. Arthur Gordon Bury Stallard M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford.

The Catholic church, in James street, dedicated to SS. Michael and Joseph, and erected in 1860-1, from the designs of J. Hansom esq. is a building in the Early Gothic style, with sittings for 500 persons. This church is attended by the Catholic soldiers of the garrison; there are also large schools adjoining the church.

A Catholic service is also held on board H.M.S. "Monmouth" in the Hamoaze.

There is a Baptist chapel in Fore street with 500 sittings, and others in Morice square and Pembroke street; the Congregational chapel in Princes street, Ope, affords 850 sittings. The Bible Christian chapel in King street has 400 sittings. The Moravian chapel in James street, opened May 19, 1771, is the oldest chapel in Devonport, and will seat 200 persons. Christ Church Unitarian chapel, in Duke street, erected in 1864 at a cost of £2,000, has stained windows and 450 sittings; there is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel in Morice street with 800 sittings and one in Ker street, built in 1823-4, at a cost of £2,000.

The Town Hall, in Ker street, in an elevated part of the town, and built in 1822, at a cost of about £3,000, is an edifice of the Grecian Doric order, erected in imitation of the Parthenon at Athens; it contains a magistrates' court, council chamber, police station and committee rooms.

The Corporation insignia consists of a mace, mayor's chain with badge, and a common seal. The silver-gilt mace, presented to the borough in November, 1837, on its incorporation, by Sir John St. Aubyn bart. lord of the manor of Stoke Damerel, is of the usual form, the head being divided by winged figures into compartments, enriched with the national badges; the mayor's chain, presented by Edward St. Aubyn esq. first mayor of Devonport, 1837-8, and mayor, 1849-50, is of gold, and consists of seven large open roses, connected by links; the pendent badge consists of a gold medal, with, on the obverse, a figure of Neptune in a car, drawn by sea-horses, and on the reverse an inscription; another round the rim records its presentation by the family of the late Jonathan Ramsey esq. 24 August, 1864. The seal is simply an embossing stamp with the town arms and legend; the mayor wears a robe of scarlet cloth.

The Post Office, at the east end of Fore street, was built in 1849, from designs by Mr. G. Wightwick, and cost about £2,000.

Devonport is mainly dependent for its rapid growth and present prosperity on the two great Government Dockyards, known as the Royal Devonport Dockyard and the Keyham Steam yard, in which it is estimated that over 9,000 persons are employed.

The Devonport New Quays, on Stonehouse pool, at the entrance of the Hamoaze, were completed at a cost of between £70,000 and £80,000, and opened for traffic in February, 1886, in connection with the London and South Western railway. They have a depth of water of 18 feet at ordinary low spring tides, which increases a few feet out to 60 feet. Immediately adjacent to the quays is ample space for the storage of corn, coals and general merchandise. The advantages of the port of Plymouth are now fully recognized by the various ocean steam ship companies for the embarkation and landing of passengers, mails and specie &c. and by a short branch railway these quays, distinct from Millbay, are connected with the London and South Western railway system, thus establishing direct communication with London and all parts of the United Kingdom without transfer or break of gauge.

The Market house, in the centre of the town, with approaches and entrances in Cumberland street, Duke street, Market street and Catherine street, is a spacious building, erected in 1852, from designs by J. Piers St. Aubyn esq. architect, at the cost of the trustees of the manor, and has a clock tower 124 feet in height, containing a clock with four dials and one bell; it is now the property of Lord St. Levan, to whom the market tolls belong. The market days are Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

The early closing day is on Wednesday, at 2 p.m.

There are two or three small breweries, also saw mills and a bonded warehouse, and an extensive business is done in the supply of stores to ships.

The Coal Association, for the import and supply of coals, is a co-operative society.

Near the Town Hall, in the highest part of the town, is the Devonport Column, a pillar of granite of the Doric order, 125 feet in height, built in 1824, at a cost of about £2,750, in commemoration of the re-naming of the town by George IV.; an extensive view may be obtained from the summit.

The Royal Albert Hospital and Eye Infirmary, at the end of Marlborough street, is a fine building of stone in the Early English style, erected in 1861, at a cost of about £13,000: it contains lofty and spacious apartments and 100 beds, 52 of which are supported by voluntary contributions; a provident dispensary and lock wards are attached to the building: the average number of in-patients is 270, and of out-patients, 1,512.

The Female Orphan Asylum, Morice square, is intended for such orphan daughters of workmen in the Royal Dockyard as have been left unprovided for: it is supported by the monthly subscriptions of the men, and by donations from the officers and others.

The Free Public Library, Duke street, opened February 6th, 1882, contains about 12,000 volumes: there is a museum attached, containing a collection of minerals, presented by Lord St. Levan. A private School of Art is conducted here by Henry B. Babb.

There is also a Sailors' Home in Duke street.

The grounds immediately adjoining the fortifications of the town, and between it and Stoke and Morice Town, belong to the Government, and cannot be built upon, thus securing to the inhabitants of Devonport the advantage of open country around the town and some pleasant walks. The fortifications and barriers, with drawbridges and a moat, were commenced in the reign of George II.

Devonport Park, formed in 1858, and consisting of about 37 acres, between Devonport and Stoke Damerel, is a fine recreation ground and promenade and commands an extensive view of the surrounding scenery; at the south entrance is a picturesque half-timbered lodge, and opposite to it a terra-cotta fountain, erected in memory of Sir Charles Napier K.C.B., rear-admiral R.N. who died 5th November, 1860.

A regatta, under royal patronage, is held at Devonport, generally in the month of August, and attracts a great many spectators. Boats ply for hire from the steps at Mount Wise, Mutton Cove, North Corner (Cornwall street) and New Passage.

Devonport is almost exclusively the property of Lord St. Levan, who is lord of the manor. Mr. Edward St. Aubyn J.P. is the estate steward.

The population in 1891 was—of the municipal borough 54,848; and of the parliamentary borough 70,204, and in 1901 was 69,675 municipal, and 78,059 parliamentary. The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1891 was:—St. Aubyn, 2,622; St. John the Baptist, 4,197; St. Mary, 5,087; St. Paul, 6,010; St. Stephen, 2,899.

The number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1901 was 8,860.

The area of the parish of Devonport is 3,152 acres of land, 27 of water, 353 of tidal water and 253 of foreshore; rateable value, £262,257.

STOKE DAMEREL, originally the mother parish of Devonport, but now absorbed into the new parish of Devonport, and one of its suburbs, forming the Stoke ward of that borough, lies on a gentle acclivity facing the south and east, about a mile from the town, and has now become a populous and fashionable neighbourhood. The houses, mostly detached, are of a superior class; and the appearance of Stoke from the Sound or Mount Edgcumbe is singularly attractive. There are stations here under the name of "Devonport" on the Great Western and South Western railways; the extension of the latter from Liddford, completed in 1890, has also a station at Ford in the parish. Stoke Damerel is connected with Stonehouse by the Mill bridge, which crosses the creek at its upper extremity.

St. Andrew's, the old church of Stoke Damerel, about half a mile from the Dockyard, is a building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of nave, aisles, north and south porches and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast by Thomas Bilbie, of Collymoreton, in 1789, from a previous peal of four, with additional metal: the church consisted originally of a nave, but in 1750 and previously aisles were added, so that the breadth of the building is now greater than its proper length: it contains many mural monuments, recording the services of various eminent personages: the church was restored in 1883 at a cost of £1,003, and affords 800 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1689; marriages and burials, 1707. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £929, with 10 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lord St. Levan, and held since 1894 by the Rev. Stewart Gordon Ponsonby M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, examining chaplain to the Bishop of Exeter, and surrogate.

St. Barnabas, in Stuart road, a mission chapel in connection with the parish church, is a building in the Early English style from designs by Mr. J. P. St. Aubyn, architect, begun in 1886 and completed in 1893 at a cost of £7,500: there are sittings for 600 persons.

St. Bartholomew's, in Church street, Higher Stoke, also attached to the parish church, was built in 1880-84, at a cost of £509, and will seat 200 persons.

St. Michael's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed June 27, 1873: the church, in Albert road, at the junction of Morice Town and Stoke, was erected in 1845 at a cost of £4,000, and is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of nave, aisles, north porch and a turret containing one bell: there are 1,100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1873. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £378, derived from pew rents and an endowment from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, in the gift of the rector of Stoke Damerel, and held since 1884 by the Rev. William Mantle B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, and rural dean of the Three Towns, and surrogate.

There is a Primitive Methodist chapel in Hotham place, with 100 sittings, and a Wesleyan Methodist chapel, with 500 sittings.

The Royal British Female Orphan Asylum, a national institution, is situated at the higher part of Stoke Damerel.

Hewett's charity, of £2,072 Consols, founded by will in 1836, is distributed among the deserving poor of this parish, St. John's and Maker, after deducting £20 for the salary of the agent; Chamber's consists of the interest of £540 Consols, to be equally divided among four widows of shipwrights; Williams', of £555 Consols, founded in 1836 for poor persons, is distributed in food and raiment.

The Royal Albert bridge, which carries the Great Western railway across the Tamar to Saltash and connects the counties of Devon and Cornwall, is one of the greatest achievements of Isambard K. Brunel, the distinguished engineer; it was formally opened by H.R.H. Prince Consort, 2 May, 1859, and consists of 19 spans or arches, the main portion over the river being two spans only, resting on one grand cast iron pier in the middle of the river, and leaving the traffic on each side almost unimpeded: the total length is 2,240 feet, and its greatest height from the foundation to the summit is about 260 feet; the principal weight of the whole of this mass of iron of more than 4,000 tons rests upon the great main pier.

Most of the residences in this neighbourhood afford extensive, varied and beautiful land and sea views.

Parish Clerk of Stoke, W. J. P. Symons, 17 Stoke terrace, Stoke.

MORICE TOWN is a rapidly increasing district, lying to the north of Devonport and the north and west of Stoke, and forms the Tamar ward of Devonport borough, where many of the persons employed in the Devonport dock and Keyham steam yard and minor officers of the navy reside.

It derives its name from Sir Wm. Morice knt. M.P. for Devonshire in 1645, sheriff in 1651, and in 1659 governor of Plymouth; he afterwards became one of the principal secretaries of state, and in 1668 was patron of the living of Stoke Damerel; his son of the same name was created a baronet, April 20, 1661, but the title became extinct on the death of the 3rd baronet in 1750.
